Roosevelt's Plan to Curb Inflation Due By Weekend

Program Reported Nearly Ready; Eccles, Henderson Favor Big Tax Increase

Fresh from two weeks of feeling out sentiment at home, House members were returning to the Capital last night to face again the bitter issue of placing restrictions on labor and limiting profits in the war effort, and all the pressing problems associated with inflation prevention.

There was general expectation that the Administration soon will give some idea of the measures it approves in a program to stop an apparently accelerating spiral of rising prices and wages.

The situation, as the new week opened, was reflected in these reports and developments:

1. "Usually well-informed sources" were quoted by the Associated Press as reporting that President Roosevelt would have an omnibus program for curbing inflation and dealing with other wartime economic problems ready for Congress by the coming weekend.

2. High Administration officials were said by International News Service, quoting Congressional leaders as its source, to be considering asking Congress to raise between 12 billion and 14 billion dollars yearly through greatly increased taxation as a means of checking threatened inflation. Both Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee and Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee were quoted in opposition to the proposal.

3. Secretary of Navy Knox and Chairman Land of the Maritime Commission were called to appear today before the House Naval Affairs Committee on the Smith-Vinson bill to suspend the 40-hour week and limit war contract profits to 6 per cent.

4. Chairman Vinson of the Naval Affairs group was preparing to offer a substitute measure fixing the normal work week at 48 hours with time and a half for overtime, and limiting profits to 8 per cent plus $6000, the latter feature intended to encourage participation in the war production program by small business firms.

There appeared to be growing sentiment on Capitol Hill for application of the "Baruch plan" of a ceiling over all prices, wages, rents. Licensing of wholesalers and retailers and tying wages to the cost of living, compulsory savings and virtual elimination of installment buying all were being discussed as

Landis Chided By LaGuardia As Laggard

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, April 12.—In an announcement made today of the reorganization of New York City's air warden service, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia sharply criticized James M. Landis, his successor as national director of civilian defense.

LaGuardia specifically referred to the civil defense supplies and equipment which, he said, the Office of Civilian Defense had planned to supply to municipalities. He said:

"None of it has been received. Now, there is no reason for that. I speak freely about it. The appropriations were obtained before I resigned (on February 10). Specifications were completed.

"I want to say to my distinguished successor, and I say this in all friendliness, 'you can't be a good fellow in Washington and a good director of the Office of Civilian Defense at the same time. You've got to fight these things right through and I can also say that Congress expects the cities to get this equipment. In fact, I think they will be very much surprised when they hear that none of it has been delivered.'"

Landis, reached in Washington tonight by telephone, said that Mayor LaGuardia didn't know what he was talking about.

The O. C. D., Landis said, already has sent out a total of 20,000 steel helmets for the use of defense workers in 40 different cities.

As for other defense equipment, such as pumps, trailers and gas masks, Landis said acquisition of these was in various stages of completion, and that batches of these items soon would be sent to cities that need them.

Cease Race Discrimination, U. S. Orders 10 War Plants

Ten concerns having millions of dollars in war contracts last night were ordered by the President's Committee on Fair Labor Employment Practice to cease discriminating against available workers because of their race or religion.

Though the concerns, in the Chicago and Minneapolis areas, for the most part had denied that they were discriminating against prospective employes, the committee said evidence obtained in two days of hearings in January supported the charges of discrimination.

The companies at which the order was directed are:

The Stewart-Warner Corporation, the Buick aviation plant, at Melrose, Ill.; the Bearse Manufacturing Co., the Simpson Manufacturing Co. and the Studebaker branch factory, in the Chicago area, and the Nordberg Manufacturing Co., A. O. Smith Corporation, Heil Co., Allis-Chalmers Corporation and the Harnischfeger Corporation, in or around Minneapolis.

"The complaints filed against the several companies," the announcement added, "included allegations that they refused to employ either Negroes or Jews, or both; that they had given restrictive orders to either public or private employment agencies, asking for only white or only gentile workers; that they had advertised in newspapers for help and specified 'Gentile' or 'Protestant' or 'white' or that they had refused to give workers of certain races and creeds opportunity for promotion in keeping with their qualifications."

The committee directed that the firms "give written notice . . . advising that each plant will accept applicants for all classifications of employment without regard to race, color, creed or national origin. . . ."

Since President Roosevelt established the committee by executive order last June, all war contracts have contained a pledge binding the contractor not to discriminate in hiring workers.

Committee officials said failure of the companies to comply with the order could result in Government

Leaders Laud USO, Planning Funds Drive

Roosevelt Message Read to Community Officials Meeting Here

Headed by President Roosevelt, who praised activities of the United Service Organizations as an "essential contribution to our united war effort," a host of notables yesterday joined in lauding the work carried on at home and abroad by the recreational group, which on May 11 will launch a war fund campaign drive for 32 million dollars.

The President's words of praise were read by Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt to a gathering of 750 community U. S. O. officials who came to the Mayflower Hotel yesterday from 44 States to discuss expanded wartime recreational needs of the men in the armed forces and the forthcoming campaign for funds.

Seen as Sign of Unity

"The open-handed and open-hearted hospitality" extended by villages, towns and cities all over the country was also commended by President Roosevelt, whose message marked the first birthday anniversary of the U. S. O. He expressed the hope that the "great work" of the orgahization would continue.

McNutt pictured the hospitable meeting of civilian and soldier as symbolic of "a Nation growing toward greater and truer unity, of a Nation reaffirming its common spiritual values."

His sentiments were echoed by a corps of speakers including Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War; James V. Forrestal, Undersecretary of Navy; Charles P. Taft, McNutt's chief assistant; Commander John L. Reynolds, U. S. N.; Rear Admiral Monroe Kelly, U. S. N., and these U. S. O. officials: Walter Hoving, chairman of the board; Harper Sibley, president; Mrs. Maurice T. Moore, chairman of the national women's committee, and Prescott S. Bush, national chairman of the war fund campaign.

Patterson Lauds Service

The conferees, drawn from every State but Wyoming, Nevada, Washington and Oregon, heard the praises of their past year's work tempered with warnings that the expansion of the armed forces calls for an ever enlarging program on the part of the U. S. O.

14 Dead, 1 Hurt In Crash of 2 Navy Bombers

Hit California Hill; Report of Collision In Midair Unverified

By the Associated Press

Livermore, Calif., April 12.—Fourteen United States Navy fliers were killed and a fifteenth was injured in the crash today of two giant naval patrol bombers in the lonely range country south of Livermore.

The Navy withheld names of the victims until the first of kin are notified.

Collision Reported

The crashes occurred in quick succession, and there were reports they resulted from a midair collision.

Twelfth Naval District headquarters at San Francisco, however, said that these reports had not been confirmed.

There was no official word of the second accident until long after crash squads had been dispatched from the Alameda Naval Air Station to the scene of the first.

Plows Great Furrow

Then the Navy was advised that the wreckage of a second plane had been discovered on the crest of a hill 7 miles southeast of Livermore.

Witnesses at the Reuss ranch, where the second accident occurred, said the plane struck only 20 feet below the top of the hill, ploved a furrow 60 feet long and burned, scattering wreckage over a wide area.

Navy officers went to the scene of the crashes to investigate.

Finesse, undoubtedly, was what Albert Crupper, 5, of 327 South Patrick Street, Alexandria, needed yesterday when he coveted a chicken bone on which "Blackie," a neighborhood dog, was dining.

Albert immediately waded in and bit "Blackie."

"Blackie" bit him back.

Albert went to Alexandria Hospital to be treated for a badly lacerated lower lip.

Simulated Bomb Blasts, Fires Will Lend Realism to Blackout

By Roland Nicholson
Post Staff Writer

Geared for instant action and warned that inefficiency or carelessness can result in loss of life, Washington's air raid warden service yesterday received final instructions for the metropolitan area's first complete blackout tomorrow night, when simulated bomb blasts and fires will emphasize the Capital's closest approach to the actual conditions of war.

When the city's 38 sirens scream their warning some time between 9 p. m. and midnight for a 30-minute test, 75,000 air raid wardens, regular and auxiliary police, members of the Fire Department and all the allied emergency services in the civilian defense organization here and in nearby Virginia and Maryland, will be standing by for immediate service.

All lighting, except in a few exempted categories, will be extinguished. All traffic, on city streets and arterial highways, excluding trains and emergency vehicles, will come to a halt. Pedestrians will take

Revolt Plans Mailed With HoffmanTalk

Nazi Probe Studies Social Republic Party Program; Legislator Due to Testify Today

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

The hidden leaders of the Social Republic Society—who say they are going to seize control of a coming "revolution" in the United States—warned their membership in a special bulletin last week to buy guns and ammunition for an "emergency."

Sealed in the same wrapper with this warning was a copy—produced by the Government Printing Office—of the "Roosevelt Is a Judas" speech of Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan.

How the leadership of this "secret" movement in California—a band as obscure and feeble as the Nazi Party in Munich was 20 years ago—came to be using reprints of a Congressman of this Government is a matter of concern to the special grand jury on Axis agents.

"To give evidence in behalf of the United States" in their investigation, the grand jurors have called Representative Hoffman to appear before them this morning.

They Use the Fuehrer Prinzip

The Hoffman speech a few days ago was mailed in the same envelope with a seditious postcard by Charles B. Hudson, 50-year-old England-hating, Jew-baiting agitator, of Omaha, Nebr. Hudson went to jail for three months for refusing to tell who printed the card.

Having received a quantity of the 145,000 reprints which were ordered by Hoffman, Hudson not only mailed them out singly to readers of his weekly bulletin, "America in Danger!" but offered them for sale in lots of 28 for 10 cents. Washington people sent for and received more than 100.

The literature of the Social Republic Society assures its members that "the society operates upon the leadership principle. The leadership is exclusively AMERICAN and knows where it is headed. The innermost secrets of your society are sealed with them and will never be divulged. . . . The true leadership of the society—all American,—will probably never be known to the American people. . . ."

"Secret Members" in Key Spots

Another bulletin, with the heading, "Tactics," makes quite clear where the secret leadership is headed. This bulletin declared, "It goes without saying that a revolution is due in America . . . Who will LEAD the revolution? . . . Only one little nationalist group, a Social Republic Society, with headquarters in California, Chicago and New York, is preparing for REVOLUTION, with plans to stave off the Communists and take the revolution into American hands. These so-called 'Socis' know what the word 'tactics' means . . ."

Because of just such preparation, says this bulletin of the secret leadership, the Fascisti "simply pushed

Corregidor Beats Off Twelve Raids in Day, Casualties Few; Bevin Predicts New Front Soon

Allies Will Attack With Overwhelming Superiority in Air, Churchill Aide Says

By the United Press

London, April 12.—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin said today, in the midst of a series of American-British war strategy conferences, that the United Nations will take the offensive soon, backed by an overwhelming superiority in the air.

He said Britain is now producing as many planes as Germany and that within five or six weeks the United States would be turning out as many planes as Germany, Italy and Japan combined.

"Tide Is on the Turn"

"The tide is on the turn," he said. "I cannot tell you when or how, but we shall soon be passing from the defense to the attack."

Bevin spoke in Yorkshire while Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Army Chief of Staff, and Harry L. Hopkins, controller of American war supplies for the Allies, continued an endless series of meetings with British war strategy and production officials.

These conferences were expected to provide an answer to Russia's demand for the opening of a second front in Europe as the crucial spring battle season opens on the eastern front.

Speaks After Seeing Hopkins

Bevin had a long talk with Hopkins two days ago and his speech was the first concrete evidence of the nature of the "confidential matters" which Marshall and Hopkins came here to discuss.

Bevin said that in addition to the great stream of planes from American and British plants, the Allies also had the advantage of Russia's output.

"These mighty forces have to be brought together, but Hitler knows the writing is on the wall. The next six months will be the vital period. We shall have to take more punishment—we are not under any delusions about that—but don't lose heart," he said.

[The New York Herald Tribune in a dispatch from London quoted Bevin as saying that 60 per cent of Britain's productive power had been created in the last 12 to 18 months. It is now up to 85 per cent efficiency, he said. And the military feel that there has been nearly 30 per cent more shipbuilding and ship repairing in this war than in the World War, with 100,000 men less and fewer shipyards.

[Telling of hard times immediately ahead, Bevin concluded:

["It is better to have five or six months of ruthlessness to win the war than prolong it by weaker methods."]

'Like Living on a Bull's-Eye,' Officer Says of Corregidor

By the Associated Press

An army officer just returned from Corregidor reported yesterday that living on the Philippine fortress island was "like living on a bull's-eye."

Lieut. Col. Warren J. Clear, an infantry officer who reached the Capital by way of Australia, said that since the loss of the Bataan Peninsula Corregidor would be the target of everything the Japanese have.

"There are literally no places where bombs are not likely to fall," he said in an interview on a War Department-sponsored "Army Hour" radio program.

"But the Japanese attacking Corregidor still must combat American markmanship and American ingenuity and American steadfastness," he added.

Clear said that two months ago—as early as February 5—the defenders of Bataan were reduced to eating their pack mules, and for weeks they had had no vegetables, eggs or citrus fruit.

"Occasionally they were fortunate enough to bag wild pig and carabao, or water buffaloes, but they were few and far between," he related. "Every day our men grew more and more undernourished, more exhausted, from lack of food and sleep; but despite their exhaustion I never heard a complaint from them.

"Thanks to careful forethought and planning, they had adequate ammunition until near the last. And there was not a single time when our Americans and Filipinos failed to return fire for fire and to battle savagely in counterattacks.

"The heroism of these men out there is all the more glorious because they knew all the time that the persistent efforts of the War Department to bring them relief

Yanks at Bay

Corregidor heroically fought on yesterday, not only against enemy bombers that have pounded its garrison for weeks but beset also by Japanese artillery from the southern shore of Manila Bay and from Bataan Peninsula where, last week, American-Filipino defenders finally were overwhelmed.

Twelve times during the previous 24 hours, the War Department announced last night, the island fortress was raided by enemy planes.

Giving the lie to Japanese broadcast claims that American anti-aircraft guns had been silenced by the bombers, the department revealed that the guns actually had kept the raiding planes at such great height that damage from the bombings was "slight and only a few casualties were sustained by our troops."

At the same time, the Tokyo radio, it was reported by the Associated Press, declared that a "withering" fire was poured on the besieged fortress at point-blank range from heavy guns on Bataan, where a full view of the island is available.

The Army communique dismissed this claim with the brief paragraph:

"Enemy batteries located in Bataan and in Cavite (on the southern shore of Manila Bay) fired on our fortifications this morning." There was no mention of damage or

R.A.F. in Worst Fight Since It Saved Britain

Fourteen Planes Lost As Nazis Intercept Raid Over France

By the Associated Press

London, April 12.—The Royal Air Force ran into "some of the fiercest air fighting since the Battle of Britain" on a bombing sweep today against the railway yards at Hazebrouck in northern France and indications were that losses in aircraft were relatively heavy on both sides.

The British acknowledged the loss of one bomber and 13 fighters in the thick of the numerous dogfights that developed when the R. A. F. encountered German planes in force. Two fighter pilots bailed out and were reported safe.

2 Nazi Planes Collide

Going beyond the communique announcements, the Air Ministry news service characterized the fighting as the most severe since September, 1940, when Germany was making her all-out effort to pulverize Britain from the air.

The communique said four German fighter planes were destroyed for certain. The Air Ministry news service said that besides two shot down by British fighters and two others which knocked themselves out in a collision, a number of other Nazi planes were damaged.

The R. A. F. appeared to be bombing the French Channel ports again tonight. On the southeast coast watchers saw great flashes in the Calais and Dunkerque areas and felt reverberations of explosions across the Channel.

Raid Smashed, Nazis Say

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), April 12 (AP).—The high command announced that the British air force suffered "a new serious defeat" this afternoon when German fighters intercepted 12 British bombers and about 50 Spitfire fighters off the French Coast and shot down 12 Spitfires and one bomber.

The bombers were dispersed and the Spitfires were unable to keep the way open to their intended objectives, the announcement said.

Sappers Turn Flooded Stream From Course Under Enemy Guns

By the Associated Press

Kuibyshev, April 12. — Soviet forces in one of the most spectacular and resourceful exploits of the war, have flooded the Germans out of a bitterly-defended and strongly fortified village on the Eastern Front by changing the course of a stream swollen by thawing snows, front-line dispatches said tonight.

This account said Red army sappers, working under the guns of the Germans, dug trenches through which the flood waters rushed to engulf the enemy positions.

Battling through incessant rains, other Russian units were reported to have recaptured a town occupied briefly by the Germans on a river in the Bryansk sector and to have liberated two settlements on the Kalinin front above Moscow.

Nazi Losses Heavy

German prisoners captured on the Leningrad front related there were enormous losses among their comrades during reckless March offensives.

One Nazi said the Fifty-third Alpine Division, brought from Crete and intended for the Murmansk front, lost heavily in man power when it was hurriedly diverted to the Leningrad front.

The Leningrad radio broadcast an announcement that a strategic point identified only as "N" had been recaptured with the annihilation of 300 Germans and destruction of every mortar battery defending the point.

A supplement to tonight's Moscow communique said in two days recently more than 2000 Germans were slain in another sector of the Leningrad front. It credited Soviet units there with destroying 22 enemy blockhouses and numerous guns.

On the Central Front, the supplement said, the Germans lost heavily in hand-to-hand fighting following a

11 U-Boat Victims Are Rescued After 13 Days in Open Lifeboat

By the Associated Press

Lewes, Del., April 12.—Eight men, two women and a 3-year-old girl, survivors from a medium-sized passenger ship torpedoed and sunk off the Atlantic Coast on March 29, were brought ashore here late Saturday night, the Fourth Naval District announced tonight.

Two bodies were landed with 11 survivors. One was that of the mother of the little girl and the other of a United States Navy seaman who was a member of the gun crew aboard the freighter. Both died in the lifeboat an hour before a Navy patrol plane sighted the party at 10:40 a. m. Saturday.

A Navy ship picked up the group six hours later, ending their ordeal of drifting in the open lifeboat for 13 days.

The destroyed vessel, survivors said, carried a crew of 78 and 46 passengers, including a Yugoslavian general, Milo Djukanovic, en route to Washington, D. C., on an official mission.

A naval spokesman said another boatload of survivors from the same ship reached Norfolk, Va., last week after an ordeal during which one of the passengers, Mrs. Joseph Mohorovicic, wife of a Yugoslav consular official in New York, gave birth to a baby in an open lifeboat.

The two dead were identified as Mrs. Sora Etter, 26, and John McInnis, seaman first class, U. S. N., of Duluth, Minn. Both died of exposure.

Mrs. Etter and her daughter, Miriam, were en route to the home of the baby's grandfather, Rabbi M. Etter at Harrisburg, Pa. The child's father, Samuel Etter, owns a restaurant in New York.

Names of the survivors, in addition to little Miriam, born in Johannesburg, South Africa, were listed by the Navy as:

Robert Milton Peck, 39, Long Island; Norman Lee, 28, Beacon, N. Y., first assistant engineer; Ralph Edmund Clark, 32, Cambridge, Mass.; Joseph Waxler, 25, New York City; James B. Jensen, 24, New York; Duncan MacNichol, 45, New York, first officer; Lawrence Lewis Frank, 25, Brooklyn; William Jefford, 24, Philadelphia; Rosabelle Blythe Clark, 40, Pretoria, Transvaal, South Africa, fiancee of Dr. H. ## Won't Hinder British and U. S. War Effort, Nehru Pledges

By the Associated Press

New Delhi, India, April 12.—While the British in India got set today for Japanese assault, a ranking leader of the Congress Party, in post-mortem discussion of the British plan for Indian independence, declared:

"We are not going to embarrass the British war effort in India or the efforts of our American friends who may come here."

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru did not elaborate his press conference reference to "our American friends" except to say that "we want that (British and American) action to whirl full speed ahead."

The United States now has fortress-type aircraft and crews based on Indian soil which already have been in destructive action against the Japanese in the Bay of Bengal and Burma.

Nehru had another meeting today with Louis Johnson, President Roosevelt's personal minister to India, after disclosing that Johnson had told him he would be glad if Nehru could visit the United States. Nehru said he had declined on the grounds of India's imminent peril from Japan.

In the field of actual preparations for Japanese attack, today's leading development was issuance of a communique at Madras, capital of the Madras Presidency, advising evacuation of all among the half million population whose presence is not necessary in that seaport city.

Plane Plant Cuts Prices, Saving U. S. $60,000,000

Inglewood, Calif., April 12 (AP).—North American Aviation, Inc., today reported a voluntary reduction in training plane prices which will mean a saving of about 60 million dollars to the Federal Government.

J. H. Kindelberger, company president, said increased manufacturing efficiency had made the move possible. The price cut applies to ships contracted for but not yet in production.

North American recently reported a 14-million-dollar refund to the Government which the War Department immediately reallocated to the firm for production of more planes.

Kindelberger explained improved manufacturing methods now make possible production of combat training planes at approximately 66 per cent of their cost in the summer of 1940. He credited the Army and Navy standardization program and his own manufacturing organization for the reduction.

28 Jap Planes Destroyed or Hit

Yanks and Aussies Relentlessly Raid Nipponese Bases

By the Associated Press

Melbourne, April 12.—Huge United States bombers, protected by swift Australian fighters, smashed relentlessly over the weekend at Japanese bases on the outer islands and were credited tonight with destroying or seriously damaging at least 28 enemy planes and spreading flaming ruin among the invaders' ships and military establishments.

The raids were conducted over a 2400-mile arc extending from Koepang on Dutch Timor to Faisi in the Solomon Islands but the greatest destruction was spread at Lae on the northeastern coast of New Guinea, and at Rabaul on the northern coast of New Britain.

At least 12 of the Japanese planes were destroyed at the cost of only two Allied aircraft.

Rabaul Hit Twice

Rabaul—the main Japanese base for any invasion attempt—was raided both Friday and Saturday.

Eight Japanese bombers and a fighter were destroyed on the ground Friday and other planes were damaged. In the attacks Saturday, three moored flying boats were damaged by machine-gunfire and a P-type fighter was chased away wounded in a steep dive.

The attack on Rabaul was made by a formation which split into three units against targets at an airdrome 12 miles from Rabaul, one near the city itself, and the shipping harbor.

Bad weather and low clouds failed to hinder the raiders who came diving down through the fog, splattering bombs and machinegun slugs across the targets only a few thousand feet from the ground.

Buildings flamed so violently after bomb hits that the fires were seen 50 miles at sea. Ships were bombed in the harbor and enemy troops were strafed, but the results were not wholly visible.

Direct hits were scored on three grounded bombers at Lae, and four other aircraft probably were damaged by a near miss by a heavy bomb. Japanese Zero fighters which rose to attack were driven away after two were shot down and four others damaged. Japanese ships, gun emplacements and buildings were bombed and several antiaircraft batteries were believed silenced.

Faisi in the Solomon Islands, 1000 miles to the northeast of Australia was bombed Saturday morning, but the damage was not observed fully. Wharves and sheds were raided.

The attack on Koepang, northwest of the continent, was made Friday and resulted in several hits on buildings which were left burning.

In fending off a Friday attack on much-bombed Port Moresby in southeastern New Guinea, Allied defenses shot down a heavy enemy bomber and probably destroyed another fighter. Seven bombers and six fighters were kept 6 miles high, but Allied fighters rose to attack and chased them away toward Lae after a series of dogfights. Damage was negligible and there were no casualties, the Australian communique said.

Several Japanese planes already were in the air yesterday when the Allied planes reached Lae. One Australian fighter challenged three enemy planes in swift succession, shooting one down into the sea.

Young American pilots participated in a previous assault Thursday on Rabaul and said that "men and planes were strewn all over the field" by the raiders.

"We found heavy clouds over Rabaul and sliped down through them, roared over the airport at 500 feet and then let go and blasted those Japs," one of the fliers said.

Bomber Is Bombed

"We saw one bomber taking off and laid an egg which scored a direct, blowing it to atoms. The Japs were taken by complete surprise. When they saw us come in formation so low they must have thought we were going to land. They were so startled for a few minutes they didn't think of running. They just stood there and pointed at us. Then the bombs began to fall and they scattered in all directions.

"The antiaircraft fire was heavy, but nobody was hurt. As we left the area we saw huge fires blazing. We are all anxious to go again.

"Every bomb we drop pays back a bit for Pearl Harbor, but we have a lot more accounts to settle yet."

Millionaire Peels Spuds In Sydney

Sydney, Australia, April 12 (AP).—A millionaire is peeling potatoes at a U. S. Army camp here. He is First Class Private George Jay Gould, 23, eldest son of the late Jay Gould and great-grandson of the railroad magnate of the last century.

Besides peeling potatoes, Private Gould has served also as chauffeur to officers.

He married Eileen O'Malley, New York society girl, soon after he was drafted to the Army.

Gould is acutely short of money for the first time in his life. He had no time to arrange for this detail after being posted overseas. He wants to take a suite at a city hotel, and is awaiting funds.

casualties from this fire.

Likewise there was no further word of the fighting on Cebu Island, where Japanese forces landed at several points on Saturday. The Japanese radio, however, was quoted as saying that Japanese marines were mopping up "the last nests of enemy resistance" on Cebu.

The only word of the erushed defenders of Bataan since Thursday when Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright reported from Corregidor that fighting on the peninsula obviously had ceased, came from Japanese broadcasts. They declared that the Japs had occupied Marivales, last American post on Bataan, at 9 p. m. Thursday.

Claim Many Prisoners

"Japanese forces smashed into Marivales after hotly pursuing the retreating enemy troops along the Bataan military road," the news agency Domei declared. "Japanese soldiers are busy disarming Filipino and American troops which have been surrendering in large numbers."

It added that several medium transports and scores of launches were seized in Marivales Harbor, where the Americans did not have time to set fire to two wharves.

The Army communique reported that "the enemy cruiser sunk a few days ago (by a United States motor torpedo boat) is reported to have been of the Waskuma class."

Naval records do not list a "Waskuma" class among Japanese cruisers.

In naval circles, it was suggested that possibly what was meant was the Yasukani, an 11,939-ton converted auxiliary, the Associated Press said.

Another possibility appeared to be that it was a ship of the Kuma class. The publication Jane's Fighting Ships lists five cruisers of this class, the Kuma, the Oi, the Tama, the Kitakami and the Kiso.

These vessels, built in 1919-20, are of 5100 tons, 535 feet long and with a beam of 46 feet 9 inches. They are armed with seven 5.5-inch guns, two 3-inch guns and eight torpedo tubes. The normal complement is 439 officers and men.

The communique, No. 178, based on reports received until 3 p. m. (E.W.T.), said:

"1. Philippine theater:

"Japanese planes raided Corregidor 12 times during the last 24 hours. The attacks were concentrated on the center of the island. Our antiaircraft fire kept the bombers at a high altitude. As a result, the damage inflicted by the enemy was slight and only a few casualties were sustained by our troops.

"Enemy batteries located in Bataan and in Cavite fired on our fortifications this morning.

"The enemy cruiser sunk a few days ago near Cebu is reported to have been of the Waskuma class.

"2. There is nothing to report from other areas.

Hard-Fighting Chinese Hold Japs in Burma

By the Associated Press

New Delhi, April 12.—Stalwart Chinese defenders, supported along their front lines by American Volunteer Group pilots and the aid of native Burmese, are standing their ground along the Sittang River in Burma, 30 miles north of Toungoo, a Chinese communique said today.

Although the Japanese attacked under cover of concentrated artillery fire and aviation support on Thursday, they were being held motionless up to Saturday morning by heroic Chinese resistance, the communique said.

"Burmese natives expressed admiration for the gallant spirit of our forces by doing their utmost to help us, which contributed greatly to our morale," the Chinese command said. "On April 10 the A.V.G. came to the support of our forces which inspired our troops to fight with even greater gallantry."

Foe Nearer Oil Field

But while these forces under United States Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell held their positions 180 miles south of Mandalay, Japanese advance guards pressed perilously closer to the vital oil fields on the western end of the line.

The British said "enemy reconnaissance elements appear to be advancing northward on a wide front south of Magwe," but that the main Japanese forces had not bet been engaged.

Magwe is only 20 miles south of Yenanyuang, center of one of the three great Burmese oil pools. The others are 50 miles farther north on the Irrawaddy River.

Japanese planes roared over the British positions almost unchallenged, bombing and strafing the defenders.

Chiang at Front

It was disclosed that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had spent four days at the Burma fronts conferring with Gen. Stilwelll and the British commander, Gen. Harold Alexander. Chiang returned to Chungking Friday.

In combat Friday, the American Volunteer Group destroyed seven of nine planes attacking a northern Burma port and ran their two-day score to 18 victories over the 21 to 24 planes they met. The A. V. G. suffered no losses. The day before that they had shot down 10 out of 20 Japanese planes.

The Chinese reported that 600 Japanese attacked Nammehek, 12 miles east of Mawchi, along the Salween front to the east of the Sittang Friday, but there were no further details. The Japanese also bombed a central Burma town, killing "mostly women and children."

Japan Sets Up Special Office On Exploitation

Japan has established a special administration in its cabinet "to exploit occupied areas," the Office of Facts and Figures said yesterday.

The new administration, OFF said, supervises such "coprosperity" activities as military control over "the enterprises of enemy nationals," the seizure and shipment to Japan of foodstuffs and raw materials of the conquered countries, the levying of luxury taxes in the Philippines, and the taking over of commercial establishments by Japanese firms.

OFF also said the Tokyo radio has announced revision of the curricula of Japan's schools to train the country's youth for leadership in the "new order" of greater Asia.

British War Prisoners Reach Egypt

By Chester Morrison

Copyright by Chicago Sun

Alexandria, Egypt, April 12.—The hollow men walked swiftly down the gangplank in new brown British uniforms, still wrinkled from the quartermasters' bins.

They laughed, shouted and waved their arms. But their eyes seemed bewildered, for they were not yet accustomed to freedom after months in Italian prison camps.

They were brought here today, 129 of them, in a hospital ship from Smyrna, Turkey, in exchange for 919 Italian prisoners sent there on Wednesday. Today's batch consisted principally of so-called protected personnel of the medical services, but some of the men who had been mutilated in battle.

Both the British and the Italian prisoners involved in the transfer were captured in the Libyan Desert between 6 and 18 months ago. The exchange was arranged under an international convention covering the medical services and wounded prisoners, through the medium of neutral Turkey.

Today's arrivals were not permitted to tell their own stories for the present, but it was said in their behalf that they were treated as well as could be expected while in prison, except that inferior macaroni is no substitute for good roast beef.

Some of their stories were vivid without words. There was a boy of no more than 20, a beautiful boy of the kind England sometimes produces. His shining brown hair was long under the jaunty black beret of the tank corps. His face was tanned and sober. His eyes were older than their years, and he gripped the railing of the ship's salon as he coasted along on one crutch.

"Do you mind if I pass through this way, sir?" he said. "I like to lean on this railing when I walk."

You didn't have to look down to where there was a missing leg to know why he needed the rail and the crutch.

British Won't Comment On Exchange Plans

Alexandria, Egypt, April 12 (AP).—British officials declined comment tonight as to whether they might try again to exchange wounded war prisoners with the Germans.

Previous attempts to exchange British and German war wounded across the English Channel bogged down because the Germans, who had an excess of British prisoners, demanded that the difference be made up by adding other Germans held in England.

4 Allied Ships Hit in Arctic, Berlin Claims

By the Associated Press

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), April 12.—A German divebomber attack on a strongly protected united Nations convoy in the Arctic Sea yesterday, resulting in the damaging of four ships, was reported by the Germans today.

Both the United States and Britain are rushing war supplies to Russia over the Arctic route.)

The high command said the bombers set fire to two ships and damaged a third, while military authorities added the following details, mentioning damage to the fourth ship.

"One merchantman of 4000 tons was hit at the stern by a bomb which started an enormous conflagration. Some time later the ship was found motionless on the same spot with a heavy list and burning fiercely.

"Two hits were scored by bombs of half a ton each on another steamer of 5000 tons, while a third steamer was hit by a bomb of heavy caliber which crashed close to the steamer's screw so that she came to a standstill.

"Notwithstanding violent antiaircraft fire, German dive-bomber planes managed to hit a fourth steamer which also remained motionless on the spot."

Axis Attack Slows; Malta Goes Bathing

Valletta, Malta, April 12 (AP).—The Axis air siege of Malta slackened off today and bathers made the most of the respite by flocking to the island's beaches.

Instead of a day-long assault as usual the enemy made only one sharp attack upon Valletta Harbor and twice sent over reconnaissance planes. One German bomber and one Nazi fighter were destroyed and two other bombers damaged by antiaircraft fire today.

The lifeboat, the spokesman said, also contained the personal belongings of General Djukanovic and three other persons who are feared lost with the general. The names of the other three were given as Charles J. Ahern, 23, seaman, born in Michigan (address unavailable); James Parker, 24, Philadelphia, and Miss Aletta Naudd Jacobsz, of Johannesburg, South Africa. The effects of Miss Jacobsz included a telegram signed by Sue Adams, Chicago.

The survivors told the Navy spokesman that three lifeboats were launched. One reached Norfolk, the second Lewes, while the third was destroyed by enemy action.

Seven of the rescued crewmen were Americans, three Dutch and one Swedish. The remainder were Norwegians.

The injured man, Racnvald Smevik, an ordinary seaman, was hospitalized on arrival here with an arm injury suffered in launching a lifeboat.

Atlantic Ship Losses

By the Associated Press

Eleven ships were announced officially as sunk during the week of April 6 to 12, bringing losses in that era since Pearl Harbor to 126. The tabulation:

| | Week April 6-12 | Since Pearl Harbor |
|---|---|---|
| Off the U. S. | 9 | 68 |
| Off Canada | 0 | 23 |
| In the Caribbean | 1 | 30 |
| Off So. America | 2 | 6 |
| | 12 | 127 |

Nine of the vessels sunk in the week were United States ships, one was British, one Brazilian and one Norwegian.

Norwegian Ship Sunk: One Lost, One Injured

Norfolk, Va., April 12 (AP).—One seaman was lost and another injured early Tuesday morning when a torpedo launched by an unseen submarine sank a medium-sized merchant ship of Norwegian registry off the Atlantic Coast, the Navy announced today.

Forty-nine of the 50-man crew were landed here the following day. The public relations office of the Fifth Naval District listed the man lost as Emil Hansen, a ship-fireman.

Survivors reported that the vessel sank within an hour after they put off in three lifeboats. Two lifeboats and their Davits were smashed by the force of the explosion.

John H. Bjerkholt, master of the vessel, said that his ship was proceeding at about normal speed and under a complete blackout when the attack came without warning in the early hours of Tuesday morning.

The survivors were picked up in two groups by two rescue vessels after three to four hours in the lifeboats. Their boats were sighted first by patrol planes, and the rescue ships arrived on the scene soon after.

Jacob Jacobsen, third mate, who was on the bridge at the time of the explosion, said that no submarine had been sighted during the entire course of the voyage.

U. S. Diplomats Leave Tokyo for Shanghai

Tokyo (From Japanese broadcasts), April 12 (AP).—United States Consul General M. S. Meyers and 13 other United States consular service men left by boat yesterday for Shanghai to await diplomatic exchange of Japanese officials held in the United States.

British Consul General A. P. Blunt and 57 staff members also were on the boat and will await exchange with Britain of Japanese diplomats held in that country.

and supplies were doomed to failure.

"They knew they were making a last stand. They cheered each ship that arrived; but they knew that for every ship that did get there, at least two had been destroyed. And they fought on to the end. Our forces on Bataan collapsed because they were physically exhausted."

The Japanese, he related, knowing the defenders were short of man power, concentrated at night on preventing sleep or rest.

Newly arrived selectees, Clear reported, "stood up right alongside the old timers" as fighting men.

The officer said that he and a sergeant who shared the same foxhole prayed audibly during one particularly heavy bombing attack. The sergeant, Clear related, observed afterward that "there are no atheists in fox-holes."

Housewives too, can enlist..
HELP WIN THE WAR

It is the patriotic duty of all of us to help Washington's War Effort.

One important way all housewives can help, is to travel in business and shopping areas only between 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Before 10:00 a.m., 300,000 persons are going to work. After 3:00 p.m., 300,000 persons are returning home from work. Most of them are engaged in work contributing to our Nation's War Effort. They must travel during those hours, when streets are overtaxed and street car and bus travel is heavy.

There is ample Street Car and Bus accommodation for you between 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Will you cooperate with us whenever you possibly can? Remember—you can help Washington's War Effort personally—by traveling in business and shopping areas only between 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Get the habit. Shop by street car and bus between 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Beacon Light Sheds Hopeful Glow on Nazis

(Editor's note.—Scores of verminous little sheets, each with a few thousand readers, are gnawing away at the faith and unity of our people, whispering defeat and clamoring about "freedom of the press." Their common policy—"made in Germany"—is to turn Americans against one another, and to split America from the United Nations. This is the sixth article of a series about these papers.)

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Every month, William Kullgren writes the jargon of astrology in praise of Adolf Hitler—who is said to believe in "the stars," too—in the little magazine, The Beacon Light.

This magazine is only one of Kullgren's operations. He sells books and pamphlets—by the scores of titles.

Kullgren's list includes Gerald B. Winrod's "Jewish Assault on Christianity" and "Truth About the Protocols (of the Elders of Zion)," Representative Clare E. Hoffman's "Committee of Industrial Organization" and "Communism Breaks in America," Representative Stephen A. Day's "We Must Save the Republic" (first published by the Nazi agent George Sylvester Viereck, now jailed) "The 'United Front' Exposed," by J. B. Matthews, Dies Committee aide, Col. E. N. Sanctuary's anti-British "War Guilt and Warmongers" and three books by Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, the Chicago red-baiter who was held in contempt of court there last week.

Kullgren's Beacon Light for January said the President would call off the fall elections, urged that the President be impeached—predicted "notable conquests" for Hitler and called Japan "our best customer." Apparently written before Pearl Harbor, this number was still being mailed out last week.

Every issue of the Beacon Light prints plugs for the Broom, the X-Ray, America in Danger! (whose editor was jailed here last week for contempt of court) and others of the vermin press. The March issue joined them in an outcry for "freedom of the press."

And the April issue, mailed last week, said Russia would attack the United States, that civil war looms in America, that our troops in Ulster will be "slaughtered" and that this country is in the hands of the "Synagogue of Satan."

The April issue, mailed last week, whines about priorities, contains an article, "Why War in the Orient?" and reprints a paper in which Mrs. Agnes Waters, 3267 N Street Northwest, attacked the President, hinting "the necessity of hanging these traitors."

The Beacon Light says it has 10,000 readers.

The United States mails carry this magazine from Atascadero, Calif., to all parts of the country.

Talon, Inc., Penalized For Asking Copper When It Had Plenty

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Talon, Inc., the Nation's major manufacturer of zippers and foremost complainant about the woes of "priorities unemployment" resulting from shortages of raw materials, is about to be slapped by Uncle Sam for crying before it was hurt.

An order has been issued by the War Production Board. The Post learned yesterday, imposing penalties on the firm for misleading information it supplied the Government last fall in the course of a lugubrious plea for priorities assistance so that its factories could stay open and its workers at Erie and Meadville, Pa., could be saved from unemployment.

At the time Talon was making its application for special treatment in a "hardship" situation, it had on order three million pounds of copper, the basic zipper ingredient, to be delivered in batches of 300,000 pounds monthly, the WPB reported.

The company applied for priority assistance to obtain copper on a plea that without it, the firm would be obliged to discharge part of its employes. Three priority certificates were granted before Talon's prospective copper supply was discovered in October. Some deliveries already had been made but the rest were canceled.

The penalty to be imposed on Talon by the WPB is more technical than real. It denies the firm further priority assistance and cuts its operations for the next months to 40 per cent of normal. However, previous orders, applicable to the entire industry and imposed to save scarce materials, have forbidden the use of copper for zippers and cut the industry to about half of its previous production. Furthermore, a WPB order limiting steel, due to be issued within a few days, is expected to close the industry entirely.

WPB officials had sought to take more punitive action but were unable to do so without at the same time penalizing the company's employes, innocent of any irregularities.

Discrimination Order Issued

claims of contract violations and fines or, in severe cases not involving vital war materials, suspension of the contract.

The committee commended the Majestic Radio Corporation, Chicago, "for its prompt action in correcting discriminatory practice in its hiring." It said H. A. Gates, president, had testified he discharged two supervisory employes when he found charges of discriminatory practices on their part were valid.

Brig. Gen. John C. Beaumont Dies; Retired Marine Officer

Brig. Gen. John Colt Beaumont, United States Marine Corps, retired, a native Washingtonian and former commandant of the Washington Navy Yard Marine Barracks, died yesterday at Navy Hospital in San Diego, Calif., the Navy Department announced.

His death followed an illness extending back to 1939, when he returned to Washington from Shanghai, where he had gone in 1937 to command the Fourth Marines, now fighting in the Philippines. In 1940 he was placed on the retired list.

Gen. Beaumont also commanded the Fourth Marines at Shanghai from 1933 to 1936. In the interim he served a year as general officer in charge of recruiting at Marine Corps Headquarters here and two months as commanding general of the Second Marine Brigade, Fleet Marine Force, San Diego, Calif.

Served in Philippines

Commissioned a second lieutenant February 12, 1900, Gen. Beaumont saw service early in his career in the Philippines, Cuba and the Canal Zone, as well as at sea.

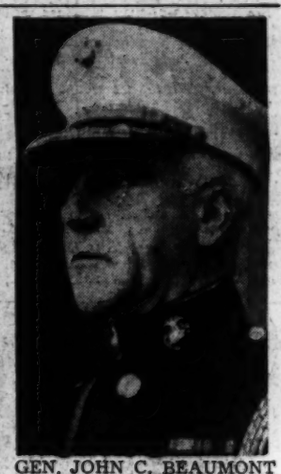
As commander of Company A, Expeditionary Battalion, in Nicaragua, he took part in the bombardment, asault and capture of Coyotepe October 3 and 4, 1912. Two years later he participated in landings at Vera Cruz, Mexico.

Commanding the Seventh Company, Second Regiment, in 1915, he disembarked at Port au Prince, Haiti, and saw action in skirmishes with Haitian rebels.

After a tour at Pearl Harbor during the First World War, Gen. Beaumont served in the Office of Naval Intelligence here in 1920 and from June, 1923, to October, 1925, was fleet Marine officer on the staff of the commander in chief, United States fleet. For two years afterward he was director of the Division of Operations and Training at Marine Corps Headquarters here.

Serving again as fleet marine officer on the commander in chief's staff, he was ordered ashore in Nicaragua in 1928 to command the Western Area and the Battle Fleet Marine Regiment. He was commandant of the Marine Barracks here from June, 1931, until June, 1933, when he was ordered to Shanghai to command the Fourth Marines.

Gen. Beaumont held the Philippine Campaign Medal, Nicaraguan Campaign Medal, Mexican Service Medal, Victory Medal, Marine



GEN. JOHN C. BEAUMONT

He is survived by his second wife, the former Mrs. Helen Ferguson Tucker, of Washington, whom he married in 1937, who resides in San Diego, Calif., and a sister, Mrs. C. C. Cobb, wife of Capt. Cobb, U. S. N., of Annapolis.

WPB's Labor, Management Activity Lauded

Praise for the War Production Board's management-labor committee program to speed war production was expressed last night on the American Forum of the Air broadcast from the Shoreham Hotel. Utilization of small business in the war production program was also emphasized by the speakers discussing "The Democratic Way for Increasing Production."

Participating in the radio debate were Eli L. Oliver, WPB labor relations division; O. C. Cool, director, Labor Relations Institute; Charles Pack, president, Dochler Die Casting Co.; Joseph W. Frazer, president, Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., manufacturers of "Jeeps" and other war machinery.

The management-labor committee program of WPB was described by Oliver as a plan that calls forth the intelligence, the skill, the energy and the enthusiasm of millions of workers in American industry. It gives every opportunity for every man to put in his own ideas and every incentive to drive ahead on his own job, he said.

"Absolutely sound and thoroughly practical" was the picture of the WPB program given by Pack, the die casting official. He said the committees do not conflict with normal functions of either labor or management, but are helpful adjuncts to both. He said that ceilings on wages and profits are "un-American, undemocratic, tend to kill incentive and encourage waste, incompetence and inefficiency."

Small business, and the workers in small business, must be given a greater role in the war effort if we are to attempt increased production in the truly democratic way, insisted Frazer, the Jeep manfacturer. "All the soldiers of industries—and their tools—must be utilized in the cause."

"Voluntary cooperation between management and labor is the real democratic way of increasing the flow of war material to our fighting boys and Allies on the fighting fronts," Cool stressed.

He decried the fact that there are too many workers who feel a lack of confidence in the motives and ability of management, and called upon labor leaders to change these fellings of distrust.

Metal Output Is 6½ Billion

The value of minerals produced in the United States last year was estimated by the Bureau of Mines yesterday at $6,600,000,000, an increase of 16 per cent over 1940, and the highest peak on record since 1929.

"National defense requirements, lend-lease activities, and wartime efforts of the United Nations all stimulated the peak demands for mineral products in 1941," the bureau commented.

Many minerals essential for normal needs and for war uses, such as aluminum, magnesium, zinc, iron ore, natural gasoline, petroleum and coke, were produced last year in quantities never before equaled, the bureau said.

The magnesium output more than doubled that of 1940, bauxite increased 107 per cent, and magnesium ore advanced 89 per cent. Other minerals and mineral products showing large production increases in 1941, and the percentage of increase over the preceding year, were as follows:

Aluminum, 50 per cent; molybdenum, 38; mercury, 16; bituminous coal, 11; anthracite, 6; coke, 13; crude petroleum, 4; zinc, 12; lead, 9, and copper, 8. Shipments of iron ore were up 23 per cent, cement 29 and high grade clays, 31. Production of crude gypsum was 20 per cent higher, lime 20 and stone, 15.

The production of two precious metals declined, with gold down about 0.8 per cent and silver, about 0.4 per cent.

Nazis Forced Back in Libya By Artillery

Cairo, April 12.—The British reported today that the Germans had been forced to withdraw their right flank column operating in No-Man's Land in the desert in Libya and that other forward posts and vehicles near the coast west of Ain El Gazala also had been forced back by artillery fire.

The R. A. F. announced a new attack on Crete airdromes where German Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring has been gathering air forces apparently for a possible Middle Eastern offensive. The results were not announced.

Three German planes were shot down and two others damaged in a formation encountered along the front in Libya, the R. A. F. said. It admitted a loss of seven of its own planes in various operations.

Destroyer Bombed At Malta, Nazis Say

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), April 12 (AP).—Six British planes were shot down in Libya during "lively artillery and patrol activity" in which heavy and light German bombers successfully attacked British communications in the rear, the high command said today.

A destroyer in dock at Malta was hit several times in raids on that British Mediterranean island fortress, and 13 British planes were shot down, the communique added.

Major Libya Offensive Not Expected Now

London, April 12 (AP).—Exchange Telegraph's special corespondent with the British forces in the Middle East reported today that the Axis is "digging in and laying minefields along the Marmarica (Libyan) front, which confirms the impression that a major offensive is not being contemplated, at least for the present."

Casey Arrives In London

London, April 12 (AP).—The American people are determined "to clean up the Pacific business," Richard G. Casey, former Australian Minister to Washington who was recently named British minister of state in the Middle East, said on his arrival today.

"I do not think there are any political divisions in the United States in anything connected with the war," he added.

Casey will confer with Prime Minister Churchill before going to Cairo to assume his new post.

4 U. S. Bombers Ruin Jap Base

Planes Worth $5,000,000 Destroyed in 5 Seconds; Hangars, Docks Left in Flames

International News Service Staff Writer

An Advanced United Nations base, Somewhere in the South Pacific, April 12.—How a number of Japanese planes, conservatively estimated to have cost five million dollars to build, met total destruction in only five seconds of a swift raid by American bombers on an enemy base was revealed to this correspondent today by one of the participating airmen.

This surprise onslaught, which also blasted enemy hangars, docks and runways into flame-swept wreckage, illustrated anew a fact that fliers have come to recognize but which the public generally does not yet realize. That is that the brevity of a raid is no indication of the damage caused.

A cruiser costing millions to construct may be destroyed by bombs in a matter of seconds. Air bombers costing fortunes—even in Japanese yen—may be wiped out with one burst of bombing or firing.

Four Bombers Do It All

The raid of which I was told today was carried out recently by four American bombers. Heading this particular mission was a plane piloted by Lieut. Hoyt Jolly, from Auburn, Ala., and carrying also Robert Miller, from Salt Lake City, as bombardier; Frank Corts, from Albany, N. Y., as copilot, and John Lewis, from Mount Vernon, Wash., as navigator.

Lewis is a small, wiry lad who made a fine scholastic record at the University of Washington. He wants his parents, four brothers and sister to know that he is feeling fine and enjoys "raising hell with the Japs." It was Lewis who told me of the "sudden death" blow at the Japanese base.

"Our mission," he related, "was to destroy the Jap airport, hangars, docks and all the planes possible.

"We reached our target about midday and caught the Japs unawares. The action was so fast that they hadn't time either to get their Zeros (fighters) into the air or their antiaircarft guns firing.

Hangars, Docks Set Afire

"We set their hangars and docks afire, destroyed numberless machines on the ground and tore up the airdrome—all in a few seconds.

"We flew over our target only 500 feet, each plane dropping 20 bombs spaced 50 feet apart.

"Once the objective was reached, my part of the job (navigator) was finished and I had time to enjoy watching the bombing.

"Our wings had some slight damage and we figured that this must have been caused by shrapnel from our own bombs because they were dropped from so low an altitude. One piece of shrapnel dropped at the feet of our rear gunner.

"I was looking down through the bomb hatch and the concussion from our first bomb was so great that I was blown backward.

"We shredded the runways and I could see huge fires blazing on the docks and hangars as we sped homeward.

"I've been over in this part of the world for only two weeks, and that was my first mission.

"It was thrilling and hereafter any prizefights or football games are going to seem awfully tame."

Tax Rise Urged To Curb Inflation

The new tax goal reported by International News Service would replace that on which the House Ways and Means Committee has been holding hearings for several weeks. The current Treasury proposal calls for the raising of 7,600,000,000 dollars through new taxation to cut down the present excess buying power that has resulted from increased income to the public at the same time production of consumer goods has been reduced to expedite war production.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson and certain other officials, like Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, it is said, fear that this situation may touch off an inflationary spiral that will get out of hand, with loss of the war as a possible outcome.

"In my judgment," George declared, "it would not be wise to ask Congress to raise more in taxes than the $7,610,000,000 a year of revenue already asked for by the Treasury.

"If such a request is made, the result, in my opinion, will be only to slow down progress on the tax bill, and it will not cause Congress to raise any more revenue than it will raise anyway.

"I feel that the original Treasury recommendation called for all the additional taxes the country can stand without hampering war production."

Henderson and Eccles are said to be among those who feel that a primary answer to the inflation threat is drastically higher taxes which would siphon income out of the pockets of consumers, and thus cut down the amount of money that will be bidding for goods.

George commented, however, that both Henderson and Eccles had "man-sized jobs to perform," and he intimated that they should give their attention to their jobs, instead of the tax bill.

"We might do better," George said, "if we went ahead with some of the things we are already authorized to do, such as fixing prices. Prices should be fixed at levels prevailing now—not at levels that will prevail a month from now."

Doughton voiced a similar sentiment.

"Let Mr. Henderson go ahead with his price-fixing," he declared. "He was very anxious to get these powers. Now let him use them."

Doughton declared frankly that any proposal to hike taxes above the levels proposed by the Treasury would "upset the apple cart."

"We will do exceedingly well," he declared, "if we raise the $7,610,000,000 originally requested by the Treasury."

Meanwhile, the fight over labor legislation brought from Senator Robert R. Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, a letter to the Enka Rayon Workers' Union of Enka, N. C., which had denounced his stand for legislation to suspend the 40-hour week, the closed shop, outlawing strikes and limiting profits.

Reynolds wrote the union:

"My record reveals that nine times out of ten I have voted favorably to organized labor. Now on the tenth round, when I place my country above the interests of any individual or group (such as yours), and thereby disagree with your labor group, you denounce me as a labor baiter, a Nazi sympathizer and a rat. That is real gratitude.

"Your villainous accusations and condemnations have not shaken my position, nor will they. I shall stand by my guns."

As representatives returned from their home visits, Vinson declared prospects for passage of his substitute bill were improved.

Few Norse Clerics Hold Services

London, April 12.—With Vidkun Quisling's ultimatum to the 1100 Norwegian clergymen who resigned a week ago held in abeyance, Norway's 600 churches were said to be open today, according to Swedish reports.

No services took place, however, except in less than 50 parishes, where Quisling ministers preached to very small congregations.

Blackout Test Will Simulate RaidConditions

Wardens, armed and confidential "incident" instructions covering all the possible happenings in an air raid, will immediately call the air raid control center and tell them what's happening: A make-believe fire here, a ten-foot crater caused by a bomb there, an imaginary man at another location suffering from a broken leg caused by bomb splinters at another point.

Where the "incident" is of a minor nature, the wardens are instructed to handle the situation with their own organization. This was the word passed out to them yesterday at air raid warden headquarters, 1341 Maryland Avenue Northeast, by Col. Lemuel Bolles, civilian defense director.

Col Bolles distributed to the deputy wardens sealed envelopes containing descriptions of make-believe "incidents" and instructed the deputies to pass the envelopes on to wardens whom they could trust not to open them until the actual warning has sounded.

During the test, when the warden opens the envelope, he is on his own, Bolles said. Whether the "incident" is serious enough for a call to the control center, thus bringing into play one of a number of emergency services, is up to the warden to decide. Col. Bolles indicated that tomorrow's blackout will afford not only a test of the communications system in handling the "incident" calls, but a test as well of the wardens' good judgment and common sense.

The civilian defense director warned that the test "will fall short if anybody short-cuts it," and, in recalling that there have been no large-scale blackouts where somebody didn't get killed, pleaded: "Emphasize the deadly seriousness of this thing all along the line!"

Meantime, the police will be cooperating fully and waiting for the real "incidents." In Washington, all of the approximately 1600 members of the regular force and the 3700 auxiliary policemen will be mobilized for duty. They are urged by Superintendent Edward J. Kelly to exercise "patience and good judgment."

The same situation will prevail in all of the nearby Maryland and Virginia sections, which are a part of the metropolitan defense area and are cooperating fully in the blackout test.

After Col. Bolles had addressed the District air-raid wardens yesterday, Chief Warden Clement Murphy, reporting he had been unaware of Bolles' "incident" envelopes, said he had also prepared some "incidents" of his own which will be used along with the others in simulating emergency conditions.

Chief Murphy sharply attacked a survey made by a group of women working in the information service of the civilian mobilization division, Metropolitan O. C. D. The information group, headed by Mrs. William Galvin, had made sample telephone calls to find out how many people in Washington believed there would be an air raid here, how many had been visited by their wardens, etc.

Purpose of the questions was not explained, but Mrs. Galvin, who went through a 20-minute session with Murphy and the deputies, assured them the service was at their disposal, if they wanted it—if not, it would be dropped.

National Hotel To Be Razed if Use Is Found for Site

The old National Hotel, one of the District's landmarks, will be torn down if the U. S. O. or some similar organization desires to use the site, it was learned last night.

The Commissioners recently offered the structure at Pennsylvania Avenue and Sixth Street Northwest to the U. S. O. for use in housing troops here on weekend visits, but the Fire and Health Departments, regarding the buildings as a menace, ruled against such use of the old hostelry, tenanted by some of the Capital's most colorful figures in days gone by.

The District acquired the building about ten years ago, when land was being bought for the Municipal Center. It will not be sold, it was said last night, but if an acceptable organization makes application for use of the site, demolition bids will be asked and the structure razed.

The Nazis in Germany, says the bulletin, were prepared, too. While they were only "a small minority," declared the hidden Soci leaders, the Nazis "had secret members in vital key spots all over Germany . . . They simply TOOK leadership . . ."

If they obey the leadership, Socis in America will "keep national headquarters informed of any unusual developments" in their communities. "Train yourself to be a good intelligence officer," says the leadership in the special bulletin of last week, adding:

WARNING—To District memberships. Do not neglect your arsenals. Buy arms and keep them in a place where they are readily accessible. No immediate emergency forseen but there is no time to prepare like NOW. Also keep a plentiful supply of ammunition and do not let it become over a year old or it will deteriorate.

The identity of one of the Socis is no longer a secret. This is George W. Christians, Chattanooga, Tenn., who mailed out bulletins of the Social Republic Society. These included "Tactics," "The Facts About Fascism" and "Democracy," by David Baxter, who calls it "unbridled majority rule" and prefers a "republic."

Christian is now in jail, on a charge of sedition preferred by the specific order of Attorney General Biddle. He is accused of preaching defeatism to soldiers.

The special grand jury is pressing investigation of the financial support and Congressional connections of defeatist papers and organizations, some of which are suspected of enemy inspiration, or control.

Besides Hoffman, persons connected with half a dozen other groups and publications are due to be questioned today by Special Prosecutor William Power Maloney.

Red Guns Halt German Tank Push in South

thwarted Nazi tank counterattack supported by heavy artillery. In two days of fighting on another sector of this front a single Soviet infantry unit reported slaying more than 300 Nazis.

As for the general situation, the Moscow communique repeated the familiar phrase that "nothing of importance" took place during the day.

Tank Push Shattered

Kuibyshev, April 12 (U.P.)—Russian artillerymen have shattered 12 successive German tank attacks in the south on the road to the oil-rich Caucasus, destroying "dozens" of tanks and killing 1000 enemy troops, the Soviet press reported tonight.

Time after time the mechanized waves of Adolf Hitler's spring offensive broke under the fire of the Soviet gunners, the Russians said, until the massed enemy strength was beaten so effectively that the tattered German remnants finally fell back in disorder.

(Signs multiplied that Hitler's new offensive in Russia was being focused on the Southern Front in a full scale grab for the rich Caucasian oil fields. The German high command reported renewed attacks by strong Soviet tank and air forces on the Kerch Peninsula across the narrow water gap from the Caucasus. It said German bombers attacked harbor facilities on the Caucasian Coast and damaged a 7000-ton passenger steamer used as a barracks by Soviet naval troops. Other ships were damaged and large fires started in storehouses and on the quays, the Germans said.

(London commentators said the reported German bombing of the Caucasian Coast likely was a desperate attempt to cut Soviet lines to the Crimea, which has been supplied for months by sea. Both Moscow and Berlin acknowledged that some of the heaviest fighting of the war was going on in the Kerch Peninsula, where, a Russian spokesman said, "the fate of this front probably will be decided within the next two weeks.")

Won't Hinder War Effort, Nehru Says

the Island of Ceylon and a Bay of Bengal area where Japanese naval and air forces already have delivered stiff blows to the British.

Nehru is supposed to have been one of a minority in the Congress Party's working committee which unavailingly favored acceptance of a British compromise offer which would have given India postwar dominion status and an interim government of Indians but would have left the British in direct military control.

Britain's special envoy and war cabinet member, Sir Stafford Cripps, who withdrew the British offer yesterday upon final refusal by the Congress Party (Hindu) and the Moslem League, representing the strongest minority of India, was en route home.

"Not Ging to Surrender"

Nehru spoke today as though India would conduct defense efforts of her own.

"I hope that the All-India Congress committee at its meeting in a fortnight's time will consider the problem and tell us what to do about it," he said.

"We are not going to surrender to the invader, just as we have not given in to the British in the last 22 years."

Asked about a scorched earth policy for India (which Mohandas K. Gandhi has disapproved) if Japan attempts invasion, Nehru said, "I do not agree with Mr. Gandhi."

Doesn't Trust British Policy

"I do not doubt that if I were the national government I would burn and destroy everything that would help the enemy, not caring whose private property it was.

"But I am afraid the British government, as constituted today, if it follows the policy is going to follow it in a wrong, perverted way, thinking partly of hampering the Japanese but of hampering India a great deal.

"I am therefore not prepared to trust their scorched-earth policy."

Asked for his reaction to the possibility of an army coming into India under Subhas Chandra Bose, former Congress Party left leader who is now an exiled propagandist in Axis countries, Nehru said "any force that may come from the outside really comes as a dummy force under Japanese control."

But he admitted that such a device might help the invader by giving some Indians a "mistaken notion."

Saying that Indians might have to take up guerilla warfare, he disclosed that the Congress Party had started some time ago a program of organizing "regional, self-sufficient units which would carry on even though rail and motor transport failed."

452 More Firms Put on Blacklist For Aiding Enemy

The Government yesterday added 452 firms and individuals in Latin America and European neutral countries to its already lengthy blacklist.

The State Department named 342 firms and individuals in the other American republics and 110 others in Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey as acting for the benefit of the enemy and with which United States citizens are forbidden to trade.

There are now approximately 7500 firms and individuals in these countries on the United States blacklist.

Marine Risk Insurance Measure Broadened

A measure broadening the authority of the United States Maritime Commission to write marine war risk insurance was signed into law Saturday by President Roosevelt.

The changes in the law will permit the commission to write insurance on foreign vessels carying cargo in which the United States Government has an interest, as well as domestic ships.

Leaders Hail U.S.O. as Its Chiefs Meet to Plan Funds Drive

fiung activities, McNutt expressed the belief that "wholesome relaxation and friendly companionship" are what 99 out of 100 soldiers want and declared:

"A disillusioned Army, a cynical Nation, never won a war."

Undersecretary of War Patterson told the conference that it had the 100 per cent support of the War Department.

"Armies do not live by gunpowder alone," he said. "The life of an Army is made up of the lives of its men. Make those lives rich and active, with plenty of recreation when the soldiers are off duty, and you will have twice as good an Army when it is at work."

Naval Undersecretary Forrestal said that in attempting to fill the gap in the life of the sailor, soldier or marine caused by his sudden transition to military service, the U. S. O. performs something that cannot be accomplished by either the Red Cross or the Navy Relief Society.

Reporting the U. S. O. was operating 428 clubs for soldiers and sailors in 305 communities located in 43 States and 9 foreign bases, U. S. O. President Sibley called the organization "a great venture of faith in a field of unlimited personal service to our boys in uniform. It is also the living demonstration of cooperative action in which are united Catholic, Jew and Protestant. It is a great expression of good will by the people of America."

New Minimum Pay Scale Due For Railroaders

L. Metcalfe Walling, Wage-Hour Administrator, announced yesterday that a new study will be made of economic conditions within the railroad carrier industry with a view to recommending new minimum wage scales, not exceeding 40 cents an hour.

Maintenance-of-way workers will benefit principally from any increase in the present minimum of 36 cents an hour for trunkline employes and 33 cents for shortline employes. There are about 60,000 trunkline and 4000 shortline employes. A previous study resulted in increases March 1, 1941, from the former 30-cent statutory minimum.

A committee named by Walling to make the study will convene in New York April 28, with George E. Osborne of Stanford University as chairman.

Public members, in addition to Osborne, are Charles S. Johnson, Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn.; William Homer Spencer, University of Chicago; Arthur D. Hill, sr., Boston. Employe members are George Wright, Chicago; T. C. Carroll, Jacksonville, Fla.; H. A. Bacus, Cincinnati, and George Brown, New York. Employer members are H. E. Jones, New York; Edward Murrin, Chicago; J. H. Huntt, and A. J. Bier, both of Washington, D. C.

Ceylon Under Attack, Nazis Say

New York, April 12 (U.P.)—The Berlin radio, quoting the British Broadcasting Corporation, said tonight that a strong Japanese aerial attack "is now in progress" on the island of Ceylon.

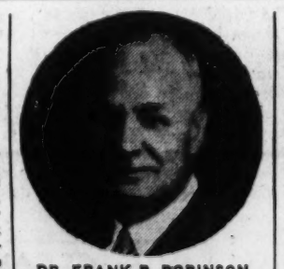
"I TALKED WITH GOD"

(Yes I Did - Actually and Literally)

and as a result of that little talk with God, a strange Power came into my life. After 42 years of horrible, dismal, sickening failure, everything took on a brighter hue. It's fascinating to talk with God, and it can be done very easily once you learn the secret. And when you do—well—there will come into your life the same dynamic Power which came into mine. The shackles of defeat and fear which bound me for years, went a-shimmering — and now? — well, I am President of the News Review Publishing Company, which corporation publishes the largest circulating afternoon daily in North Idaho. I own the largest office building in my City. I drive two beautiful cars, I own my own home which has a lovely pipe-organ in it, and my family are abundantly provided for after I'm gone. And all this has been made possible because, one day, about twelve years ago, I actually and literally talked with God.

You too may experience that strange mystical Power which comes from talking with God,



DR. FRANK B. ROBINSON
Founder "Psychiana," Moscow, Idaho

and when you do, if there is poverty, unrest, unhappiness, ill-health, or material lack in your life, well—this same Power is able to do for you what it did for me. No matter how useless or how helpless your life seems to be—all this can be changed. For this is not a human power I'm talking about—it's a God-Power. And there are no limtations to the God-Power, are there? Of course not. You probably would like to know how you, too, may talk with God, so that this same Power which brought these good things to me, might come into your life too. I have written the strange, almost unbelievable story in two booklets, and I have given away literally millions of copies of them. As a matter of fact, the story has been told in 67 foreign countries, and in every city, town, village and hamlet in America. It has been written up by such outstanding periodicals as Time, Newsweek, Magazine Digest, and scores of other internationally-known publications.

I want to give you these two booklets. I want to give you also illustrated circulars, and copies of letters which tell what is being accomplished all over the world through this new strange Teaching. If you will send me your name and address on a post-card or in a letter, these two booklets will come to you free of charge. This experience may sound unbelievable, but it's true or I wouldn't tell you it was. The address is Dr. Frank B. Robinson, Dept. 514, Moscow, Idaho.

★ ★ ★ THERE'S REAL POWER HERE ★ ★ ★

"Psychiana" is a non-profit religious corporation. The Movement was born in Moscow, Idaho in 1918. It is internationally known as the largest religious Movement in the world operating entirely by mail. Our conception of God is positive and dynamic. Over 150,000 unsolicited letters have been received, each telling what has been accomplished through this new Power which is the Spirit of God. The sole aim of this Movement is to bring to all men and women consciousness of the fact that the most dynamic Power on the earth today is the Power of God. This Power is very real. You may know what it can do for you. All preliminary and explanatory information is free. Requests for booklets filed in order received. Copyright, 1940, Psychiana, Inc., Moscow, Idaho.

Cornerstone For Bradbury Church Laid

With Methodist Resident Bishop Adna Wright Leonard wielding the first trowel, the cornerstone of the Bradbury Heights Methodist Church's new home was laid yesterday afternoon at Bowen Road and Alabama Avenue Southeast. The exercises were held near the present church building.

As the services began, the Rev. Thomas B. Ehlers, pastor of the congregation, conducted the cornerstone ritual and exhibited the cornerstone box, in which were placed, among other things: A Bible, minutes of the Baltimore Methodist Annual Conference, church pages of The Washington Post with a story and picture of the groundbreaking and announcements of the 'stone laying, a copy of the Methodist Discipline, and several coins minted in 1942.

The Rev. Dr. Harry Evaul, pastor of Epworth Methodist Church and a former Methodist District superintendent, brought greetings from the Washington Districts in place of the Rev. Dr. Horace E. Cromer, who was ill.

Harold L. Walters, United States Navy bandsman, led the congregational singing for the ceremonies, and the Rev. Edgar W. Beckett, pastor of Hyattsville First Methodist Church and former pastor of the Bradbury Heights Church, read the Scripture. The Rev. Richard D. Ames, associate pastor, offered a prayer.

The building committee for the new project includes B. Frank Smith, Harold L. Walters, Henry J. Beahm, George E. Norton, J. Lloyd Ridgely and Elmer A. Pierce.

Milk Market Action Due Tomorrow

With prices of milk or cream—possibly both—due for an almost certain increase May 1, the Agriculture Department tomorrow will take the next step toward amending the Federal marketing order.

Tomorrow is the deadline for the filing of exceptions to the amendments proposed a week ago by Roy F. Hendrickson, Agricultural Marketing Administrator. The most controversial one is his plan to put fluid milk and cream into a single class, as far as producer prices are concerned.

Designed to increase dairy farmers' revenue without necessitating a rise in the retail cost of milk, the scheme would keep milk at the same producer-price level as at present, but provide for an approximately 50 per cent boost in the price dairies must pay farmers for cream.

Producers and handlers alike are reportedly opposed to the idea but none was willing to discuss it yesterday, pending the filing of formal exceptions. These will be taken into consideration by Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard, who will issue an amended marketing order.

To become effective, the order must be ratified by two-thirds of the 1500 farmers supplying this milkshed and 50 per cent—by volume of business—of the distributing dairies.

Industrial Income Rises 160%

By the United Press

The Federal Reserve Board reported last night that net income of 245 American industrial and mining concerns after all charges and before Federal taxes increased 160 per cent from 1939 to 1941.

The increase after Federal taxes was about 40 per cent, it was stated.

Net income for 152 large industrial companies surveyed by the board was reported to be nearly 30 per cent larger in 1941 than in 1940. Dividend payments rose less than 6 per cent. The board said in its "review of the month" that a substantial portion of the income was earmarked for Federal income and excess profits taxes and additional funds went into large inventories and working capital.

'1942's Debutante No. 1'

Oona O'Neill, 16-year-old daughter of Eugene O'Neill, the playwright, has been voted "Debutante No. 1" of the 1942 season. She was chosen by a committee of prominent artists and illustrators in a contest at a New York night club. She has brown eyes, stands 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds

Defense First Line Is Gospel, Evangelist Fuller Declares

Filling almost every seat in the Uline Arena, 9000 worshipers of 30 denominations yesterday heard the Rev. Charles E. Fuller, noted radio evangelist, call for America to gird its spiritual defenses. A like number attended last night, and many were turned away.

"Our first line of defense is the Gospel and not arms or ammunition, as important as the latter are," shouted Evangelist Fuller through the "mike" on the rostrum.

His address was punctuated with pungent phrases such as "Sanitation without salvation is damnation."

About half-way in the program, Evangelist Fuller interrupted his talk, and turning to his wife behind him on the platform, said, "Honey, I almost forgot to introduce you."

It was an old-fashioned revival, with the crowd shaking the rafters with such gospel favorites as "Shall We Gather At The River?" "Beulah Land" and "What a Friend."

F. Carleton Booth, widely known Boston song leader, came down to conduct the singing, and by way of getting the crowd in a congenial mood, asked them to shake each other's hands with a warmth that "would melt the ice in the arena."

Also from Boston were the piano accompanists—Mrs. Alfred Cahlout and Samuel Walter, professor of music at Gordon College.

Booth also led a mixed choir of singers from local churches in special selections.

Seated on the platform with the Fullers were ministers from 50 local churches, including members of the local committee that arranged the services.

That committee consisted of Glenn W. Wagner, president of the Washington Bible Institute; the Rev. C. E. Hawthorne, pastor of the Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Dr. Gove P. Johnson, of the National Baptist Church; the Rev. John M. Ballbach, assistant pastor of Metropolitan Baptist Church; William S. Jones, Ralph A. Davis and August F. Ballbach. William S. Bond, another committee member, was out of town.

White-jacketed men from about 100 local and nearby churches served as ushers for the meetings.

Mr. Fuller has the largest evangelist broadcast in the Nation, known as the old-fashioned revival hour, which is heard over more than 400 stations on the Mutual Network and affiliated stations.

Hunting Yanks Set Firing Record In Tank Practice

With United States Forces in Northern Ireland, April 12 (AP).—A couple of bird hunters have set one of the best firing records thus far established by United States soldiers on a Northern Ireland tank target range.

Corpls. Harold Hogfoss, of Austin, Minn., and Leroy Agness, of Minneapolis, each at the sights of a 37-mm. antitank rifle, were sending their shots through the rocking tank silhouette even before they had fired three rounds.

They earned the praises of their commanding officers in the artillery unit.

All the men in the unit have been practicing for a week on an indoor range with .22-caliber rifles mounted like antitank guns.

Capt. C. E. Streitz, of Minneapolis, said they like to do that during their evenings almost as well as they like to bowl at home and there were almost nightly competitions.

Gambling Expose Shames LaGuardia

New York, April 12.—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, declaring that he and his administration had been "shamed" by the revelation of gambling graft in the police department, lashed out today at the magistrates, charging that they contributed to the breakdown of police morale by abusing officers who brought in gambling cases.

Chief Magistrate Henry H. Curran said tonight that the mayor had never complained to him of any laxity by the magistrates in their handling of gambling cases.

D. C. Boys Club Plans Tribute To MacArthur

The Boys' Club of Washington yesterday released a summary of its 1941 activities and announced a week-long series of events, including a tribute to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, to be presented April 13-19 as part of its observance of National Boys' Club Week.

"MacArthur Day" is scheduled for Saturday, April 18, at 4 p. m. when members will meet at the club's Eastern branch, Seventeenth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Southeast. There a scroll inscribed with a message to the hero of Bataan will be presented to a War Department representative. Later, the scroll's message will be radioed to Gen. MacArthur through the cooperation of the War Department.

Other events planned for the observance include:

Monday, April 13—City-wide freckles contest, and an exhibit of arts and crafts in the Central Club.

Tuesday, April 14—Table tennis finals.

Wednesday, April 15—Selection of "healthiest boys" in four age classes.

Thursday, April 16—Golden jubilee dinner in the C Street Branch, celebrating more than 50 years of service to Washington by the Boys' Club.

Friday, April 17—Official opening of the new craft shop at the Georgetown Branch.

Saturday, April 18—Pet show at the Georgetown Branch, and a "victory prom" at 9 p. m. in the Central Branch.

Charles M. Fyfe, managing director of the club, said last night he had reported a total activities attendance of 703,985 in his 1941 report to the local group's parent organization, the Boys' Clubs of America.

During 1941, Fyfe said, the club taught 1237 boys to swim; gave physical examinations to 1948 and, through its three branch organizations, placed 64 basketball teams, 71 baseball teams and 40 football teams in District competition.

Attendance at the library during the year was 65,200 and staff members held 2322 conferences with boys.

For the eleventh consecutive year, the club operated on a balanced budget, its operating revenue including $85,201.73 derived from the Community Chest and $7,106.51 from other sources.

C. I. O. Press Aides See Campaign To 'Smear' Labor

Full cooperation by all sections of labor with Government and industry in the war effort was pledged yesterday by editors and publicity directors of the Congress of Industrial Organizations meeting here in the Ambassador Hotel.

At the same time, the C. I. O. press representatives attacked what they charged was an "antilabor propaganda campaign," which "if not directly inspired by Axis agents and American appeasers, at any rate plays their game by striking at national unity and undermining labor morale."

They urged the development of an "influential people's press," which they said would offset the control of the daily press by wealthy financial and business interests which are largely responsible "for its frequent antilabor attitudes."

State Societies Plan 6 Events For This Week

Dr. Edward Campion Acheson, associate professor of finance at George Washington University, will address the Eastern Shore Society today at 7 p. m. in the Cairo Hotel, 1615 Q Street Northwest, in the first of a series of social events planned this week by six State societies here.

"Is Victory for Sale?" will be the subject of Dr. Acheson's address and all former residents of the Delmarva Peninsula now residing here are invited to hear him.

Wednesday evening the Nebraska State Society will open its 1942 season with a dance and card party at the Shoreham Hotel with Nebraskans now in the armed forces as their special guests. Committees include Mrs. Ralph Van Orsdel and Mrs. Harry B. Coffee, dancing; Hazel Gant and Mrs. James M. Souby, card party; Lawrence Mottson and Lora Power, entertainment; Eleanor Johnson and Lyle O'Rourke, masters of ceremony, and Robert Shields, tickets. Arrangements are being made to accommodate 1500 guests and all Nebraskans, whether members of the society or not, are invited to attend.

Also on tap for Wednesday is the sixth annual running of the "Kentucky Derby" at "Willard Downs," to be sponsored by the Kentucky Society in the grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel, which will be transformed into a replica of the stretch at Churchill Downs. Dancing will be enjoyed from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m.

On Thursday night, the Society of Virginia will mark the birthday anniversaries of Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe with a program in the Willard Hotel, where dancing will be enjoyed following an address by Senator Lister Hill, of Alabama. Judge Walter T. McCarthy, president of the society, will preside.

The annual Patriot's Day dance of Massachusetts Society will be held Friday evening at 10 o'clock in the Wardman Park Hotel. The affair will be the concluding event of the society's post-Easter socials.

Winding up the week will be the spring dance of the Iowa State Society Saturday night at 10 o'clock in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel and a breakfast at noon Sunday in the Roosevelt Hotel. Vice President and Mrs. Wallace have accepted invitations to the latter affair, it was stated. All Iowans are invited to both the dance and breakfast, reservations for which may be made with the secretary, Miss Gertrude M. Louis, Decatur 0800.

'Dutch' Irwin, Former Gambler, Kills Himself

Morris E. (Dutch) Irwin, 55, one-time big-shot District gambler who "went straight," police said, after serving 2½ years in Lorton Prison, yesterday shot himself to death at his home, 2704 Twenty-seventh Street Northwest.

Irwin was found by his wife, Virginia, his body crumpled in a chair in his bedroom about 7 a. m.

Mrs. Irwin told police her husband had been suffering severely from rheumatism and that he feared becoming a paralytic.

A police raid in October, 1935, on Irwin's race-horse betting establishment in the 1100 block of Fourteenth Street Northwest brought to a close his career as one of the District's big-time gamblers. Irwin and six associates were convicted in February, 1936, of operating a gaming establishment.

After an unsuccessful appeal from the conviction, Irwin was sent to Lorton in February, 1937, to serve a two-to-six-year sentence. He was paroled July 12, 1939, and, according to police, never went back to "the racket." Recently he had been employed as a clerk at Fort Myer.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE PRODUCTION FRONT!

★ General Motors Is In Mass Production On Important War Materials!

★ Production Is Going Up and Costs To The Government Are Coming Down!

★ The Same Engineering Knowledge, Mass Production Technique and "Know-How" That Produced High Quality Automobiles and Trucks by the Millions Have Now Been Successfully Applied to the Production of Aviation Engines, Navy Diesel Engines, Tanks, Guns, Airplane Parts and Ammunition.

★ General Motors Has Undertaken the Production of More Than 10% of Our Country's Requirements of All War Materials Fabricated From Metal.

Here's the Way We Went at the Job—

Starting in June, 1940, When the Government Initiated the Defense Program, General Motors Adopted These Policies:

1. Active cooperation with our Government in planning the production of war products—acceptance of trial orders—engineering cooperation—and mass production of such products for which we have or can get necessary production equipment.

2. Endeavor to obtain contracts for the more complicated war materials in the production of which the corporation's engineering and manufacturing experience will be of greatest value to the country.

3. Since General Motors' capacity for the manufacture of metal products is about 10% of the country's capacity, endeavor to get orders and plan to produce at least this same percentage of the country's requirements for this type of war material.

4. Obtain orders for war products for every plant city and every plant. Allot the production where it can be produced with the greatest efficiency and the least new floor space and machinery.

5. Solicit and accept contracts of any type proposed by Government agencies—competitive bids—cost plus fixed fee—fixed price with provision for renegotiation after cost and production experience.

6. Sub-contract component parts for all war materials to dependable and competent contractors who have equipment that can be used to produce such parts.

7. Utilize existing buildings and equipment to the limit. Request new facilities from the Government only when absolutely necessary.

After Pearl Harbor, This Additional Policy Was Adopted:

8. Any machines or materials General Motors now has and cannot use in its war production will be made available to any other manufacturer who can use them in war production.

Here's What We Have Accomplished—

CONTRACTS IN HAND FOR WAR PRODUCTS

One-third of the machine guns.
More than one-third of the army trucks.
More than half of the navy's Diesel engines.
Two-fifths of the aviation engines.
More than one-fourth of the tanks.
Three separate types of complete airplanes.
Numerous parts for planes produced by others.
Guns and gun parts of many sizes. From 30 calibre to 5 inch.
Shells and cartridge cases.

Over 1,000 Orders and Contracts for War Materials.

SHIPMENTS OF WAR PRODUCTS

|---|---|
| 1941—First quarter | $56,619,168 |
| Second quarter | 75,180,914 |

EMPLOYMENT ON WAR WORK

|---|---|
| Factory workers—Skilled tool and die employees | 13,689 |
| Others | 121,574 |
| | 135,263 |
| Engineers, process men, tool designers, supervisors, factory clerks, accountants and managers | 35,335 |
| Total working on war products | 170,598 |

Total employment on war production by October will be greater than total employment on both commercial and war work was in 1941. This time next year it will be 50% above our previous peak employment.

FACILITIES ON WAR WORK

71 plants working on war work
14 plants being retooled for war work.
3 plants leased to other producers.
5 plants awaiting completion of negotiations of contracts.
8 new plants under construction or negotiation.
54,873 machine tools working or being rebuilt or retooled for war production.
16,950 not adapted for our war work and made available to other war material contractors.

SOME OF THE MAJOR WAR MATERIALS WE ARE PRODUCING

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|

MANY OF THESE PRODUCTS ARE BEING EXHIBITED IN FORMER AUTOMOBILE SHOWROOMS IN THE GENERAL MOTORS BUILDING, DETROIT, MICHIGAN

PRODUCTION FOR VICTORY IS OUR JOB

General Motors is already far enough into the war production job to have demonstrated that our American production methods and our American ways of doing business will out-produce our Axis enemies.

Price reductions of many millions of dollars have been made to the Government on contracts as lower costs have been achieved. Similar price reductions will continue to be made as long as conditions permit the same aggressive and uninterrupted action that has been going on in past months.

The entire General Motors organization—workmen and management alike—is dedicated to the single purpose of producing more tanks, airplanes, army trucks, engines, guns and ammunition to help win this war.

Big City, More Funds

There is just one basic fact to be kept in mind as the House Subcommittee on District Appropriations begins work on the local supply bill for the next fiscal year. The budget, as sent to Congress, is a relic of the pre-war era. It was formulated last fall when the District Commissioners could not possibly have foreseen what the requirements of this wartime Capital will be in the fiscal year 1943. The Commissioners have attempted to bring the budget up to date by submitting revised estimates reported to raise the total by about two million dollars. Whether or not this sum will be sufficient to enable the District to meet its wartime responsibilities is a question demanding careful scrutiny.

In any event, the subcommittee ought to realize that the city has undergone revolutionary changes since its last appropriation bill was passed. With Government employes pouring into Washington at the rate of several thousand a week, it will be a city of nearly 1,000,000 population in the year for which this appropriation will be made. To ignore the necessity of protecting this expanded metropolis against disease, crime and intolerable congestion would be a poor service to the cause of the fighting democracies. We hope that the Appropriations Subcommittee as well as the House itself will take full cognizance of the greatly increased demands upon the city in this era of rapidly rising prices.

Withholding Taxes

Senator George, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, thinks that the adoption of some form of compulsory saving is not far off. When that time comes, he suggests, a withholding tax of not over 5 per cent "at the start" should be imposed on wages, salaries, dividends and interest, with provision for return of these payments after the war.

It is important to distinguish between this kind of levy, which is a form of forced loan to the Government, and the kind of withholding tax which Secretary Morgenthau has urged the Ways and Means Committee to incorporate in the pending revenue bill. The latter tax in itself would take nothing additional from our pockets and has nothing at all to do with any system of compulsory saving. Indeed, Mr. Morgenthau is strongly opposed to introduction of compulsory saving at present. What the Treasury is now recommending is simply a change in the method of collecting part of the income tax by having the amount due withheld at the source, as is done by the employer under the existing old-age insurance system.

The Treasury's tax adviser, Randolph Paul, has explained this proposed withholding system in considerable detail. It would entail a good deal of bookkeeping trouble for employers, who would have to retain and transmit to the Treasury the sums withheld from employes. Furthermore, wage earners would still have to file complete returns at the end of the year, paying any additional sums that might be due the Treasury, or receiving refunds as the case might be. On the other hand, the withholding system would have the great advantage of compelling taxpayers to spread their payments throughout the year, instead of being confronted by large lump-sum payments on quarterly collection dates. This year many taxpayers had to borrow to meet the increased income taxes—taxes which millions paid for the first time. Next year, with these debts handicapping them and probably with even higher taxes to pay, some borrowers may find themselves in desperate straits, unless meantime the Government has stepped in to compel them to provide systematically throughout the year for payment of future taxes.

The Treasury as well as the taxpayer benefits from the withholding tax, because it provides for a steadier flow of revenue, helps to stabilize consumer buying, and thus to check inflationary price increases. We disapprove Secretary Morgenthau's suggestion that he be permitted to begin collecting income taxes at the source up to 10 per cent on 1942 incomes, at any time "within his discretion." But it is certainly none too soon to be laying plans for a shift to withholding taxes well in advance of March, 1943, when the first payments on 1942 incomes fall due.

Double Standard

One of our correspondents whose letter appears today charges us with inconsistency. He complains that, on the one hand, we have opposed a fixed limit on profits as destructive of the incentive to economize, and, on the other hand, objected to time-and-a-half rates for overtime on the ground that the incentive of extra pay is not needed to make men work longer hours. A similar criticism of our stand appears in the C. I. O. News for April 6 under the heading "Double Standard." It says "The Washington Post one day editorializes against profit limitation on grounds that industry must have an 'incentive' to produce. A few days later the same paper favors slashing wages for overtime after 40 hours, saying labor should need no incentive, since the war should be incentive enough."

We are delighted to have an opportunity to explain and defend our position against these charges of inconsistency. When we say that a fixed limit on profits impairs the "incentive" to efficient economical management, we are simply stating a fact. We are not pleading the cause of the businessman, rich or poor. But every level-headed person knows that men who invest their money in business enterprise take risks of loss in the hope of obtaining extra gains. When all gains beyond a limited return are taken by the tax collector, the financial inducement (incentive) to cut costs and thus earn larger profits will be weakened.

We do not say this is an admirable trait of human nature. On the contrary, it is evidence of a kind of human weakness of which we had abundant proof during the last war, when firms evaded excess profits taxes by making extravagant outlays for all sorts of nonessentials, and charging them to expense.

It has also to be remembered that the man who owns capital is not compelled to risk the loss of his money by engaging in business. Instead he may decide to buy Government bonds or other safe securities that yield small but sure returns. As a matter of fact, that is just what countless owners of capital are doing today because the rewards of business risk-taking, after deduction of taxes, are not large enough to be attractive. In short, under a private capitalistic system in which a man has a choice of investment opportunities, he must either be given some incentive to engage in business or he won't play ball.

The situation is quite different in case of the salaried man and wage earner. He works in order to live. If he quits working, his income ceases and disaster overtakes him. His reward may not always be adequate, but, whether great or small, it constitutes an incentive to labor. Of course, there is a point beyond which a man may not choose to work for more pay, or a point beyond which he rightly rebels against working. But the men who are working overtime today in our war industries have not reached those limits. All we have maintained is that workers do not have to be paid premium rates in order to induce them to stay on the job more than 40 hours weekly. Those who do so, for pay at regular rates, are being given a very substantial incentive to prolong their labors.

Perhaps we were overoptimistic in asserting that the war itself was its own incentive to work longer than 40 hours. That is immaterial, however, in view of the fact that labor has a financial incentive to work longer hours even if time and a half rates are dropped. Labor's position in this respect is not analogous to that of an employer lacking financial incentive to increase his efficiency.

We have consistently urged equality of sacrifice in so far as that is possible in an industrial society in which there is inequality of income, of individual capacity, and of opportunity. Profits should be taxed severely, but not so severely as to hamper our industrial operations. Labor, likewise, should make its contribution to the war effort by foregoing some of the extra pay and extra bonuses that were never designed as production incentives, but really intended to serve as work-spreading devices. That is all we contend, and that is not asking for a double standard for rich and poor, but simple justice for all.

Diverting Air Liners

The War Department's announcement that the Army air forces will take over approximately 25 per cent of the domestic commercial air liners comes as no surprise. Even before we entered the war, the Army was hard up for transport planes to carry military cargoes and personnel. From time to time the air lines diverted to Army use not only planes already operating on commercial routes but also new planes on order. Yet the department's announcement makes it clear that such diversion, while useful, did not keep pace with expanding military requirements.

The current diversion of some 85 air liners, in addition to more than 30 already placed at the Army's disposition, brings up more emphatically than ever the question of air-line operations in wartime. The War Department has taken pains to point out that civil air transportation is vital to the war effort and that further reductions of air-line equipment are not contemplated at the moment. This is, in effect, an admission that the new diversion is considered as drastic as it could be, consistent with the Army's declared intention of preserving essential air-line services.

Yet it is a fact that military transport requirements will continue to mount in the months ahead. If new transports do not become available as rapidly as is expected, there will be no other recourse for the Army but to turn once again to the air lines for help. This being a distinct possibility, even a probability, it might be the better part of wisdom to start restricting civilian air travel now. Some officials believe that sooner or later all civilian air travel not connected with the war must be eliminated. But whether they are right or wrong, the sensible thing to do, in view of Army needs, is to find out whether the new 25 per cent diversion really leaves the air lines with an irreducible minimum of planes.

India's No

In his eloquent and moving broadcast to the people of India on the eve of his departure for Great Britain, Sir Stafford Cripps took upon himself all the blame for the failure of his negotiations with Indian leaders regarding India's future political status. But public opinion in the United Nations will not blame him for the tragic debacle at New Delhi. He did as well as anyone could have done under the circumstances and full deserves the warm words of praise which Winston Churchill has addressed to him.

The responsibility for the failure of the negotiations must be placed squarely at the doors of the All-India Congress Party, the most important political body in India. Its leaders have made it clear to the world that they are men deficient in statesmanship, lacking in realism, petty when the situation demands largeness of spirit, confused in mind when straight-thinking is called for.

It is this circumstance which suggests that the Anglo-Indian negotiations cannot altogether be written off as a dead loss. Never again can it be said that England's policy is to hold the Indian people in subjection. Never again will the Indian leaders, who have enjoyed a reputation in this country far beyond their deserts, be able to claim that they and they alone represent the wishes and aspirations of the Indian people.

Reduced to its fundamentals, the British offer gave India all that the Indian Nationalists have long been demanding. It gave India complete and unconditional self-government, that status to come into being immediately after the close of the war. But India is not one country; it is many. There is the India of the Hindu and the India of the Moslem, there is British India which has steadily been moving on the road to self-rule and the India of the princes where, in some instances, feudal regimes still obtain. The British plan tried to reconcile these conflicting interests. In detail it may not have been an ideal plan. Its virtues and its imperfections could only have been tested on the touchstone of experience. The central fact is, however, as Sir Stafford pointed out in his radio address, that it offered India a maximum of realizable freedom while attempting "to arrange a fair compromise between conflicting points of view."

The Congress Party leaders rejected the plan because it did not go far enough in the direction of immediate independence and direct control by Indians of all aspects of governmental activity, including defense. The Moslem League, on the other hand, rejected the plan because it went too far in meeting the demands of the Congress Party. Yet even while the Indian leaders were debating the problem of India's ultimate status the enemy steadily drew nearer. If Japan wins, the desire of the Indian Nationalists for freedom will indefinitely be postponed. As Sir Stafford pointed out to them, "it is only necessary to visit Formosa or the occupied parts of China . . . to know that through Japanese conquest misery and starvation will come." It is only through a United Nations victory that the hope of Indian freedom has any chance of fulfillment.

Fortunately, this fact is not unrealized in India. However comforting to the Japanese the failure of the Anglo-Indian negotiations may be, the rejection of the British offer does not mean that India will yield to the approaching invaders. The current preparations for her defense are the only comfort that may be found in a situation which all friends of India can only deplore.

Letters To The Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, letters should be held to 300 words. Letters are subject to condensation.

Clarification Asked

I would like to take this opportunity to request a clarification of your editorial policy.

In an editorial on March 20 you stated: "A moment's reflection will show the disastrous consequences of a profit ceiling. It would make for inefficient industrial management. For if all profits above a fixed minimum were to be taken by the tax collector, the incentive to avoid waste would be impaired, if not destroyed."

In another editorial dated March 28 you stated: ". . . the country is at war, and surely this fact is its own 'incentive' to work longer than 40 hours—rather than the time-and-a-half provision, which Mr. Nelson views as the 'incentive' to longer hours."

If the inconsistency between these two editorials is not obvious, please feel free to file this letter in the nearest available waste basket. If, however, you actually mean to imply that the owners of industry need financial incentives in order to perform patriotic services and that workers in industry do not need these incentives, I suggest that you be more plain-spoken in your statements of that fact.

I hope that, if you have the intelligence to comprehend your predicament, you also have the courage and sense of humor to print this letter and an explanation.

Aid to Russia

Why on earth cannot those in power be made to see the writing on the wall and stop sending to Russia the vast supplies which are so badly needed in the Near East and in Australia? Even if Moscow should fall, it would not be an irremediable disaster, for the Russians can retreat indefinitely; but the loss of the Caucasus, Egypt and India would mean the loss of the war for us. The talked of invasion of western Europe by either Britain or the United States at the present time is sheer lunacy. There have already been blunders enough.

A. P. POPE.
Philadelphia, April 9.

Why, Indeed!

Won't you please define terms like patriotism, inflation, price control, and others in the news and apply them to everyday life? For example:

Why do I have to pay 15 cents for a 10-cent egg sandwich? Is that due to patriotism, inflation or price control? The egg doesn't come from Japan, nor the bread from Bataan. The mayonnaise, sloshed on as a butter substitute, is usually rancid enough to have come from Malaya, though.

Why does a 20-25 cent can of salmon now cost 40-45 cents? Is there a cartel between American and Japanese fishermen? Or are the canners working with our Government to raise prices and prevent inflation?

Is that honestly what inflation prevention means, pushing down salaries and wages and pushing up the prices of things so nobody can buy anything? If so, does anti-inflation only stop when starvation and nudity begin?

Why is it considered patriotic for a man to loaf rather than sacrifice his principles by joining a union and working in a war industry? Those who won't give up their gift of gab are calling on all for sacrifices, aren't they?

Why, when I order a soda, do I get it in a glass rimmed with someone else's lipstick? Is that due to price-control, or is water now under a priorities rating for the duration?

Why does everybody talk so much of a man named Barney Baruch, whom they call a production wonder from the last war. I've read that in the last war we didn't produce anything in the way of war weapons until the war was over. Just what did Barney do? Is he an example of inflation?

BEWILDERED.

Deadly Words

Words can produce apathy or action, anger or complacency, and this has never been better understood than by our enemies. Our enemies know that complete cooperation makes an opponent strong, and one of their methods of combatting this is by the dissemination of poison through speech; it happened in France, Belgium and in Germany herself.

The subtlest and most deadly weapons of modern warfare are words; lies and exaggerations, quotations, words that confuse and disrupt by subversive criticism. Certain sections of the press are filled with them, and the gossips joyfully repeat them.

We have listened too long to the insidious arguments of the Axis Powers who told us that this was not our war, asking us why we should sacrifice our sons to save the decadent races of Europe.

We listened and procrastinated, then overnight we were caught unprepared and were catapulted into the maelstrom. Those "decadent races" became our Allies because we demanded the same fundamental decencies, because we had the same code of honor.

Today, therefore, confronted with the incarnation of evil that has left a trail of horror in its wake, threatening all that we hold dear, we are fighting the war of all freedom-loving peoples side by side.

Propaganda is talked about glibly without many of us understanding its real significance, but the word persuasion will tell us what it means; someone is trying to persuade you that what you know in your heart to be wrong is right. There is a very simple test, stop and ask yourself: "What are my reactions?"

Often we have watched a football game and seen that it is the side with the best team work which wins. Individual antagonisms are subordinated to the success of the team, and the men work together and fight as one.

We, too, must fight as one. Today is not the time for debate and opposition within the ranks. Every minute thus wasted is a victory for those powers that are seeking to crush us.

ROSAMOND MAUDE.
Washington, April 12.

Better World

I have been constantly shocked by the news of Negro-white conflict within our armed forces. If we strive to spread democracy—pure unadulterated democracy—from our shores to foreign lands, must we not believe in this democracy ourselves? If our President expounds the "Four Freedoms," must we not attempt to live those freedoms into our daily lives?

What will that little incident at Fort Dix develop into? It will be carrion for the vultures of the Axis here and abroad—banner headlines in their papers—"Racial Warfare in America" or "Revolt Imminent in America."

We need a conference for the settlement of the differences between the races. I am confident that if this procedure were undertaken, the examining board would find the differences advanced both insignificant and petty in regard to the greater and more substantial agreements. Since we are now at war, perhaps a conference of such world-wide importance would not be plausible. Let us demonstrate to the world that we can live together harmoniously, regardless of the shade of our skin or of the means by which we worship.

So we might repeat together "a better world for all men," let the four freedoms live and not rest dormant on scraps of paper.

MILTON JACOBS.

This Excellent Way Of Life

Much has been made of the American way of life in bland and smirking talks over the air and through the medium of the press, but the results of the physical examinations of the first two million draftees hardly seem to indicate the excellence of this way of life. Out of the first million, over 490,000 were physically unfit. The greater percentage of the unfit were deficient in teeth or their teeth were so defective as to render it unprofitable to effect a remedy. And this in the United States of America which possesses the finest dentists and dental service in the world.

The results of examination of the second million draftees are hardly more to be proud of, if the statements from the Selective Service people are to be relied on. Bad teeth again hold a high place in rejection; it is to be remembered that these rejectees are men between the ages of 21 and 31 for the greater part. Acting upon the assumption that these young men and the rejectees up to the age of 35 followed the so-called American way of life there is indicated a great need for the reform of that way of life in diet at least.

World War veterans who voluntarily assist in the physical and mental examinations of the draftees, in studying the cases of rejection arising from dietary deficiencies have noted that the city dweller is on a par with the rural rejectee, even when the latter class was more numerous in the undernourished groups. In other words, with better subsistence facilities available, the city dweller indulged in defective diets through environment and indifference. Contributing causes include synthetic drinks, badly cooked and inferior foods, gobbling meals with later recourse to palliatives in the form of effervescent drinks or powders. Too much sugar and bolted white flour also have done their bit. Lack of proper exercise, arising in many cases from the possession of automobiles, is another contributing cause.

These rejections are in the young men age range of whom the proposed Army of seven or more million men is to be composed. It takes more than even an extended Presidential term to change the habits of any group of people and to affect their physical condition. Where will the physically fit men come from for the proposed army?

War veterans understand by the term "army" a body of men fit to fight with the necessary fit personnel for the supply of the fighting men. The slouchy, hands-in-the-pockets, round-shouldered guy in uniform seen on our streets hardly gives promise of a fit force of two million of all arms and services, let alone one of three times that force.

The Post Impressionist

Tin Can Shower

"Everyone envies a bride and groom!" People said it over and over again when Floyd and I were married. Some said it with variations, like: "Oh, to know the bliss of young love again!" "What an adventure, the day-by-day discovery of each other's personality!" "My dear, isn't it heavenly, all these parties and showers?"

We had to admit anyone could envy us the showers, more numerous than is usual in such cases because of misunderstandings among the feminine friends of both families, who, individually, decided to go ahead and have a shower on "her own." This situation called out rivalry and each succeeding shower out-glamoured the others. Ten pieces of my crystal were presented to me in an enormous round pasteboard box, frosted with real boiled icing to look like a cake.

After that came the tin can shower! It was given by Hattie Simmons, one of mother's more facetious friends, who thought it about time to end the nonsense. (She never knew how many times I felt the jolt of her down-to-earth movement in the next weeks.) At the shower, however, I sat happily with thirty shining cans around me and if I wondered vaguely, why there was not a shred of a label on any of them, it was to conclude that's how tin can showers were given.

We left home in a mellow mood, reluctantly parting with all the wonderful friends who had given us everything, even a month of meals! For the groceries, perhaps, we were the most grateful because my husband had three weeks of school to finish before his graduation and the new position wouldn't be paying in advance either! With all my very young soul I vowed to be a good homemaker. The meals I prepared for my husband would reek with vitamins. I'd be a power house behind him, sending him full speed ahead in the world!

Thus it was with a firmly held can opener that I opened the first can in my apartment kitchen. I had planned to have peas with roast lamb shoulder and a green salad. Alas! No plan of mine has since been quite so rudely upset as when I glimpsed the red juice of pie cherries instead of the tiny peas I expected to see. Only then did I realize I might have twenty-nine more problems on my hands. Immediately, I deleted the peas from the menu and made a small cherry pie and two tarts, an economical move since the oven was already hot for the roast. Floyd and I laughed gaily over the mistake, the pie was good and we christened the box of cans, "the grab box."

The next time I approached "the grab box" it was with a great deal more respect. I wanted a can of tomatoes in which to brew a swiss steak, so I chose one of the larger cans and shook it gently. The dull "slup, slup" was convincing, but the can opener revealed purple prunes! Well . . . dessert was to have been the two cherry tarts, but they did look a little small. We could use the prunes too. I poured them into a glass dish and chose a slightly smaller can with a "slish, slish." Apricots! Whole and peeled; How nice they would have been for Sunday morning breakfast! I put them in the refrigerator, thinking how thoroughly chilled they would be in a week.

The next can seemed brighter than the rest and a wee pinhead of red label clung just under the rim. Tomatoes at last! But no. Beets! Did Floyd like beets? I wasn't any too fond of them myself. Remembering mother always pickled her's, I put them in a quart jar and poured vinegar over them. That was saving them just as though they were still in the can and I could easily put them out of the way in a dark corner of the lower cabinet.

The whole business was beginning to unnerve me a little. Time was flying so I dashed two blocks to a grocery and bought a can of tomatoes. Conversation was strained at the dinner table. I found I couldn't tell Floyd about the cans with the same gay abandon I had felt before, and long after the subject had been changed, the corners of his mouth crept up at intervals, uncontrollably. "Honey, I'd like to bring Dunlop out for a snack tomorrow night," he said, after smacking his lips over the swiss steak.

"Oh, our first company dinner!" I exclaimed gleefully. "I'll have porcupine meat balls. You know the kind with rice sticking out all over them and floating in the yumyiest tomato sauce."

"Remember to get the tomatoes at the store, first thing," Floyd warned, letting himself go on the laugh he had been suppressing. "We don't want to come home and find you all limp wristed from opening cans. Why, in desperation, you might even poach the meat balls in cranberry sauce."

Which is exactly what I did do with great success, leaving out the rice and instructing the butcher to make the meat mixture mostly ham. I began opening cans early the next morning. "I'll open a few and then plan my menu," I said, grimly. The first one was cranberry sauce, so cranberry poached ham became the main dish. The next one, sweet potatoes, which went into a casserole with a marshmallow topping. The next one was broccoli and the last pineapple. "Why this is lovely," I thought. "Now, I have the right technique."

The left-overs from the company dinner lasted the remainder of the week and we were not again confronted with the food problem until Saturday at noon. I took Floyd to his Saturday morning classes, spent a couple of hours downtown shopping and picked him up again on the way home. We both confessed loudly, to that hollow feeling inside, commonly known as hunger. "Umm-m, show me that grab box and watch your old Uncle Henry pick 'em," Floyd bragged, tying an apron around his middle. "What would you like to have, Madam?"

"That's old style," I told him. "You open them and then decide what you'll have."

South Africa's Role

By Ernest Lindley

Danger of "Paralysis"

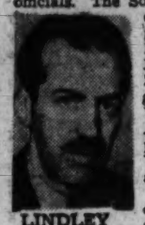
SOUTH AFRICA'S role in the war is causing grave concern among well-informed American officials. The South African war effort is in danger of paralysis. Like the Australians and New Zealanders, the government of the Union of South Africa has appealed directly to Washington for aid.



LINDLEY

The immediate difficulty is lack of shipping. Thousands of tons of materials essential for South African war production are piled up on the docks in American ports. In addition, American officials estimate, South Africa must have between 750,000 and 900,000 tons of materials and parts from the United States during the next 12 months to keep her war industries going. But a week ago only one cargo vessel was available for the run to South African ports. This is a South African ship which can carry about 6,000 tons. In a year it could make a mixmum of five trips, carrying a total of some 30,000 tons. This is considerably less than the backlog of materials needed immediately to avert shutdowns. A few days ago the Board of Economic Warfare pried loose two additional ships. But still more are needed.

Few Americans know much about the Union of South Africa and the Rhodesias. Even in the government, South African experts are almost nonexistent. Little has been published here about the South African war effort.

Yet, out of a white population of about two millions, South Africa has supplied 160,000 volunteers for the imperial forces. These are in addition to its home guard. South African factories produce armored cars and substantial quantities of ammunition and light arms. Approximately 30,000 motor vehicles assembled in South Africa are in use in North Africa and the Middle East.

THIS CONTRIBUTION to the war has been made in spite of an explosive internal political situation. The vote by which the Union's House of Assembly declared war on Germany in September, 1939, was only 80 to 67. The Afrikanders—South Africans of Dutch descent—who comprise three-fourths of the white population remain, in considerable part, bitterly anti-British and isolationist.

Field Marshal Smuts now has only 86 supporters out of 153 members of Parliament, although the opposition is scattered and the Afrikander extremists hold only ten seats. Smuts' majority contains several members of Dutch descent who feel, as he does, that South Africa's security depends on a victory for the United Nations. But it is feared that any sharp turn for the worse in economic conditions might cause a political upset.

South Africa, the Rhodesias, and the Congo are sources of minerals, such as copper, chrome, tin, manganese, cobalt, tin and asbestos, essential to the American and British war production programs. South Africa is a source also of high-grade iron ore, needed by the British since the loss of Swedish supplies. British and American cargo ships returning from Suez and the Persian Gulf can pick up these materials. The problem is to get essential cargoes to South Africa.

SOUTH AFRICAN manufacturing for war purposes can be increased, but this requires machine tools and other equipment from the United States. The present steel capacity of South Africa is 300,000 tons. But South Africa needs 900,000 tons of steel annually, at the present level of output, for her war production and things related to it, such as railroad maintenance. This means that 550,000 tons must be imported, nearly all of it from the United States. This can be offset at least in part by expanding South African steel production, but that in turn means that the machinery must be shipped from the United States.

On one side is the possibility of enlarging South Africa's participation in the war especially as a supply base and manufacturing center. On the other, is the danger of forcing her out as an effective partner. And beyond this lies the possibility of a political upset having incalculable consequences. The Nazis are believed to have contacts with the Afrikander isolationist-nationalist organizations. Recently there was a wave of organized sabotage along the Rand, suggesting an attempt to force the government to withdraw troops from the North Africa front in order to maintain internal order.

South Africa's full participation in the war is as vital to the United States as to Great Britain. And, in the belief of well-informed officials here, it will be determined largely by the ability of the United States to supply the materials needed by South African war industries.

Arctic Front

By Joachim Joesten

War Hits Lapland

RUSSIAN MARINES have been reported to have effected a successful landing in the German rear on the Murmansk front. Off the bleak North Cape a violent clash has occurred between Nazi destroyers and a strongly guarded United Nations convoy. For some weeks past, the ports of northern Norway have been closed to all civilian traffic. Germany's grand fleet is assembled in the harbor of Trondheim. British planes, in day-long scouting raids, range the coasts of Denmark and Norway.

Not much more is needed to understand that the long predicted battle for the European Arctic is about to begin. The time is approximately from April through October. The scene: a 600-mile-long arc stretching from Narvik to Murmansk, across the northern tips of four countries: Norway, Sweden, Finland, Russia. Because it sits like a skull-cap on Scandinavia's head, European geographers call it the "Fenno-Scandian Calotte."

THIS IS Lapland, a well-defined geographical and ethnological unit utterly at variance with political divisions. In a land famous for its desolate grandeur, the prismatic splendor of its sunsets, and the utter lonesomeness of its people, the nomad Lapps have for centuries defied state lines, and ignored world events. There are only some 30,000 of them, a dwarfish, ugly, Mongoloid race, but they turn up everywhere, and the country is theirs. The tiny ports along the cragged, gale-swept coast may be inhabited by Norwegians, Finns and Russians. The rich mineral deposits to the south may be owned by Swedish and foreign companies. But the ancient, barren tundra of the interior, the bordering glaciers and the hidden lakes belong to the Lapps and to their reindeer. And few people but they know how to find their way through a country where sledge tracks and footpaths are still the chief means of communication.

Except for the huge Swedish iron ore mines in the southern half, Lapland has little to fight for. But since the capitulation of North Norway, on June 10, 1940, strong German garrisons have been established in the small coastal towns, especially at Narvik, Tromso, Harstad, Hammerfest, Vardo, Vadso, Kirkenes, and the deeply cut, ramified fjords have been swarming with U-boats, E-boats and other Nazi craft.

From these hideouts, German ships and planes have been constantly preying on the flow of United Nations supplies bound for Russia's Archangel or Murmansk. Now that the perpetual winter darkness has lifted and the furor of the Arctic storms is about to subside, these harassing attacks will grow every day more intense. And, since aid to Russia is vital and shipments become easier as the ice barrier recedes from the northern ports—only Murmansk is free of ice all year—more and more ships will have to run the gantlet of German bombs, torpedoes and shore batteries.

Under these circumstances, a determined attempt by the United Nations to wrest the entire "calotte" from the Nazis appears both necessary and likely. The experience of last year's repeated commando raids has shown that the Nazis cannot possibly defend all of the Norwegian coast—a total of 12,000 miles, counting all islands and fjords—against seaborne invasion.

LEAST of all, the scattered German garrisons in Lapland will be able to hold out against a combined United Nations drive from the east and from the west. For, as soon as coastal traffic is interrupted at any point along this far-flung coast, the Nazi detachments north of that point will find themselves in a dire predicament. In a country totally without railroads and with no more than an embryonic network of primitive, often disconnected, motorways, their only chance of getting reinforcements and supplies will be by air.

Probably the only place in this area which the Germans have a fair chance of holding is Petsamo, Finland's Arctic port, which proved a very hard nut to crack for the Russians in the fighting of 1939-40. The harbor facilitities and defenses of Petsamo were seriously damaged at the time, but they have since been rebuilt and enormously strengthened by German engineers.

Only a few months after the Russians had evacuated Petsamo in accordance with the Peace of Moscow (March 12, 1940), the port and its hinterland were virtually taken over by the Germans. The first thing Berlin did was to open, in the summer of 1940, a "consulate-general" in Petsamo. Herr Karl Turk, the new consul, soon proved himself superior to both his British and Russian colleagues in the town.

Within a few weeks of his appointment Consul Turk had managed (a) to trick both the Russians and the British out of their interests in the valuable Salmijarvi nickel mines near Petsamo; (b) to obtain from the local Finnish authorities the right to inspect and to veto the passenger list and clearance papers of all vessels leaving the port, and (c) to prepare the effective occupation of the region by German troops.

THIS occupation took place, in the fall of 1940, in a manner characteristic of Nazi methods of penetration. The Germans first concluded with Finland a "transit agreement" on the model of the arrangement earlier made with Sweden, permitting them to send troops to northern Norway by way of Finnish territory.

These troops landed at Tornio, on Gulf of Bothnia, ostensibly bound for Kirkenes, Vardo and Vadso by way of the newly constructed Rovaniemi defense highway leading to Petsamo. En route, however, the Germans declared that road and weather conditions made it imperative for them to take up "winter quarters" in Finland and that they would continue their journey in spring.

In this ingenious manner thousands of Nazi soldiers, including a fair percentage of Narvik veterans, poured into northern Finland, where they stayed not only throughout the winter but also the spring. These troops were among the first to launch the surprise attack on Russia in June, 1941.

Since then, however, fighting has made little progress in this sector of the Arctic front—the only one still active at the present moment. After ten months of bitter fighting, the German-Finnish army, under the command of Gen. Eduard Dietl, is still hammering at the outer defenses of Murmansk, while the Russians still hold a large part of Rybachi Peninsula, including some former Finnish territory. But the chances are that the stalemate will now soon be broken by spectacular action.

The Indian Reply

By Barnet Nover

The Rejection Of The British Offer

FOR REASONS they will find hard to justify before the bar of world public opinion, the leaders of the Indian National Congress have rejected the British offer of dominion status for India after the war, an increased measure of self-rule now.

NOVER

The reply which the Congress has presented to Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's envoy, is an extraordinary document both for what it says and what it omits. Thus while declaring that no recognition is given to the fact that the world is at war, the enemy is knocking at India's gates, and India's fate for years and decades may be decided in the next weeks and months.

WHETHER INDIA achieves independence or not will depend, first of all, on whether the United Nations win the war. If they lose the war, not only will India fail to achieve the freedom she hopes for but she will also lose the freedom she already enjoys.

One might reasonably have assumed that this would have been the guiding consideration in any discussion by Indian leaders of present and prospective political changes in India. Such an assumption has, however, been proved incorrect. The results of the discussions which the Indian leaders have held with Sir Stafford during the past three weeks suggest either that they are blind to the fearful realities of the world situation or that they are too much the prisoners of past attitudes to be capable of change.

IN REJECTING the British offer the Congress gave several reasons for doing so.

They rejected it, first of all, because "the British cabinet's new proposals relate principally to the future upon cessation of hostilities;" in other words, because India is not granted immediate independence. "No other status except that of independence for the whole of India could be agreed to," the note says, "or could meet the essential requirements of the present situation."

Secondly, their objection to the British plan is that it leaves out the 90 million people in the Indian states. Leaving them "at the disposal of their rulers is a negation both of democracy and self-determination."

Thirdly, the plan permits the formation of "enclaves where foreign authority still prevails and where the possibility of maintaining foreign armed forces . . . would be a likely contingency and a perpetual menace to the freedom of the people of the states as well as of the rest of India."

Fourthly, the Congress censures the provision in the British plan which permits a state to stay out of the Indian Federation if it so desires. That, says the note, "is a severe blow to the conception of Indian unity." Incidentally, the note of the Moslem League takes the position that the British plan is faulty because it does not go far enough in the direction proposed.

Fifthly, objection is made to the plan whereby the defense of India will remain, for the duration of the war, in British hands. "To take away defense from the sphere of responsibility at this stage is to reduce that responsibility to a farce and nullity and make it perfectly clear that India is not going to be free in any way and her government is not going to function as a free and independent government during the war."

IN HIS RADIO address to the people of India last Saturday, Sir Stafford Cripps effectively demolished all these arguments. In language utterly free of rancor he showed up the inconsistencies, the special pleading, the lack of constructive statesmanship that are to be found in the Congress' reply to the British offer.

Since the beginning of the war, he pointed out, the Congress has repeatedly demanded two things: a declaration of Indian independence and a constituent assembly to reframe a new and free constitution of India. These demands the British government had sought to meet. But instead of examining this offer in the same largeness of spirit that was displayed by Premier Churchill and his colleagues in making it, the Indian nationalist leaders have made it the object of endless hair-splitting.

Thus, while themselves incapable of agreement with other groups and elements in India, they berate the British for failing to force certain elements in Indian life, the India of the princes, for instance, to bow the knee to the Congress as the self-proclaimed guardian of India's political aspirations. The British government, said Sir Stafford, "could not without denying the very freedom which they were offering impose a form of government upon peoples which they did not themselves freely choose."

AS FOR PLACING the defense of India in Indian hands, Sir Stafford made it crystal clear in his address that this was the very apogee of unrealism. "It would mean," he said, "long and difficult reorganization of the whole Defense Secretariat—an unscrambling of eggs scrambled many years ago—which would cause delay and confusion at the very moment when the enemy is at the gates and maximum speed and efficiency are essential in defense."

Reading the note of the Indian Congress party one discovers an attitude that bodes ill for the future of India. In a time that calls for breadth of vision, uncompromising realism, an awareness of the circumstance that freedom is something which cannot be legislated, India's leaders, at least those responsible for the reply to the British offer, show that they are singularly lacking in these qualities.

The British plan could, at best, only be regarded as a talking point, an effort to achieve some measure of compromise between India's desire for independence and the lack of unity which has always inhibited the achievement of that independence. It was not sacrosanct nor was it intended to be. Indeed, Sir Stafford was given considerable leeway to make changes in it if such changes did no violence to its spirit and helped bring about agreement.

But the Congress party has acted on the theory that every i of its demands must be dotted, every t crossed or it will have nothing to do with the British offer. Its reply will make bright reading in Tokyo, Berlin and Rome and nowhere else.

Elmer On A Bike

Elmer Twitchell sank into a chair with a deep sigh "I'm all in," he said.

"What's the trouble?" we asked.

"Learning to ride a bike again," he said.

"Is that in itself so harrowing?"

"No, but I'm teaching Mrs. Twitchell," he grunted.

"How is she getting along?"

"She'll recover. It turned out to be just a broken leg and a slight concussion."

"Riding a bicycle isn't so hard," we suggested

"That's what I thought," said Elmer.

"Didn't you ride in the old days?"

"Yes, but you have no idea how the new modes of travel softened me up," he explained. "The automobile did something to my rhythm, my sense of balance. I've been riding around on four wheels for so many years that riding on two seemed a circus trick."

"Your old pedaling instincts ought to come back," we suggested.

"They ought to," he sighed. "I had no idea they were so dormant. It's the upgrades that bother me most."

"The steep ones?"

"Steep, medium or slight," he snapped. "The minute I come to an incline I reach for an accelerator with my right foot. Of course, I realize right away that it is just force of habit, but when I try to pedal uphill I discover I might as well be a legless man."

"You used to be quite a bicyclist in your youth," we remarked. "Didn't you, in fact, ride a Pierce-Arrow Flyer with racing tires and even enter sprinting events?"

"That's why I can't understand it," he said. "I've got cups and other trophies to prove it. They used to call me Flash Twitchell."

He sobbed softly.

"Maybe it will all come back with practice," we said soothingly.

"I'm afraid not," he said. "The automobile age has wrecked us all. We've been doing it all by battery, carburetor and ignition systems too long. And I'll tell you something."

"What?"

"The worst of it is that when we get back on a bicycle we try to make the same speed with as little effort. It just don't seem right to be traveling from one given point to another at a reasonable speed. I miss the sound of scraping fenders, too. And it seems funny on a bicycle not to have somebody right behind crashing into me."

"It's quite a change, of course, from motoring."

"You said it. And do you know what cramps my style more than anything else when I'm wheeling around town?"

"No."

"I just can't snarl at other bicyclists and snap at pedestrians in the manner to which I have become accustomed as a motorist"

"Is it necessary?" we inquired.

"Yes," he shouted with feeling. "Am I supposed to make my whole character over?"

Preventing Inflation

By Mark Sullivan

The Use Of Effective Checks

CERTAIN STEPS to prevent inflation have been taken. Others have been decided on, and are in the making. Yet others are in what President Roosevelt calls the "discussion stage." The sum of all is that, as of today, there is hope that inflation may actually be prevented. This is news, for it is an important development, and is contrary to what was expected until recently by competent observers of the trend.

SULLIVAN

If the trend has really reversed, the action that began the reversal came from President Roosevelt. He, some weeks ago, set himself in outright opposition to farm leaders in Congress who wanted prices of crops to go higher. The issue arose over the stores of farm commodities—wheat, cotton and others—owned by the Government. These stores, the Administration put on the market, in order to check rise in prices. Farm leaders tried to forbid the sale by act of Congress. Against the legislation, President Roosevelt spoke out, strongly. After much commotion, the policy of selling commodities, gradually and with limitations, was kept up by the Administration. This, with other influences, has checked the rise in crop prices, and thus checked rise in the price of food and in cost of living.

Check of the rise of crop prices, and hence the rise of food, was check of a chief element in inflation. But it was no good if it stood alone. For if other things went up—wages and goods generally—farmers would have to pay more for things they bought. Farmers would then be justified in demanding higher prices for their crops, and their demand could not justly be resisted.

ONE BASIC factor was wages, an embarrassing subject for politics to deal with. In the act for price control generally, wages were specifically made immune—the price administrator was forbidden to touch them. Mr. Roosevelt, however—this is an inference from observation—seems to have used personal influence on labor leaders. Demands of leaders for large increases in wage rates have been dropped. The labor leaders have formally given up double wage rates for Saturdays and holidays, to which they were entitled by contracts already made. The amount involved may be small, but the action is important in both the real and the psychological sense, as a check to rise in wages.

Informal understanding between labor leaders and the Administration—if that is what it is—is a precarious thing. Deference of labor leaders to public opinion is a precarious thing. But so long as the check to wages lasts, whatever the motive or cause, it is a check to inflation.

Another check to inflation arose from revelation of excessive profits of some corporations making war materials, excessive bonuses and salary raises to some officials of such corporations. The examples, while not numerous, were spectacular. The revelations led to voluntary revision by corporations of some contracts, voluntary surrender of some of the excessive profits. Also, the revelations led to a general reexamination of all war contracts by Government officials, with a view to reducing excessive prices. And the revelations gave rise to a prevailing sentiment for checking excessive profits by law—either by a statutory limit on profits or a tax law which would bring back to the Treasury most of the excess profits.

Regardless of the amount of money involved, anything that checks high prices of war material is a check to inflation. It is an influence working to check all kinds of prices, and it reduces the quantity of the public debt—high public debt being in itself a cause of inflation.

ANOTHER CHECK to inflation is the vigor of Price Administrator Leon Henderson. He has by law power to fix prices of practically everything. (Except that he has no power to touch wages, and only limited power to deal with prices of farm crops.) While there is some complaint about methods, about cumbersomeness, about the size of the immense staff he has built up, the fact is Mr. Henderson has acted promptly and effectively to check many prices which otherwise would by now be soaring.

A recent proposal, hinted rather than announced, is that Mr. Henderson's power be extended to cover everything—prices, wage rates, salaries, profits, everything. One form of the suggestion is that price-fixing be not left "selective," be not left in the discretion of the price administrator—but that Congress act to "freeze" everything as of a given date. About the practicability of such universal freezing, there is difference of opinion. But sentiment for keeping everything down is strong.

The sum of all that has taken place is a widespread and powerful public sentiment for preventing rise in prices. The American people seem to have become "buyer-minded." This sentiment if sustained and made effective by Government, would go far toward preventing inflation. Yet, inflation is a subtle thing, arising from many causes, some not recognized, and some, once they get under way, impossible to stop. It may be that a year from now the trend here described will be seen to have been not permanent.

Halifax Asks Tolerance for Britain's Role

By the Associated Press

Houston, Tex., April 12.—Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, last night asked for American tolerance in judgment of Britain's conduct of its share in the war.

Speaking at a dinner, he said:

"Let us recognize that in this competent partnership (between the United States and Great Britain) both of us will make mistakes. We have got to trust each other absolutely."

He asked also that his hearers guard against indifference to the conflict's humanitarian aspects.

"The war seems a long way from Texas. We have heard so much of horror in the last few years that we have almost lost our capacity for indignation and resentment. Something besides war materials is necessary—that kind of moral upsurge that persons in German dominated countries are displaying."

Before the war is won, he said, "we shall receive many setbacks, many losses and many disasters."

After his brief address, the Ambassador answered questions from the floor.

He said he would "deny" that the English ever had oppressed the Indians, and said he hoped Britain and India would "leave the door ajar" to further negotiations.

Asked why Rome had not been bombed, he said: "We have felt there were reasons—because of Vatican City, the residence of the Pope, and because of a regard for antiquities that are the property not only of Italy, but of the whole world."

Britain was holding open the possibility of bombing Rome at any time, however, he added, and cited the fact that during the Italo-Greek war, the British warned that Rome would be bombed in reprisal for any bombings of Athens.

Turkey will fight, he said, if Hitler should issue her an ultimatum.

The United States has been "most helpful" in the matter of the French fleet, Lord Halifax said. "I am glad that the United States has maintained relations with the Vichy government. This relationship has been used to great effect."

Two Billions Hoarded, Says Reserve Board

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board estimated yesterday that about two billion dollars of American money is being hoarded.

But, contrary to the ordinary bankers' disapproval of hoarding, the board concluded that, under present conditions, about the only danger is that the people might take it out of hiding and deposit it in the banks.

The reason for this unsual "danger," the board explained, is that the banks already have plenty of money, and the addition of the presently hoarded money might "expand bank reserves (available for lending) beyond the powers of the Federal Reserve System to absorb them at a time when a policy of credit restraint was in the public interest."

Discussing in its official monthly bulletin, the growth of money in circulation to a record-breaking total of $11,500,000,000, the board figured that two billion dollars of this amount was hidden away.

Americans were estimated to have hidden between 500 million and one billion dollars of the total, foreigners accounting for the rest. Unwarranted fear of banks and taxation were said to underlie American hoarding. In this connection, the board said hoarders were foolish and could keep their money more safely and earn interest at the same time by buying war bonds. Foreigners may have other reasons for hoarding, particularly concealment of assets from enemies.

U. S. Farm Land Values Rise Over 2 Billions In 12 Months

By Ovid A. Martin

Associated Press Staff Correspondent

American farm real estate made a spectacular $2,360,000,000 advance in value during the last 12 months under the influence of sharply rising farm product prices, a record war demand for food, and a brisk land market. The total value was estimated at 36 billion dollars.

This gain, equivalent to 7 per cent, was reported in an Agriculture Department survey made public yesterday as the Administration studied measures to prevent inflation.

Some officials looked upon this advance as the forerunner of a possible inflationary land boom such as developed during the first World War with disastrous results later for thousands of farmers who went into debt to buy high-priced land.

The increase was the most rapid since values hit a depression low in 1933, and it marked the end of a five-year period during which values were practically unchanged.

Farm officials were inclined to consider the rise a very modest one. They pointed out that farm commodity prices rose 40 per cent and farm income 30 per cent during the period when land values went up only 7 per cent.

"A comparison of the rise in farm real estate values with increases in commodity prices and cash farm income indicates," they said, "that the probable temporary character of current farm commodity prices is still being recognized."

These officials said many farmers recalled the serious consequences of the high land values during the first war. They said this recollection was operating in the direction of cautiousness in bidding up prices in land markets.

The department said farm real estate values increased generally the country over. Increases were largest in the Midwestern corn belt, which is the major source of meat, dairy and poultry supplies required in greatly increased volume for war needs of this country and its allies.

The corn belt increase was about 10 per cent. The increase was smallest in the Middle Atlantic and New England States, the percentage being three or less. The national average was said to be about 25 per cent above the depression low.

Governor of Alaska, Wife Honored by the O'Briens

Gruening to Leave for Alaska on Friday
He Tells Guest at Pancake Party at Sulgrave

By Elizabeth Henney

"I'm leaving for Alaska Friday," replied Governor of Alaska Ernest H. Gruening to one of the guests yesterday at the Pancake Party at the Sulgrave Club which was given in honor of him and Mrs. Gruening by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien and their son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Lincoln O'Brien.

The comment would seem to put a quietus to the rumor which has been making the rounds of the Capital, that the Governor was about to be replaced. He added that he had been on the point of returning to Alaska for the past three months "every Monday, Wednesday and Friday—" but that something had always come up at the last minute to delay him. This time, though he assured his questioner, he felt as though he were really on the way. He also added that Mrs. Gruening would not leave with him, but would remain until she had rented their home here before joining him in the land of the Eskimos.

Meanwhile the party was progressing merrily and guests were exclaiming over the piece-de-resistance of the afternoon, large platters of pancakes and New Hampshire maple syrup. The syrup was from the farm of Capt. and Mrs. O'Brien in Claremont, N. H., and had been sent down especially for the occasion.

Capt. O'Brien, the owner and publisher of the Claremont Eagle, daily newspaper in Claremont, was formerly connected with the Boston Transcript and has just been ordered to active duty in Washington with the press relations section of the Army.

Junior O'Briens to Move To New Home Next Week

He and Mrs. O'Brien, who came to town a few weeks ago, were most excited all afternoon over the fact that they have just located and rented a house in Arlington, Va., and expect to move in sometime next week. They are now staying at the Lafayette Hotel.

There was no formal receiving line and the four hosts and hostesses received their guests wherever they happened to be at the moment in the spacious main ballroom of the club. Mrs. O'Brien, sr., was gowned in a black and white spring print sheer, with which she wore a bird-wing trimmed black felt hat, and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. O'Brien, jr., wore a tailored beige suit with a corsage of mandarin roses and topped her blond curls with a small brimmed hat of henna felt.

Distinctly different from the usual run of five to seven parties were the arrangements yesterday. At one end of the long room was the buffet, centered with an enormous bouquet of golden forsythia, flanked at either end by massive silver tea and coffee urns, and laden with a variety of tea-time dainties.

Guests Are Seated At Small Tables

But, around the room were clusters of smaller tables and chairs so that guests might sit in congenial groups and be served from platters of piping-hot pancakes brought fresh from the kitchen. And the way those pancakes were disappearing should have been visual proof to the hosts that the party was definitely a success.

Among the early comers were Senator Edward R. Burke, of Omaha, Nebr.; Col. and Mrs. Ernest Dupuy, the latter gowned in black with a tiny gay purple-flowered hat; Matthew Armstrong, Mrs. Alexander Hawes, Senator and Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, and Senator Tom Connally, of Marlin, Tex.

Senator Bailey Returns Home for Daughter's Wedding

Raleigh, N. C., April 11 (AP).—Senator Josiah W. Bailey, North Carolina's veteran senior Senator, came home today and gave away in marriage his 21-year-old daughter, Annie Elizabeth Bailey, to William Joseph Primm, jr., of Montgomery, Ala.

The simple afternoon ceremony was performed in Christ Episcopal Church here by the rector, the Rev. John A. Wright. Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of Mrs. James H. Pou, grandmother of the bride. The couple then left for an extended wedding trip.

Among those attending the ceremony were Senator and Mrs. Walter George, of Georgia, and Richard J. Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, tobacco-millionaire treasurer of the Democratic National Committee. After May 1, the couple will make their home in Montgomery. Primm is active in Alabama politics and is State committeeman of the Alabama Young Democrats.

Two Parties Given For Miss Ewing

Two parties were on the schedule yesterday for Miss Sara Frances Ewing, whose marriage to Robert Edward Grote will take place on Thursday.

Miss Betty Flather, who will be Miss Ewing's only attendant, entertained at a supper and bridge party for her last evening and earlier in the day, Mrs. J. D. O'Meara entertained at a bridal shower in Miss Ewing's honor. The party was given at the home of Mrs. Frank M. Ewing, jr., sister of Mrs. O'Meara.

Mr., Mrs. Adams Will Make Home In Washington

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis F. Adams, who were married Saturday evening at Gunton Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church, will make their home in Washington. The bride was formerly Miss Thelma Ellen Krehbiel, daughter of Mrs. Jacob P. Krehbiel, of Moundridge, Kans.

Palms and baskets of white gladioli formed the background for the 8 o'clock ceremony when the Rev. Bernard Braskamp read the vows. Marlo Krehbiel, brother of the bride, gave her in marriage.

Her gown of white marquisette featured a fitted, tucked bodice and tucked inserts in the skirt. Falling from a pearl Juliet cap was her finger-tip veil, white elbow mitts and a colonial bouquet of white roses, sweet peas and fresia completed her costume.

Mrs. I. Glenn Stevenson, of Lawrence, Kans., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was gowned in pale blue marquisette with blue lace mitts to match and carried a colonial bouquet of pastel sweet peas and fresia.

Best man was Leland Deck, of Washington, and ushers were Anthony Ormasa, also of Washington, and Charles Robinson, of New York. A reception at Hotel 2400 followed the ceremony. Mrs. Krehbiel, the bride's mother, received the guests wearing a navy blue dress with navy and white accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride received her A. B. degree at Bethel College in Kansas and her master's degree from the University of Iowa. Mr. Adams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Adams, of Visalia, Calif. He took his master's degree at the University of California, and is now at Officers' Candidate School at Fort Washington, Md.

Miss Anne McNair Is Wed to Ensign

Miss Anne Carey Lewis McNair, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Frederick V. McNair, jr., of 221 King George Street, Annapolis, Md., was married in the Naval Academy Chapel at Annapolis, Md., at 5 p. m. Saturday to Ensign John Mason Rickabaugh, U. S. N., of California.

The bride is a granddaughter of Admiral Frederick V. McNair, U. S. Navy, who as Superintendent of the Naval Academy completed the first granite buildings of the New Academy. On her mother's side she is the great-granddaughter of Col. Marshall, staff aid to Gen. Robert E. Lee, and is a direct descendant of Chief Justice Marshall; had the distinction of being the youngest president of any chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy.

Prominent Persons Are Sponsors at Rose Exhibition

A number of prominent persons were on the honor guest list yesterday for the opening of the Ruth Starr Rose exhibit at the Whyte Gallery. On the list, in addition to Mrs. Rose, of Easton, Md., were the following sponsors: Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Mrs. Peter Belin, Miss Florence Berryman, Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti, Mrs. Joshua Evans, Mrs. Waldron Faulkner, Mrs. William Hurd Hill, Mrs. Jessie Moon Holton, Mrs. Pierre Gaillard, Miss Celcil Lester Jones, Mrs. Keith Kane, Mrs. Max Kauffmann, Mrs. Cazenove Lee, Mrs. Clifford Mallory, Mrs. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Daniel Partridge, jr., and Mrs. Robert Whitelaw Wilson.

In presenting Mrs. Rose to their guests on the occasion of the preview, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Whyte were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Cazenove Lee, in whose home the artist is visiting.

The catalogue of Mrs. Rose's first one-man show in Washington offers tempting fare to those who know Tidewater Maryland and Virginia and would have its life and people portrayed. At her home on the Eastern Shore of Maryland she paints what she has known from childhood: workers in the field and home, boats in nearby waters, sailing races and horse races, the fishing, crabbing and oystering industries, even Chincoteague ponies—all phases of life are ably interpreted in her pictures.

Washington will here be given its first opportunity to pass upon the work of an artist widely known in art centers where her subject matter is unfamiliar and the Eastern Shore of Maryland only a name. Mrs. Rose's pictures may be seen at the Whyte Gallery during April.

Miss Newcomb Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Turner Newcomb, of New York and Washington, Conn., have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Holly Newcomb, to John B. H. Luckett, son of Mrs. Gertrude Harlow Coffin and the late Raleigh F. Luckett, of Washington, and grandson of the late M. B. Harlow, of Alexandria, Va., and Washington.

The wedding will take place in the near future.

Miss Newcomb was graduated from Miss Spence's School, New York City. Her father was for many years vice president and general counsel of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad.

Mr. Luckett attended Emerson Institute, Washington, and the University of Pennsylvania. He is a member of the Racquet Club of Philadelphia.

Returns After Speaking Trip

Folke Wennerberg, Counselor of the Swedish Legation, has returned to Washington from Philadelphia, where he spoke at a meeting of the Swedish Colonial Society, celebrating the 304th anniversary of the founding of New Sweden.

Mme. Wennerberg, who accompanied him, is now visiting friends in New York City. She is expected back in the Capital early in the week.

Nancy Page King Gives Party

Entertaining her subdeb friends at a small tea, Miss Nancy Page King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon King, was hostess yesterday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock at her home.

Among the guests were Miss Marjorie Souby, Miss Sarah Page Claggett, Miss Mary Ann Dawson, Miss Jane Wyatt, Miss Harriet Stokes, Miss Barbara Baker, Miss Anita Cajigas and Miss Margaret Mary Giegengack.

Nancy Clark and William King Wed in Home Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. William Tobey King, who are now on their honeymoon, will make their home in Newport, R. I.

The former Miss Nancy Henderson Clark, daughter of Capt. Glenmore Clark (M. C.), United States Navy, and Mrs. Clark, of Chelsea, Mass., was married on Saturday to Mr. King, of Newport, R. I., son of Mrs. James M. King, of that city, and the late Mr. King. Capt. Herbert Dumstrey, United States Navy, officiated at the ceremony, which was held at the home of the bride's parents at the Naval Hospital.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a gown of mousseline de soie and Chantilly lace, made with a high neckline line, long full sleeves and full skirt. Her veil was of fingertip length tulle, and was held in place by an heirloom cap of Duchess lace. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and freesia.

Miss Ena V. Shackford, daughter of Capt. Chauncey C. Shackford, U. S. Navy, and Mrs. Shackford, of Newport, R. I., was the bride's only attendant. She wore a gown of fine dotted swiss, with lace, made with a high round neckline, short puffed sleeves and full skirt. She carried a bouquet of brightly colored spring flowers.

James M. King, jr., of Newport, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Edward A. Sherman, jr., also of Newport, and Charles J. Clark, brother of the bride, were the ushers.

Mrs. Clark, mother of the bride, wore an afternoon dress of white silk, printed with large blue flowers. She wore a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. King, mother of the bridegroom, wore a green and white print dress, with green wool coat and also wore gardenias.

When the couple left for their wedding trip the bride was wearing a dress of aqua gabardine, and with it a coat of brown and white checked wool and a small brown felt hat, with other accessories of brown.

Ensign Bunting And Bride Now On Wedding Trip

Ensign and Mrs. Davis Eli Bunting have departed for a short wedding trip following their marriage on Saturday at Washington Cathedral. Mrs. Bunting is the former Miss Margaret Ann Soper, daughter of Mrs. James A. Soper and the late Mr. Soper. The bridegroom is the son of R. D. Bunting and the late Mrs. Bunting, of Corfu, N. Y.

The Rev. Theodore O. Wedel performed the ceremony at 3:30 and a reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Paul Calaway, wore a gown of ivory satin designed with torso length bodice and long fitted sleeves. Miss Betty Jane Christmas was maid of honor and the Misses Gertrude Wedel and Carolyn Hubbell were bridesmaids. Their gowns were of pastel taffeta and they carried bouquets of spring flowers.

Thomas Stevens was best man and ushers were Ensign Henry Field, Ensign Chester Lee, Ensign David Green and Ensign John Crawford.

Comdr. Moore And His Wife Honored at Tea

Honoring Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Robert Moore, jr., of New Orleans yesterday afternoon at a dusk to dark tea, Miss Cornelia Bowie and Commander and Mrs. Charles Windsor entertained at the Windsors' Massachusetts Avenue home.

Receiving in the drawing room, Miss Bowie was gowned in a floor-length black crepe frock fashioned with a jacket and trimmed in sequins. Mrs. Windsor had chosen flame jersey, floor length, with short sleeves and rhinestone accent, and Mrs. Moore was gowned in a spring flower print crepe.

Spring flowers were massed throughout the house and the dining table centered with Easter lilies, was flanked by tall ivory tapers in silver candelabra.

Assisting at the tea table during the afternoon were Mrs. Benjamin Dorsey, wife of Admiral Dorsey; Mrs. Donald Bingham, Mrs. Guy Castle, Mrs. Louis Pitcher, Mrs. Wade Ellis, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall and Mrs. Arthur Chichester.

Also assisting were Mrs. Russell Corey of New York, Mrs. Joseph Addison of Baltimore, Miss Knox Ide of New York, Miss Isabel Page of Philadelphia, Mrs. William Marbury, Mrs. Page Bowie of Annapolis, Mrs. Harris Franklin, Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, Mrs. William Blair, and Miss Elizabeth Gordon of Baltimore.

Wife Entertains For Macon Reed, Jr., On Army Leave

Celebrating the first leave her husband has had since his induction into the service, Mrs. Macon Reed, jr., entertained yesterday afternoon at their apartment on P Street in her husband's honor. The invitations, cleverly worded, were "to meet——" the latter a number, her husband's service number, not a name.

Receiving informally Mrs. Reed was gowned in a street length frock of black crepe, accented with a rare jade necklace and jade bracelets to match.

Ranking guests of the afternoon were Senator and Mrs. D. Worth Clark. Among the early arrivals were Col. and Mrs. B. W. Venable and Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Boyd. Still others there were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cox, Mr. and Mrs. John Crider, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Goad, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Rixey Smith, Lieut. and Mrs. Antony De Muth of Baltimore, Charles Boles, Royger Youn, W. W. Vaughan and many more.

Maurice Thatchers Entertain At Informal 'Picture Party'

At one of their famous "Picture-Parties," former Governor of Panama and Mrs. Maurice Thatcher entertained informally last evening at their home on Sixteenth Street. For several years their friends have looked forward to these occasions when the Thatchers gather in a small group and show a few of their travel films. During various peregrinations around the world, Mr. Thatcher, who was for several years Congressional Representative from Kentucky, and during that time member of a mission to Venezuela, has taken color movies of the places they have traveled. They now have a collection of, as Mr. Thatcher puts it, "about six miles of film," some of which, such as the Isle of Crete, jungles of South America and parts of Europe, now have considerable military value.

Having developed the picture bug, the Thatchers, during their vacations, traveled to practically all parts of the world, trips which they carefully recorded in color film. Several reels of these were shown to the guests last night, after which there was a late buffet.

Receiving in the drawing room of their flower-decked apartment Mrs. Thatcher was gowned in a nasturtium print crepe, floor length and fashioned on simple lines.

Among the guests were the Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. Loudon, former Minister to Czecho-Slovakia and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries, Mrs. Mary Buford of the State Department, Col. John H. Cowles, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford K. Berryman and their daughter, Miss Florence Berryman.

If you don't see what you want ...ask for it!

Don't just wait for the right apartment to be advertised—or the right job—or the house you're thinking of—or the used car, furniture, musical instrument or what have you! Of course, look in The Post Want Ads first. But if you don't see exactly what you want, ask for it—through an inexpensive "wanted" ad.

Want a Better Room?

Sure, there's a housing shortage in Washington. But plenty of rooms are still vacant because their owners haven't advertised. So you reach them—through a Rooms or Apartments Wanted ad.

Want a Used Armchair?

If you want some used household or office goods—either to keep or to resell—you'll find a Miscellaneous Wanted ad an easy short-cut to getting them. That goes for just about anything—from armchairs to zithers.

Want a Job?

If you're job-hunting, a good way to get leads is to put a Situation Wanted ad in The Post. You can't pick a better paper for bringing your qualifications to the attention of important people.

Want a New House?

House-hunting is lots easier when you do it with a Houses Wanted ad in The Post. Just describe what you want to a Post Ad-writer. Your message will be seen by home-owners and Real Estate dealers all over Washington.

POST Want Ads cost as little as 40 cents a day for three days. To insert your ad, just phone a Post Ad-writer at NAtional 4200. Do it right now!

Strange Bedfellows

"Come on and lunch with me."

"I can't. I'm waiting for Nita."

"Nita?"

"Yes. Nita Scallop."

"Don't tell me you're going to lunch with that cat!"

"Well, there's a lot of good in Nita—when you really get to know her—and of course she can be so nice at times."

"You know how snooty she's always been——"

"Well I think maybe we all misjudged her. You see she's a little near-sighted." . . . And anyway, she's been simply wonderful about Adelaide."

"Don't tell me she's going to vote for Adelaide!"

"Yes! She's quit the other faction. That's one thing we're going to talk about—the election. Why don't you come along?"

"I can't. I'm meeting Nell Lavendar."

"That dripp! You've always got somebody like that around your neck. Why don't you shake her and come with us?"

"Wait a minute! Nell Lavendar has a perfectly brilliant mind—when you really get to know her. It's votes like that Adelaide needs——"

"Oh, is SHE supporting Adelaide?"

"Yes, indeed. And you know the other crowd offered her the third vice presidency."

"Well, of course I always did feel that Nell was a very fine person—when one really got to know her. Leona Batterby's crazy about her."

"Batterby?"

"Yes, that Mrs. Sylvester Batterby—out in Dahlia Grove."

"Oh, the one who brings those horrible brats to meetings!"

"Those children really are adorable—when you get to know them."

"I didn't know you knew that woman."

"I didn't—intimately—until recently. She's working teeth and toenails for Adelaide."

"Well, of course, I imagine she's very efficient. And—her children are rather cute looking."

"They're perfectly darling—at home. I was out there the other night for dinner. Her house is perfectly precious."

"Oh, say, have you seen Margie Steppit's apartment?"

"No and I don't expect to!"

"She's done it completely over and it's all modernistic. It's simply stunning."

"Of course! Women like that always have everything."

"Well, now, of course, a lot of things have been said about Margie that aren't true."

"Just the same you know yourself that she's utterly ruthless and simply has no moral sense. Look at the way she broke up Leona Jeeper's home! Look at the way she ran after my husband!"

"Well, of course, Leona wasn't any too easy to live with——"

"Leona Jeepers has always been one of my best friends and as far as I'm concerned I don't ever intend to recognize Margie."

"You'll have to. She's coming to the caucus for Adelaide tomorrow afternoon."

"Margie Steppitt! For Adelaide!"

"Yes, indeed! Why she's calling up everybody she knows and asking them to vote for Adelaide."

"Of all things! . . . We-l-l, of course. . . . I suppose . . . when you consider Margie's background . . . and everything . . ."

"She really has a lot of good in her—when you once get to know her."

"Well," I suppose we really ought to be broad about those things—oh, there comes Nita! . . . Hello, darling!"

Quick Dinner

In a hurry? You can still manage an attractive dish for dinner by heating canned baked beans in individual dual pottery cups (custard cups will do it). Ginny Simms, whose house is always full of guests, often invited the last minute, told us this one. She says you can make it special by topping each cup with a piece of bacon. Or add bits of yesterday's roast pork to the beans.

New Styles Not Hard to Take; Not in Evidence Until Fall

By Jane Driscoll

The Post Fashion Editor

VIRTUALLY every Washington woman is familiar now with the War Production Board's Order on simplification of women's clothes. But what she wants to know is: "How are these rulings going to affect me?"

Actually none of the burden will fall on the woman consumer. The manufacturer, or anyone who makes clothes for selling, will be the one affected. His worries will start after June 19 when the order goes into effect, timed with his beginning production of merchandise for next autumn.. Womwill not notice a difference in clothes until they set out to buy their fall wardrobes—and even then it is doubtful that they will notice a drastic change.

What the majority of women should know is the "why" of these rulings. Then they will understand how they are affected personally. In the first place, it has been pointed out that the regulations are not an unnatural procedure. At the end of the last war, just before the Armistice was signed, there were plans under way for a similar governmental order. Fashion and scarcities during this war would have naturally brought about drastic changes eventually, but that is just what the Government is trying to avoid. We have a war to win and to expedite it, we need to conserve on fabric. To conserve, we must make what we have go farther.

Fads Will Disappear

Neither these rulings, nor the fashion trends resulting from them will outdate the clothes women now have. Some of the fads, freaks and luxury practices—namely the excess use of fabric will disappear. Noticeably missing will be dolman sleeves, extra full skirts, patch pockets and ensembles of more than two pieces.

By preventing the many unnecessary uses of excess fabric in outfits the selling of three and four-piece costumes as a unit and the wasting of fabric through extra allowances for hems (which were cut off in altering), Uncle Sam expects to save about 100 million yards of fabric a year. The stipulations regulating these savings are based on averages throughout the country and take into consideration women's, stouts', misses', juniors', teenagers' and children's sizes. Exempted are clothes for infants, toddlers, brides, mothers-to-be and a few others.

Even though a woman cannot buy a three-piece slack ensemble, a redingote outfit or a jacket dress all together as a unit this fall, the ruling does not mean that she cannot have them. Separate slack jackets, redingote coats or dress jackets will still be available as an extra piece at a single price, distinct from the rest of the costume. More than likely this ruling will force women to buy more wisely. If a woman does not think she is getting a bargain in several pieces for the price of one, she will think twice before she buys a separate item.

Skirts Aren't Short

As for the effect on feminine morale of having to give up the long torso suit jacket (and the stipulated length is by no means "short") we believe her spirit will not be broken. Equally unimportant as a life and death matter is the inability in the future to buy everything from slack bibs to bandannas in one outfit. (For those who care, these will still be available as separate pieces.)

The two items most women will have to be pacified on, however, are skirt lengths and skirt widths. Contrary to rumors, skirt lengths prescribed for each different size range are scaled by the average length worn, with an allowance of 2 inches for individual differences. (And incidentally, skirt lengths in Washington are said to be shorter than any place else in the country, so women have plenty of fabric to go on!) As for the allowed skirt fullness, take any but your all-around pleated or full skirt and measure it at the bottom. You will find that many of your suit or dress skirts come very near the prescribed average of 78 inches and that is by no means a slim skirt!

Spring's Good Time to Trim That Waistline

By Ida Jean Kain

IN THE spring of the year you hate to be fat. Of course, you are not keen about it at any time but the warm, balmy weather takes you back to the spring you were married—when you weighed just 112 pounds and had a 23-inch waistline.

Quit day-dreaming and get your figure back. If you weigh 20 pounds too much, you can lose them by June 21, when summer arrives and when you would really feel your excess weight.

To start with, get over any idea you may have that a diet means harming your health or starving and losing your disposition. You go on a diet scientifically planned to take care of all wear and tear. It contains all the essential nutrients and something else besides —satiety.

You can make use of a number of dietary tricks that will help you out. One is to have a hot dish with every meal for comfort; another, to have a bulky dish of some kind to fill up the empty spaces; a third, to have a protein, which is high in satiety and sticks to your ribs; and to take a few calories between meals to keep your mind off food.

Eat Good Breakfast

Spread your day's calories out so you won't get too hungry at any time. Start off with a pretty good breakfast—that will stop you from eating 1000 calories at noon. And have a moderate but satisfying lunch to keep you from ordering everything on the menu at dinner. You can have a snack in the afternoon to tide you over your low energy level, and again before retiring so you won't have visions of chocolate cake.

The novel thing about the scientific menu is in the amount of food you have and the way you feel while reducing. If you eat the foods specified at each meal, you cannot honestly say you get ravenously hungry. And since these foods contain all the essentials in larger amounts than you are probably used to, you are doing your vitality a good turn. Instead of feeling dragged out and irritable, you should have more vim and vigor than ever.

Those promises do not hold good unless you follow the menus. If you make substitutions, be careful to choose another food equally high in the essential elements, and equally low in calories.

Special spring menus have been planned for you for the next few days. Here is the first.

Service Men Enjoy Salvation Army-U. S. O. Doughnuts

DO YOU remember as a child what delight it was to hang around the kitchen and watch your mother turn rounds of dough into delicious golden circles in the bubbling fat? It seems that everyone likes the taste of delicious crunchy doughnuts.

Our service men are no exception. Fraser S. Gardner, Director, United Service Organizations, has told me that during World War I, the men of the armed forces learned to look for and enjoy the famous Salvation Army doughnuts which were served on the battlefields of France, and everywhere else that the Salvation Army conducted canteen service.

Here in Washington at the Salvation Army-U. S. O. Club the doughnuts are being made by that same recipe used to make them during the last war. Since these fragrant breadstuffs are a favorite with service men I am giving the time-honored recipe to Post readers so that they can make them for the men serving the country now.

Doughnut Recipe

Cream 7½ cups sugar and ¾ cup lard together. Beat 9 eggs, add 3 cans evaporated milk and 3 cans water. Add to creamed mixture. Mix 18 cups flour, 18 teaspoons baking powder, 7½ teaspoons salt and 9 teaspoons nutmeg together in large sieve and sift together into the first mixture. Roll and cut. It requires about 5 pounds of fat to fry this amount of dough. The fat should be hot enough to brown a cube of bread in 1 minute, or if thermometer is used, it should register 360 to 370 degrees. Brown them on one side, turn them and brown on the other side.

This recipe makes about 250 doughnuts. However if you are not making for canteen use or when needed in large quantity, the recipe can be reduced to amount desired.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man, 27, Shuns Marriage Because of World Events; His Sweetheart Wonders if She Should Relinquish Hope of Being His Wife and Wed Willing Widower, 45

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I will be 31 years of age my next birthday and for the past nine months, I have been going with a man who is 27. In that time I have grown very fond of him. I enjoy his company, we have good times together, he is kind and considerate and has many qualities of character that I admire in a man. However, although he has kissed me at times, and has said (and he is a sober sort of person) that he is "pretty crazy" about me, that I am "a swell girl," etc., he has never mentioned marriage. In fact, he has made it rather clear that he has no intention of getting serious about a girl until after the war is over. He has been taking some special courses relating to Army service and expects to be called up as a reserve officer in the next few months.

For the past seven months I have also been going with a man of 45, a widower who lost his wife five years ago. I have never thought of him in a romantic way, and have gone with him just for companionship, as I think he has realized. He has a good job here and has always been grand to me. Just recently he asked me to marry him and I don't know what to do, because the idea of being his wife doesn't appeal to me especially.

I would really like to marry the younger man and establish a home with him; but I don't know how to bring it about. Either he isn't ready for marriage or he doesn't think of me as a wife. Although we have never discussed marriage as applying to us, personally,—or, rather, to me,—he has said many times that people are foolish to marry, with the world in its present state. But it would not be as though two immature persons were entering into a hasty marriage. I have been self-supporting for several years, and so has he,—ever since he left college five years ago. And under present conditions, there will be many cases where men will have to leave their families.

Should I marry the older man, feeling as I do about him? And try to forget the younger man, since there seems to be little hope of my marrying him? Perhaps I should be able to decide this question for myself, but I have had no great experience in affairs of the heart and these are the only two men I have gone with in some time. (Incidentally, I have never mentioned or discussed either man with the other although both know that I have other dates.) Please tell me what you think I should do. PERPLEXED.

Let Time Unfold The Proper Step

DEAR PERPLEXED: No doubt the younger man has sensed that you would welcome and accept a proposal of marriage from him, and has gone on record as disapproving of war-time marriages, primarily for the purpose of discouraging your hopes, without spoiling the pleasant relationship that exists. His attitude toward you, as described, is affectionately comradely, though certainly not "serious" (to use your word) or loverlike, which suggests that you just don't strike him as being his "fate,"—or his mate.

However, the average sober citizen seldom permits himself to grow seriously in love until he has arrived at a (shall we say?) matrimonial state of mind,—a state of mind in which he starts thinking in terms of "settling down someday with a nice girl," and producing children to bear his name. Having reached that point in his thinking, he finds it very easy to confer his devotion upon practically the first girl he meets, who seems to him to embody a preponderance of the virtues he prizes in womanhood,—which are, usually, good looks, amiability, "right" background, social competence, circumspection and moral uprightness.

I daresay you possess all such virtues and probably others in addition,—but to no avail, in relation to this chap, for the simple reason, as you infer, that he "isn't ready for marriage," as yet. If marriage seemed necessary to him, as an experience essential to his adult development, the outbreak of war would conjure incentive to him to get ahead, in a hurry, with that normal and stabilizing piece of social business. In arguing that "people are foolish to marry, with the world in its present state," he is merely proclaiming that, so far, he has never "felt the urge" to marry and was never less susceptible to the "urge" than now.

So, if you wish to face facts, in tackling your problem, put him out of the reckoning as an immediate matrimonial prospect. However, if he gets into active service in the Army, he may see things differently in a year or two years from now. The comfortless business of war-making may cause him suddenly to decide that man's greatest consolation consists in possessing one understanding woman's steadfast devotion, and on the heels of such a conclusion, he may turn back to you from old habit and ask you to be his wife. That is, if you are still available,—as, indeed, I think you should be, if, in the meantime, you have not met another man who appeals to you even more strongly than he.

In other words, I think it will be better by far for you to remain unmarried indefinitely, than to marry the man of 45, who "doesn't appeal,"—so long as his only recommendation (where you are concerned) is that you can have him, whereas you cannot at this time see the way clear to signing the more magnetic, more compatible younger man on the dotted line. But since you cannot fathom the future, don't dismiss the widower hastily. If the younger man were to be removed from the picture by the hand of Fate,—by being sent, let's say, to some far-distant battle front,—you might learn, through constant companionship, to care wholeheartedly for the older man. So don't try to force a solution of your indecision. Let Time assist in shaping the proper answer.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

How to Cheer Service Men

THE SOLDIER who gets your package is the man of the moment. He feels swell. But when he opens it, how will he feel?

Army life IS different! Gifts that fit snugly into civilian life are elephants in the army. What your soldier really wants you might learn from our handbook for a soldier's family and friends.

If your gift is food, be sure it's his favorite food, one that he cant buy at the Post Exchange. If he's at a warm-weather camp, choose only hard candies for him.

You may learn that food isn't the gift to send at all—then what? Dozens of things.

One gift that makes a hit is a subscription to his home-town paper. Home people don't realize how a soldier is hungry for home news. Another big hit is weekly snapshots—of you, of friends, familiar places, even of the dog and cat!

Send 15c (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for our booklet, Handbook for a Soldier's Family and Friends," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

A PROGRAM FOR THE NATION

● The United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW-CIO), its membership and officers, subscribe to the proposition that the most important task facing all America today is the winning of the war. Everything else is secondary.

We therefore call upon all Americans, employers and workers, farmers and small business men, government officials, and professional men and women, to face the inevitable fact that sacrifices are necessary.

Let us place our nation on a war footing wherein the efforts of all men and women will be judged by their contributions to the war effort.

Within this war effort there can be no room for special privilege, or gain, by any group or individual. Labor has recognized this from the outset of the war.

From the ranks of labor come the overwhelming numbers of those in our armed forces. Before victory will have come to our nation, labor will count its dead by the thousands, other groups by the hundreds.

The men and women of labor have cheerfully paid their share of steeply increased taxes; their contribution in this respect is altogether out of proportion to their comparative ability to pay.

Labor has voluntarily foregone its priceless freedom of economic action, its right to strike.

On the request of President Roosevelt and Donald M. Nelson, Chairman of the War Production Board, labor has waived its contractual rights to double pay for Sundays and holidays, even though these rights have been won through decades of struggle and have become a part of essential wage structures. The foregoing of this right by labor actually means the acceptance of substantial wage cuts, even in the face of the sharply increased cost of living during the past 12 months.

Labor has made sacrifices and will continue to make them without complaint. Beyond these sacrifices, labor has made outstanding constructive contributions to our war effort. Labor was fully a year ahead in urging conversion of civilian industry to defense production—a step which was blocked by industry's desire to continue with "business as usual."

Before a congressional committee, several months ago, Mr. Nelson called for "Equality of Sacrifice" in the war effort. The time is overdue to make this slogan a reality.

In insisting on Equality of Sacrifice, labor does not desire the destruction or shackling of legitimate private enterprise, any more than labor will agree to the abolition of its free status by legislation born in the minds of predatory business interests and fostered by their mouthpieces in public office.

Destruction of either free labor or legitimate business will mean the end of our war effort and will invite certain defeat of our armed forces. Unity of will and unity of effort are essential to victory.

IN FURTHERANCE OF THESE PRINCIPLES, THE UAW-CIO ASSERTS ITS ADHERENCE TO THE FOLLOWING COMMITMENTS:

1 For the duration of the war Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays shall be treated as ordinary working days and we will forego all demands and contractual rights for double pay for Sundays and Holidays and time and a half for Saturdays. Time and one-half shall be paid for all work over 8 hours in any one day, for all work over 40 hours in any 7 day work week period, and for all work on the 6th day worked in any 7 day work week period; and double time shall be paid for all work on the 7th day worked in any 7 day work week period.

2 We reaffirm our pledge to refrain from strikes or other stoppages of work, and to resort to mediation, conciliation and arbitration for the adjustment of all disputes for the duration of the war.

3 We commit ourselves to the increase of production of all war materials to the utmost, by all means available, by both collective and individual effort.

4 In the interest of providing a steady and continuous flow of war materials from America's arms plants, such plants should be operated on a 24-hour, 7-day week basis through establishment of appropriate swing shift work schedules. In view of the hardships which such schedules impose upon the workers and their families, it is advisable that such schedules be established only after all normal shifts have first been fully manned and have been found inadequate to meet production requirements.

To The Above Contributions We Commit Ourselves Without Condition

THE WINNING OF THE WAR REQUIRES MORE THAN THESE SACRIFICES ON THE PART OF LABOR. IT CALLS FOR EQUALITY OF SACRIFICE THROUGH THE ADOPTION OF MEASURES OF NATIONAL SCOPE AFFECTING MANY ASPECTS OF OUR ECONOMY. WE SUBMIT THAT THE SUCCESSFUL DEFENSE OF DEMOCRACY DEMANDS THE INSTITUTION OF THE FOLLOWING PROGRAM:

1 END ALL WAR PROFITEERING. Establishment of a rigid ceiling on, and control of, profits on the basis of a three per cent return on actual capital invested. All corporate earnings over three per cent to revert to the government. The shocking evil of exorbitant corporation "bonuses" and salaries must be ended.

2 NO LUXURIES IN WARTIME—NO WAR MILLIONAIRES. The United States must be assured that there will be no wartime luxuries and no millionaires created by the war. By legislation, no individual or family should be permitted to receive in dividends, salaries, or from other sources, income of more than $25,000 per year. This is more than adequate to buy food, clothing, and other necessities of life for a period of one year.

3 STOP RISING COSTS—PREVENT INFLATION. There should be an immediate, rigid fixing of the prices of food, rent, clothing and other necessities of life. Prices of commodities which have been raised out of proportion to the general price index should be adjusted downward.

4 RATIONING OF ALL FOOD, CLOTHING, HOUSING AND OTHER NECESSITIES. There should immediately be established democratic national, state and community rationing boards whose duty it shall be to insure a fair distribution of the available consumers goods. In order to insure impartial administration, rationing boards shall be composed of representatives of the government, the consumer, labor and agriculture.

5 ADJUSTMENT OF WAGES TO MEET INCREASED LIVING COSTS. The rise in living costs in the past year has decreased labor's real wages in terms of purchasing power. This has meant real hardship, and, if not corrected, will naturally show its bad effects in our industrial war effort. Labor is entitled to adjustment of pay to bring real wages to last year's level. In industries where substandard wages (less than $1.00 an hour) exist, wages shall be increased to insure a decent standard of living and maximum efficiency in industry.

6 SECURITY FOR DEPENDENTS OF MEN AND WOMEN IN THE ARMED SERVICES. A guaranteed living wage should be paid the dependents of all men and women now serving in the armed forces of the United States.

7 MORATORIUM ON DEBTS. There should be a moratorium on debts for all those unemployed through conversion of industry, and of all debts of those in the armed forces.

8 LABOR'S CONTRIBUTION TO PRODUCTION. To make possible labor's utmost creative contribution to war production, a labor production division should be created in the War Production Board. Without encroaching upon the functions of management, this division should encourage, survey and recommend to the Board all suggestions which hold the possibility of increasing war production.

9 POST-WAR PLANNING. To assure labor and the nation that we shall win the peace as well as the war, there should immediately be created an agency composed of representatives of government, labor, industry and agriculture, which will make plans for post-war adjustment. Planning now is needed, if we are to avoid a catastrophic depression after the war.

10 UPON THE ACCEPTANCE AND ADOPTION OF THE FOREGOING MEASURES, we agree that all wages for time over 40 hours per week shall be paid in the form of non-negotiable SPECIAL DEFENSE BONDS. This will mean a tremendous source of income for our government for financing the war effort. It will, at the same time, relieve the existing pressure toward rising prices and will create a cushion of purchasing power for the post-war period.

The UAW-CIO, representing more than 700,000 men and women in war industry, calls upon the President and the Congress of the United States to give this program immediate and favorable consideration. Its adoption is necessary to insure maximum cooperation in winning the war. It will protect all groups engaged in the war effort—government, our armed forces, labor, farmers and industry. It will preserve basic American freedoms which must be the cornerstone of our drive for victory. It will establish EQUALITY OF SACRIFICE.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Altmeyer Supported As Manpower Chief

War Transportation Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman has worked out a plan for the transportation of Census employes who'll commute to the new Census Building at Suitland, Md. . . . Two lieutenant commanders reported for duty recently at Navy's Bureau of Ships. One was named Rust. The other De-Kay . . . This is the last day applications will be accepted for the junior clerk test. Civil Service Commission will accept applications only from persons over 18 who live within 50 miles of Washington.

Anna Rosenberg, one of the four arbiters appointed by the President to settle the scrap over the proposed manpower mobilization board, is understood to be backing Arthur J. Altmeyer, Social Security Board chairman, to head up the board. Her top boss, Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt, is one of the contenders for the job.

However, Sidney Hillman has had several conferences with the arbiters which point to his being offered a key spot. Strangely enough, the committee is reported to be considering a divided authority plan similar to the old SPAB, which had to be surplanted by War Production Board. A board chairman and an executive director, each with some power, would be appointed under the proposal. It's now believed the board will be made an independent agency. The arbiters, besides Anna Rosenberg, are Justice William O. Douglas, chairman; Budget Director Harold Smith, and New York Justice Samuel Rosenman.

Civil Service Commission has again let down the bars for typists and stenographers. It announced a new junior stenographer and typist test today which requires no previous experience. However, stenographers with at least two years experience will be used to fill senior positions at $1620 . . . In another announcement, the commission revised its junior professional assistant test to include all college seniors and graduates. The exam formerly had been restricted to graduates who had majored in a special subject. Other tests: Junior calculating machine operator, $1440 (no experienec now required); architect, $2000 to $3200, and student nurse, $288 a year plus quarters, subsistence and laundry.

OEM Wants Analysts

Office of Emergency Management wants to hire position classification analysts with Government experience in its field offices at San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Chicago, Cleveland, Philadelphia and Atlanta. The jobs pay $3200. Apply at the War Department Unit, 801 E Street Northwest . . . Col. Roy Lord, assistant director of the Board of Economic Warfare, invented the prefabricated steel pillbox which is used in the defense of the Hawaiian Islands . . . Bob Nathan, the amiable WPB "thinker," can smile or cry over a page of cold figures. Figures aren't figures to him, they tell a story. They are something alive and real. Bob keeps Donald Nelson, the war czar, posted on war production.

Members of Civil Service's efficiency rating board are Charles R. Anderson and Farrar Smith, department members; Ralph Howard and Marcia Boynton, employe members; and Martha Townsend and G. J. Barnett, chairman and alternate . . . Chamberlain Vocational School, Thirteenth and Potomac Avenue Southeast, will open a new class for multilith operators on April 20. Students will be given Federal jobs after a few weeks. The jobs will pay $1440.

The school also is giving classes in radio communication and another class in radio repair work. Successful students will be able to get jobs easily at Federal Communications, Army, or Navy. Chamberlain today opens two free classes in stenography and typing. Negro applicants can take classes either at Armstrong or Dunbar Schools. Applications for typing and stenography classes must be made with the D. C. Employment Center.

Hello, Chum

Portland, Oreg., April 11 (AP).—An ex-convict notified police his automobile had been stolen. Officers recovered the machine and invited the owner to headquarters to interview the thief—who turned out to be an old cellmate.

Peek Before You Pull

Poplar Bluff, Mo., April 11 (AP).—Bill and Bob Lee, 7-year-old twins, enthusiastic over the salvage drive, gathered up all the loose junk they could find, then noticed an iron pipe protruding above the ground at their grandmother's home. Failing to pull it out, they persuaded their father to hook on his tractor. A repair gang had to replace the gas line.

ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY—Marian Vaughn, 12, shows her bandaged hand to her brother, Stanley, 11, and sister, Vivian, 15. She received the injury yesterday in a tumble down a 50-foot embankment under Calvert Street Bridge. Stanley fell after her with her brother trying vainly to hold her back.

In a modified version of "Jack and Jill," 12-year-old Marian Vaughn, of 107 Kentucky Avenue Southeast, yesterday fell down a 50-foot embankment beneath the Calvert Street Bridge. Fortunately, neither she nor her 11-year-old brother, Stanley, who "came tumbling after," broke their "crowns."

The mishap attracted a large crowd of excited onlookers and brought several police cars and an Emergency Hospital ambulance to the scene. Marian was treated at the hospital for shock, cuts and bruises.

The Vaughn children and a cousin, Ardell Costello, 14, of 503 B Street Southeast, had gone out for a Sunday hike in Rock Creek Park. They were threading their way down the sharp incline when Marian tripped over a stone and lost her balance. She slid and tumbled down the hill

Marian was left breathless and unable to move for several minutes. Police Officer Julian Cisco, of 1438 Columbia Road, and a trained nurse who happened to be passing the scene, administered first-aid and had the ambulance summoned.

Marian is a fifth-grade pupil at the Bryan Elementary School. She is the daughter of Mrs. Mattie Vaughn.

Chevy Chase Citizens Will View Film

Meeting Scheduled Wednesday Night; 17 Associations Call Parleys This Week

"Our Neighbor Down the Road," a color and sound motion picture, will be shown at the Chevy Chase Citizens Association meeting at the E. V. Brown School, Connecticut Avenue and McKinley Street Northwest on Wednesday. The picture will be shown after the business meeting which begins at 8 p. m. and Pan-American officials have been invited.

5 Soldiers, 2 Girls Hurt In Car Crash

7 Injured as Auto Smashes Into Tree; Washington Couple In Belvoir Accident

Two girls and five soldiers were hurt last night when their automobile struck a tree here.

Miss Doris May Jones, 18, of 413 Fifth Street Northeast, was listed by police as driver of a car which hurdled the curb and crashed into a tree at Constitution Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street Northwest.

She was treated at Emergency Hospital with the other occupants—Miss Madge Duncan, 22, 1435 Holbrook Street Northwest; Corpl. Dennis Leite, 23, and Privates John Serlack, 22, Arthur Hendricks, 21, Buck Brennan, 22, and Santino Farfarelli, 31 of A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va.

Taken to Alexandria Hospital after automobile collided with a heavy trailer-truck on the Richmond-Washington Highway early yesterday were Leslie Schafer, 24, and his wife, Ruth, 23, of the 2500 block of Good Hope Road Southeast.

He was reported suffering from shock and possible internal injuries and she from severe lacerations of the head and face and shock.

Meanwhile, Washington's thirty-seventh traffic victim, heretofore only tentatively identified, was definitely identified as Frank W. Clarke, 25, Negro, of 1533 Fourth Street Northwest, by relatives, police announced yesterday.

Minister Lauds Great Bravery Of Norwegians

The spiritual courage of Norwegian Christians under fire was praised yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church and Federation of Churches' president.

Conducting a service in recognition of American Lutherans' fellowship with Lutherans in Nazi-dominated Norway, Dr. Blackwelder said:

"Our 1100 brethren in the Lutheran ministry of Norway, together with those of their bishops in concentration camps, have made their confession of faith under hard circumstances. What confession of faith are we making in free America?"

Speaking near American and Norwegian flags, the latter loaned for the service by the Norwegian Legation, the pastor stressed the need of continued prayers for Lutherans in Norway and praised press editorials picturing the struggle between church and dictator in Norway.

John Nordberg, tenor soloist of Reformation Church, and of Norwegian descent, sang the popular Lutheran hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," in Norwegian, and the congregation then sang it in English.

The Reformation Church school also held a similar recognition service under the leadership of the Rev. Ralph W. Loew, associate pastor.

Relief for China Held Evidence Of Christian Love

American's war-relief efforts are giving China concrete evidence of Christian love, the Rev. Charles Enders said yesterday at Concordia Evangelical and Reformed Church, Twentieth and G Streets Northwest.

His church was one of several groups that joined in launching the local phase of the United China Relief drive for seven million dollars. Yesterday was designated as China Relief Sunday by the Foreign Missions Conference of North America and the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

"The relief we are giving works two ways," said Dr. Enders. "It not only helps people in China, but also makes people in America think more about the problems of Christian brothers in other lands."

Bullet Grazes Man, Wounds Brother Seriously

Willie Smith, 21, Negro, of 445 Neal Place Northwest, was in a serious condition last night at Freedmen's Hospital, suffering from a chest wound inflicted by a bullet which police said was intended for his brother.

According to the authorities, Willie's brother, Isaac, 32, of 444 O Street Northwest, was arguing with a third Negro late yesterday afternoon on the street of the 400 block of Neal Place Northwest.

The third man, who was arrested last night but not charged, drew a gun, the police said, and fired at Isaac, the bullet grazing his chest and continuing on to strike Willie.

Isaac was treated at Freedmen's for a minor wound and released.

3 D. C. Boys Get Ducking as Small Boat Ships Water

Three boys got a chilly dunking in the Potomac yesterday afternoon when a small power boat, without power, shipped water as they paddled it from the old Airport Basin toward the Eastern Branch to repair it.

The youths—Edwin Mundey, 18, of 617 Fifth Street Northeast; Garland Beans, 16, of 310 Webster Street Northwest, and Richard Kahler, 16, of 322 Delafield Place Northwest—swam 75 feet to the Hains Point shore and were pulled up the seawall by onlookers.

Victory Sidelights

11 D. C. Area Men to Complete Defense Course This Week

Eleven Washington area residents will complete training at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., Wednesday in organizing and instructing home front units for action in air raids.

Members of the eighteenth class, War Department Civilian Defense School, they are learning to combat fires started by incendiary bombs, use of gas masks and protective clothing, construction of collective shelters against gas and bomb attacks and related subjects.

In the class are Metropolitan Police Sergt. Karl G. McCormick, 1338 Varnum Street Northeast; Policemen George M. Stewart, Vienna, Va., and Theodore E. Namey, 736 Twenty-second Street Northwest; Fire Lieut. A. M. Grunwell, of Engine Company No. 9; Raymond V. Denton, chief clerk and property officer for the Metropolitan Area Air Raid Warden Service, of 1820 C Street Northeast; Frank A. Biondi, 3234 T Street Southeast; Morris H. Clarke, fireman and instructor in fire defense in the Randle Highlands Area, of 1608 Twenty-third Street Southeast.

James C. Varah, fireman and member of the instruction division, District Fire Department, of 1647 Fort Davis Street Southeast; William T. Kruglak, attorney and deputy air raid warden, of 2440 Sixteenth Street Northwest; Albert Gaffney, pressman in the Government Printing Office, of 1348 Sheridan Street, and J. Sanders, of the Sanders Investment Co.

Mrs. Pinchot Will Speak At Parley Tonight

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, assistant chief air raid warden in charge of emergency feeding and housing, will speak to the Southwest air raid warden service at 8 o'clock tonight at the Barney Neighborhood House, 470 N Street Southwest.

Nordic Choir to Sing At Treasury Today

The Duluth (Minn.) Nordic Choral Ensemble, composed of young men and women of Scandinavian descent, will sing a group of Norwegian, Swedish and American songs on the steps of the Treasury Building today at 12:15 p. m. Their appearance has been arranged as part of the defense bonds campaign, and Minnesota legislators in Washington are expected to take part in the ceremonies.

Wardens Get Blackout Instructions Tonight

Air raid wardens are to have a meeting tonight for final blackout instructions in four zones of the Municipal Center area.

Zone No. 1 will meet at 7:30 p. m. at 435 New Jersey Avenue Northwest. For information, call Howard Whalen, District 0634.

Zone No. 4 will meet at 8 p. m. at 307 D Street Northwest. For information, call Mrs. A. L. Mikules, Metropolitan 1664.

Zone No. 5 will meet at 8 p. m. at 419 Sixth Street Northwest. For information call J. Pope, District 4728.

Truman Says Cars, Tires Won't Be Commandeered

Senator Harry S. Truman, chairman of the Senate committee investigating national defense, has advised the American Automobile Association that motorists need have no fears that their cars will be commandeered or their auto tires confiscated.

In a letter to the A. A. A., Senator Truman urged, however, that motorists "realize that the rubber shortage is real and that they must conserve . . . the tires they now have.

Raid Warden's Post Will Be Open to Public

A newly-established air raid warden's post for Sector 3, Zone 2, of the Glover Park Civilian Defense Area will be open to the public Mondays and Fridays from 8 to 9:30 p. m., George R. Powell, assistant sector warden, announced yesterday. Wardens will be on duty to explain the use of equipment and answer questions about air raid precautions.

2 Cab Drivers Are Robbed By 3 Men

John Booker T. Catoe, 35, Negro, 5029 Sheriff Road Northeast, was one of two cab drivers held up here early yesterday morning by a trio of armed white men whose description later was broadcast by police throughout the city and five surrounding States.

The second cab driver was Willie Brown, Negro, of 2009 Second Street Northwest, who was robbed about 1 a. m., a short time after two of the men had held up Catoe.

Two men hailed Catoe's cab at Georgia Avenue and Peabody Streets Northwest. He drove them ot Ninth and Peabody Streets Northwest, he told police, where they drew revolvers and made him stop. The men took about $8 from him.

They then entered a car driven by a third white man, Catoe said, and he chased them for five blocks in order to get near enough to read the license tag on their car. Catoe, who has been driving a cab for about 12 years here, said he does not usually drive at night.

Brown, who has been held up about 10 times in the past, according to police, was robbed of $3.50 by the men a few minutes later. Two men hailed his cab at Georgia Avenue and Lamont Street Northwest. He drove them to the 600 block of Lamont Street Northwest. Here they took his money.

The cabby's wife, Margarette Brown, was with her husband and the men took her purse, containing $2.

Thieves Take Whisky and Tomato Juice

If the thieves who walked off with a large quantity of liquor yesterday get in touch with the ones who stole a batch of tomato juice around the same time the situation is going to be about right for a party.

Sergt. Charles G. Stallwitz, of the Pennsylvania Railroad police, reported that a boxcar parked on a siding in the 2400 block of New York Avenue Northeast had been rifled of a large quantity of whisky.

About the same time, Samuel Madeoy reported to police that his store, at 806 H Street Northwest, had been entered and among the missing items were 50 pounds of sugar, nine bottles of tomato juice and six cans of pineapple juice.

The thieves also broke into the cash register and took $25 and took coins from the cigarette, pin ball and a chewing gum machine.

George Nicholson, Negro, proprietor of a cafe at 1257 Ninth Street Northwest, also had his store entered early yesterday. The juke box and a cigarette machine were robbed of coins, and the thief also took a fancy to a four-pound ham and a pan of fried chicken.

One 28-year-old thief was not quite so lucky and was caught red-handed by police while loaded down with 16 roasting and frying chickens in the basement of the Chicken Loaf, at 1409 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

He was relieved of the birds and arrested.

Mary C. Shafer Dies; Funeral Set Tomorrow

Mrs. Mary C. Schafer, 79, of 3200 Sixteenth Street Northwest, died at her home yesterday after a lingering illness.

Born in New York City, in 1863, daughter of Dr. William Henry Walter, well known organist and professor of music at Columbia University, Mrs. Schafer came to Washington in 1884, after her marriage to Emil G. Schafer, founder of E. G. Schafer Co.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Emma S. Owen, 4801 Colorado Avenue Northwest, and Mrs. Minna S. Hanson, 101 Woodmoor Drive, Silver Spring, Md.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N Street Northwest. Burial will follow at the Abbey Mausoleum, Arlington, Va.

Broadway to Languish "Without Love" 'til Fall

But Tomorrow Will View 'Yesterday's Magic;' Olney Theater Sets Tentative Opening Date; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

AFTER ALL that backing and filling, hemming and hawing, proing and conning—mostly the last, one suspects—the Theater Guild, Philip Barry and Katharine Hepburn finally have decided to postpone the New York opening of "Without Love" until September.

KATHARINE HEPBURN

This decision was reached because Miss Hepburn's current Guild contract peters out June 1 and it seemed unwise, to all concerned, to open the play on Broadway for a run that of necessity would be limited to five weeks. Five months would be more like it. Anyhow, Miss Hepburn has some film commitments, or something, coming up. Therefore, Mr. Barry's chipper charade, costarring Elliott Nugent, will continue on tour for the balance of the season. At last reports it was heaving the hubbers out of their rock-ribbed reserve at the Colonial Theater, in Boston.

ᔓᔕ

But the Guild is not letting Manhattan down sufficiently to get its mad up. By what would seem to be a reversal of the logic of the situation, Paul Muni goes into Gotham at once in Emlyn Williams' "Yesterday's Magic." On the strength of the recent Washington engagements of both plays, "Yesterday's Magic" is the one that could do with "Without Love's" time on the road, for purposes of whittling a likely hit into one of the sure-fire variety. Or maybe that already has been done.

ᔓᔕ

In the face of blizzards, blackouts and the shortage of "shoes," an "army of workmen" are nailing Mr. Stephen E. Cochran's redesigned, refurbished and rehabilitated Olney Theater reasonably fast to a May 18 opening date—give or take a week or so. In anticipation of the early event, the Old Panjandrum has been commuting to and from New York these past few weeks, lining up plays and players. If the tentative inaugural bill and its star could be made public at this time, without violating a confidence, the house would be sold out before the last hammer has smacked the last nail on its happy head.

ᔓᔕ

Beginning this week, the Atlas Theater, 1331 H Street Northeast, is reviving its policy of presenting touring vaudeville units as a stage adjunct of its early-week, double-feature screen bills. Continuing through tomorrow the "Pan American Revue" is the footlight attraction, with Buddy Lewis, star comedian and master of ceremonies; The DeMayos, dancers; Zelda Dray, Latin songstress; Jackie Di Gatano, dancer, formerly with the Nils T. Granlund revues, and the Transcontinental Musical Lads in the top spots.

Safe on First!

By his own confession, Bob Addie, local sportswriter, whose "Just a Song" is being featured by Lo Lombardi and Gene Archer at the Earle this week, plays no instrument and doesn't know one note from another, outside of a bank. What happened was that a musical friend caught him improvising purely by the touch system at the piano one day and set the business down on a hunk of copy paper. What came out was a pretty lilting waltz-song. Bob also admits frankly enough that he did NOT write "Yip-Aye-Addie-Aye-Ay," either for Blanche Ring or a personal plug. Honest guy, that Addie.

ᔓᔕ

Speaking of the Earle, after Thursday night you won't be seeing Dick, Don and Dinah, the comedy acrobats of the current bill, together on any stage for the duration. Dick and Don have received their papers and after the local engagement will be doing their stuff for the Man with the Whiskers. As yet, Dinah, the tombuoyant blonde of the team, has not decided where she will go from here.

ᔓᔕ

The Sacred Heart Dramatic Club will present "The Young in Heart," romantic comedy from the Selznick film based on the story by I. A. R. Wylie and dramatized by Frank Vreeland, in Sacred Heart Auditorium, Sixteenth Street and Park Road, tonight and Wednesday night, April 13 and 15, at 8:30. A carefully selected cast, headed by Paggy Sharkey, William F. Wallace, Barbara Kiley, Virginia Marino and James E. Dougherty, jr., will be directed by Ed Kloten in the play, starred in on the screen by Janet Gaynor, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Paulette Goddard and Roland Young.

Dots and Dashes

Over 200,000 persons are expected to subscribe more than $500,000 to the Army-Navy Relief Funds during the Hollywood Victory Caravan's tour of 14 key cities, beginning at Loew's Capitol Theater on Thursday night, April 30 . . . James Cagney and Bert Lahr were the first of $30,000,000 worth of stars to sign up for the three-hour, rehearsed super (Please, Mr. Compositor, NOT "supper") show . . . Four weeks vacation my eye! . . . More than half of those recently "returned" Earle Roxyettes are new . . . Or maybe it IS my eye . . . Joan Ritter is still in there, anyhow . . . Richard Kollmar, best known as a radio and musical comedy actor, will coproduce "All's Fair" with Dwight Deere Wiman and Richard Rodgers . . . Last seen in "Too Many Girls" and "Knickerbocker Holiday" . . . Following conferences with the Treasury Department, Joseph Bernhard and Adolph Zukor, of the War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry, announce that 15,000 film houses will actively participate in the sale of War Bonds and Stamps throughout the United States . . . The St. Paul's Players are rehearsing "Love from a Stranger," to be presented May 6, 7 and 8 . . . And the Montgomery Players, on Saturday night of this week, at 8:30, will break out Owen Davis' dramatization of the Lockridges' "Mr. and Mrs. North," with the corpse falling out of the closet and everything.

Voice-from-the-Back-of-the-Hall Note

Oh, so you're falling out of closets now, are you, Zombie?

concealing only the elation that springs from pride of possession, inexplicably turns her back on the rock-bordered pool, only a few steps from the bedroom of her mountainside home on the fringes of Hollywood. Leaving France one leap ahead of the Nazi invasion, Miss Morgan, a Washington visitor during the President's birthday celebrations in January, soon will be seen in the title role of "Joan of Paris," coming to RKO-Keith's

Oldtime Rivals Flirt With Past On Pix Screen

"CALL OUT THE MARINES." RKO-Radio picturization of an original screenplay by Frank Ryan and William Hamilton, costarring Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe, with Binnie Barnes, Paul Kelly, Robert Smith, Dorothy Lovett, Franklin Pangborn, Corinna Mura and George Cleveland. Directed by Frank Ryan. At the Pix Theater.

In an only moderately successful effort to revive the blisteringly caustic antagonisms that were so popular from the days of "What Price Glory" until the time of the dissolution of their screen partnership, the Pix Theater—but primarily RKO-Radio—this week is presenting an adipose Victor McLaglen and a haggard Edmund Lowe in something by the name of "Call Out the Marines."

There is considerable gusto in the old boys yet, but not too much valid excuse for it in their vehicle. Somewhere in the acidulous goings-on there must be concealed a plot, because at intervals something suggesting an espionage story betrays itself momentarily, only to be lost again in the personal rivalries of its stars, an unbroken succession of "gags" and numerous enlivening musical interruptions. But mainly "Call Out the Marines" seems to have been devised to afford each of its stars almost continuous occasion to bawl out the other. The "gals" as usual are the unfailing bone of contention.

Not Without Laughs

Mr. McLaglen, as a white wings, and Mr. Lowe, as the chair-pusher for a bad case of the gout, meeting at the race track, immediately recall past racy adventures of a different sort, desert their jobs and eventually get into the Marine Corps. From that point on, whatever resemblance exists between this and their earlier pictures is purely accidental, although there does remain the old quality of superexuberance and physical zest. And there are, too, a good many vagrant laughs. Paul Kelly, proprietor of the Shoreleave Cafe, is the espionage suspect, and Binnie Barnes the hostess in the jernt, who furnishes the film's major surprise. Robert Smith, Dorothy Lovett, Franklin Pangborn, Corinna Mura, The King's Men and Six Hits and a Miss provide the minor comedy and major song interpolations.

The "Army Day" issue of the Fox Movietone News is by all odds the most inspiring of the three auxiliary features of the bill. Or maybe not. The Ritz Brothers in "Hotel Anchovy" inspire a vast surge of something, too. But, after all, this is a high class, family newspaper!

Trans-Lux

It is Army Week at the Trans-Lux Theater. Meaning that the Army and the celebration of Army Day are responsible for a most stirring spectacle that dominates very effectively the newsreels in the current bill. Never before in the history of the United States was there such a Nation-wide turnout of fighting men and fighting equipment as was the case on Army Day. It is all there on the screen, the parades and doings in a score of cities, each a thrilling pageant and quite different from the others.

March of Time's latest episode, "Far East Command," is also on the program. Loaded with just the information one wants to learn about, it shows the present status of Australia, New Zealand, Singapore and the Philippines; points out the vulnerable points in the Japanese setup, and dramatically and graphically illustrates how the United Nations will strike back.

Other spectacular highlights in the newsreels are Mexico's $10,000 Grand National Steeplechase, the launching of the cruiser Denver, the last radio-phonograph to come off the assembly lines, the four-alarm fire in Boston that threatened the entire drydock area, and the Easter parade of New York's Fifth Avenue.

Undoubtedly, the funniest cartoon of the Trans-Lux season is "Concerto in B Flat Minor," also on the bill.

"H. V. Kaltenborn Edits the News" and Tex McCrary's "Your Ringside Seat," news commentary features, continue among the regular weekly offerings. They are particularly good this week.

Broadway Bulletins

New York, April 12.

SOCIAL NOTE: A few days ago Valentina, the Russian dress-designer, gave a large party to celebrate the Russian Easter. At midnight some of the guests decided to phone their Russian friends and wish them a Happy Easter . . . Two of the guests later walked into the library and saw Ruth Gordon, the star, in the midst of a telephone conversation with the long-distance operator. "No," Miss Gordon was saying, "I don't want to speak to any of his secretaries. I want to speak to Mr. Stalin himself."

RUTH GORDON

ᔓᔕ

BEAUTY DEPARTMENT: Tallulah Bankhead sat with her business manager, Stephen Cole, at La Martinique. Cole was holding her purse and Tallulah told him: "Please give me my comb, lipstick, mints, a dollar, and spirits of ammonia" . . . "In which order do you want them?" asked Cole . . . "Give 'em to me all at once," replied Tallulah. "You know I can't count."

ᔓᔕ

MOVIES: Wendell Willkie, who became chairman of the board at Twentieth Century-Fox last week, flew East with Spyros P. Skouras, who was named president of that movie company. During that plane trip, Skouras initiated Willkie into the first routine of a movie executive—the art of playing gin-rummy . . . Teacher Skouras insisted, of course, that they play for money. "That'll teach you to play carefully," Skouras explained. Willkie was careful. He won.

ᔓᔕ

LAW DEPARTMENT: Paul Muni met Maurice Speiser and said: "I'm glad I saw you, I want to engage you to be my Eastern lawyer" . . . "All right, it's a deal," Speiser agreed . . . "As my counselor," said Muni, "I want you to represent me in an important transaction" . . . The lawyer nodded . . . "I want you to go out," the star instructed, "and get me a pair of brown corduroy pants." And the lawyer did.

ᔓᔕ

ART DEPARTMENT: Last year much newspaper space was devoted to Thomas Benton's declaration that his famous painting of a nude, "Persephone," should be displayed in a barroom and be seen by the patrons of such places. Billy Rose agreed with the artist and placed "Persephone" in the entrance hall of his Diamond Horseshoe . . . Mr. Rose, however, placed that painting in a frame protected by glass. And now "Persephone," the best known painting of America's best known artist, will have to be repaired. Because of the glass covering, the paint is blistering.

ᔓᔕ

THEATER DEPARTMENT: Hope Hampton, wife of Jules Brulatour, has abandoned her ambition to resume her acting career . . . In her last appearance in a Broadway play, Miss Hampton confronted another member of the cast and accused the lady: "You're using one of my expressions, in the show" . . . "Which expression?" asked the accused . . . Miss Hampton replied: "My surprised expression."

ᔓᔕ

HISTORY DEPARTMENT: Thomas Mitchell, the screen star, is a long-time member of the Lambs Club. He tells of his early membership days, when one of the old employees there was a Civil War veteran who revealed this story to Mitchell: He had been on guard duty when Lincoln visited the encampment, and asked where he could wash his hands. "I pointed to the woods, where there was a stream," the veteran told Mitchell, "and Lincoln went there. He came back, shook his head, and said to me: 'Such a washroom is all right for Abe Lincoln—but not for the President of the United States.'"

ᔓᔕ

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT: "General" Pisano, the veteran vaudevillian, who now operates a liquor shop on Eighth Avenue, at last has the complete solution to the eternal mystery of What Killed Vaudeville . . . "I used to do a sharp-shooting act in the show-circuits," the General explains. "I hadn't missed a shot in 20 years. Then, one night, something distracted me as I aimed. I missed. That bullet killed vaudeville."

Gayety

Myrna Dean, a stunning and shapely blonde, who made such a big hit in her initial appearance here, and two very funny chaps in the eccentric persons of Benny "Wop" Moore and "Slats" Taylor, headline this week's big attraction at the Gayety Theater.

It was earlier this season that Myrna Dean played this theater and on that occasion she showed promise of becoming one of burlesque's outstanding artistes and the four-star attraction of any show in which she headed the cast. Myrna is not only blessed with good looks and a swell figure, but she has a manner of "putting over" a dance speciality that defies imitation.

The comedy moments of the production have been assigned to Benny "Wop" Moore and "Slats" Taylor, two veteran funsters who know what the customers like and "give" accordingly. Both chaps have several new and amusing "skits" in the current bill, with Moore, in particular, presenting some exceptionally funny scenes.

Charlie Schultz, one of the profession's finest straight men, assists Moore in his numbers, while the delectable Ermaine Parker lends invaluable aid to the tall and witty Taylor.

Among the beauties appearing on the bill, aside from the devastating Miss Dean, are Elsa Greenwell, Lorraine Lee and Ermaine Parker. By the way, Ermaine, we sort of missed your "tassel number."

Two 'Reap Wild Wind' of Reward

Hollywood, Calif., April 12. Paulette Goddard, because she's worked so hard this past year, is having a six-week vacation with pay, and goes to Charleston the seventeenth for the opening of "Reap the Wild Wind." I may be there chaperoning her, as I did in the picture. Frank Freeman's parting advice to her was, "When you get to Charleston, remember you're a lady—not the Loxie you played in the film."

ᔓᔕ

I'm off to New York for a two-week look-see, and maybe on to Washington for another week. It's a vacation—I'll only do 10 broadcasts back there, and send back stuff for the column.

ᔓᔕ

The male movie stars had better make the most of their beautifully tailored suits, because when young America starts wearing Victory suits, with short coats and no cuffs, and some dude appears on the screen in the kind we've been used to, you can imagine what the rest of the male audience is going to do!

ᔓᔕ

Marta Eggerth is following in the footsteps of Lillian Russell. In "Me and My Gal" she'll have her own private Pullman car. Only for Marta they've duplicated the inside of Charles Schwab's famous one, which cost $150,000. I wonder if Marta will follow Russell's lead and smoke tiny black cigars?

ᔓᔕ

When Marsha Hunt appeared on the set of "Tulip Time," she looked different from the other girls. They discovered she wasn't wearing her false eyelashes. But now they're having trouble because when she puts them on, she looks too sexy!

ᔓᔕ

You might say Freddie Bartholomew and Mickey Rooney grew up together, but only Freddie grew—a foot and 3 inches since he first checked in at Metro for "David Copperfield." They ganged up on Mickey the other day. He loves wieners and sauerkraut. For a gag, his wieners were made of rubber. Who said we had a shortage?

ᔓᔕ

For those who thinks Arthur Hornblow is already at Metro, he has to finish Ginger's "The Major and the Minor" first, and then take a vacation, which means he won't raech Culver City until July or August.

ᔓᔕ

"On "Danger in the Pacific" set, a murder was supposed to have been committed in Andy Devine's bedroom. Corpse was stretched out, but when cue came for Andy to arise, horrified, out of his bed, no response. They found Andy fast asleep.

ᔓᔕ

Speaking of a certain feminine star, a director said, "She's not too intelligent, but she's got a high gin-rummy quotient."

ᔓᔕ

Deanna Durbin has gone to Leo Carrillo's ranch near San Diego for a rest. Last year, Leo entertained 500 guests down there. Many of them were national figures, but part of Leo's duty as a host is to see that no publicity creeps out.

ᔓᔕ

In the "Desert Circus" parade at Palm Springs, Leo rode over to a group of girls to take a bow. Nag stumbled and fell on top of Leo, and he explained, "It's been so long since he's been in a good parade he's forgotten 'how to bow!"

ᔓᔕ

Arline Judge, who dined with Jack Dempsey, played with Marie Rosenbloom, is now acting with Mazie Baer

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

DEL RIO CONVERSAZIONE. So we came in just as Arturo Arturos was leaving the bandstand. But he and Wendy Bishop came over to the table with Bob Pace of the King Cole Room, all full of ideas for Bob's radio hour next day. Next additions were song promoters Abe Bloom and Oscar Robbins who told how a Manhattan big shot had issued instructions to "take the hand claps out" of their pet, "Deep In the Heart of Texas," before its release, also that the title has been sold for a Gene Autry picture. Right now the boys are boosting the new "Everyone But Me," being featured by Eddie Oliver in the Cosmos Room. . . Al Gomez, singing bassist of Cafe Caprice, came prancing over with Caney, authentically Cuban (and authentically sizzling) new rumba band leader at Del Rio . . . Then came that magical pair, dancers Maurine and Norva, fresh from their first Del Rio conga line. They've just worked out a new "Victory Rhythm" dance.

The Willard Hotel's new Willard Room cocktail lounge opens to the public tomorrow. Can't tell you any more about it now. Because the press preview isn't until this afternoon.

LAST WORD IN DANCING. Estelle and LeRoy (and LeRoy especially) are about the most enchanting dancers ever brought to the Shoreham by that master talent picker, Max Lowe. You'll go for their idea of "Zoot Suit" with transfusions of Apache stepping and lollypop snatching . . . Balalaika's Basil Ivanoff looks like a dagger pincushion before he goes into his Circassian dagger dance, tosses 'em all with dexterous precision, finally nails a dollar bill from an amazing distance. . . . The entire Pall Mall Room, including the customers, band, maitre d' hotel Arthur and cigaretteuse Patsy, has gone off the deep end for dancers Eleanor Fairchild and Hugh Ellsworth. Their specialty is a "Flirtation Dance" done in alternations of swank nitery and "juke joint" mood . . . Troika's Helen Hamilton says, "Just wait until my new Digitanos come in on Thursday and you'll see some real dancing."

Capt. Don Dickerman calls up with the news that he expects to start a new Pirates' Den in Washington, with a full crew of girl buccaneers.

"HAWAIIAN CAPERS" opens at the Lotus today, headed by Joe Wong, the "Chinese Bing Crosby," formerly featured in "Helzapoppin'." There'll also be Kollette and Deane, two smart adagioettes, and Don and Dianne, dance stylists. The Tom Ball Girls will do a verra tremolo hula.

JACK ALLYN'S THREESOME has just opened at the new Louisiana. Between 'em, these three lads play nine instruments, also do vocals. This versatility and their original touch on arrangements produces diversion that's both sleek and exciting.

TOM O'CONNELL'S DONE IT AGAIN. We mean surprised the town with a new spot. This time it's his new O'Donnell's Grog Shop where you'll find a "Little Back Room" bedecked with pix of Washington in the 1880's. If you have any early Washingtonia in the way of theater programs, et cetera, Owner O'Donnell would be delighted to add it to the decor of his new place.

Owner Burt of Burt's Trans-Lux has promised us his picture in his uniform of sergeant of the Virginia Home Guards. Won't that dress up the page!

THE BANDSMEN. Lou Breese, whose slippery rhythms are spouting all over the Victory Room, looks like John Barrymore—only younger, handsomer, oomphier . . . Glen Echo's Paul Kain is a California "native son," blazed his musical trail to Washington via Catalina Island, Chicago and New York's Radio City . . . Trombonist Roy Ferguson, who used to play with Layton Bailey's band in the Metronome Room, has been working on the formation of the excellent service band at Bolling Field . . . El Patio patrons go into midnight convulsions when the new Four Toppers put on their "Celebrity Night," impersonate such biggies as Guy Lombardo and that late great gal, Helen Morgan . . . Michael Barker's Four, now adding much brightness to Mayfair, is a fixture at Fan and Bill's in Miami and at Saratoga during the racing meets . . . Pete Macias and his band will be the only familiar sight in the Lounge Riviera in a couple of weeks. This pet spot is due to be done over from stem to stern . . . Lads from the Post ad department paid a recent visit to Crossroads, came back all chirked up over Ralph Hawkins' music, say that a special plug should go to bassist Mert Oliver . . . Only "southpaw saxist in town is Gerald Zoehler of Andy Padova's Streamliners in the Neptune Room . . . Newest naughty novelty by Charlie Rock's Four in Hi Hat is "Mr. and Mrs. K. Dillingford Kent" . . . Singing drummer "Buddy" Harmon, newest addition to the Rainbow Room band, is piling up popularity fast as war bond sales.

SWEET REPEATS. Singer Harriet Brent and dancer Bettye Shayne, both super-cuties, will return to Paul Young's tomorrow, while Alan Ross and Jerry and Turk are held over. They'll all join in this week's version of P. Y. "Helzapoppin.'" But why don't they call it "Paulzapoppin?" . . . The Vee Ames Girls and the Flying Berrys, aces all, remain at the Casino Royal this week, with dancers Girard and Lawrence as the only newcomers . . . Speaking of repeats, Les Colvin of Restaurant "400," says that his prize beagle hound, Dottie, has just had a family of seven puppies.

THE LOG TAVERN, under its new owners, Don and Helen Collins, will be open seven days a week, present the clever modern music of Paul Perkins' band. No minimum and steak dinners will be a specialty.

Two birthdays were celebrated at Restaurant "823" last week in a gay but unofficial manner. One was the second birthday of "823" itself, the other of singing emcee Van Taylor who personally ate half of a chocolate birthday cake made for him by cordial "Mamma" Carla.

BUSINESS IS OKAY, STRICTLY. Greeter Teddy of the Mayflower Lounge had to put 37 extra tables in the lobby for overflow guests last weekend . . . More and more people are finding out that when Mrs. Pearl Best of the Burlington Hotel advertises "real home style cooking," she means exactly that . . . Warm evenings are bringing an increasing flow of diners to Lee's Stables, pleasant and informal spot overlooking the Potomac.

Duluth Singers Among Best Heard Here in a Long Time

By Ray C. B. Brown

Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey presents the Duluth Nordic Choral Ensemble in Constitution Hall on Sunday afternoon. Director: Margrethe Hokanson. Program of traditional songs and compositions by Bach, Leontovich, Bland, Sibelius, Lie and Grieg.

Constitution Hall should have held a much larger audience than it did yesterday afternoon when the Duluth Nordic Choral Ensemble made its first appearance here, because this group of young Scandinavian-American singers is the best chorus that has come to Washington since the St. Olaf Choir. Best in the fresh quality of the voices, in accuracy of intonation, in the management of dynamics and in the discipline which results from fine training. Garbed in bright national costumes, the singers resembled a broken rainbow, and their picturesqueness enhanced one's pleasure in their well-selected and admirably performed program.

Brown

Margrethe Hokanson, the director, is a skillful arranger, and it was her harmonization of "The Star-Spangled Banner" that prefaced the concert, and hers as well the "Hymn of Norway" to words by Sigmund Spaeth, with which the program started. She also presented her excellent choral version of the second movement of Bach's orchestral suite in D major, commonly known as the "Air on the G String."

In the second group were combined arrangements by various hands of folk songs from England, Sweden, Russia, Norway, Italy, Bavaria and Finland, a Negro spiritual and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia." Someone should advise Miss Hokanson or the writer of the program notes that the last song was not composed by Stephen Foster, but by James Bland, a member of many years of the Haverly European Minstrels, who is also remembered by "O Dem Golden Slippers" and "In the Evening by the Moonlight."

The concluding group contained Sibelius' "Song of the Shepherd," a Swedish round dance, Sigurd Lie's "Snow" and Grieg's "Sidste Var." Abounding as it did in delicacies of tone color and in refinement of phrasing, the concert was thoroughly rewarding, and one hopes that the Duluth singers will return next season to be cordially received by a crowded house.

Phillips Memorial Gallery presents Henry Gregor, pianist-composer, in the first of four Sunday evening recitals with illustrative comment. Subject: Modern French and Spanish Composers. Program of piano pieces by Debussy, Severac, Delannoy, Poulenc, Satie, Albeniz, Turina and Granados.

Returning from the University of Miami for a visit in Washington, where he formerly resided, Henry Gregor began a series of four weekly lecture-recitals last evening, before an audience that filled the main room of Phillips Memorial Gallery. Always stimulating with his remarks because he discusses fundamentals and not the anecdotage of art, he had on this occasion the interesting subject of modern French and Spanish composers. Considering the limited time at his disposal, he covered a good deal of that ground, illustrating primarily the influence of Debussy and Satie.

His use of piano material began with Debussy's "Heaths" and "The Hills of Anacapri," in which he showed the technique of impressionism as applied to tonal coloring, pointing out that its chief device is the blurring of melodic line by harmonies remote from the classical procedure. Three pieces by Deodat de Severac were employed to illustrate Debussyan traits modified by the artistic climate of southern France.

The revolt against romanticism was exemplified by the affected simplicity of Erik Satie and his disciples. Two of Satie's pieces, the third "Gnossienne" and "Sur un vaisseau," were played, as was Marcel Delannoy's "Dinar sur l'eau" and two pieces by Francis Poulenc. Mr. Gregory had a slip of memory when he said that Florent Schmitt was a member of the Group of Six, which included Milhaud, Honegger, Poulenc, Tailleferre, Auric and Durey. One regretted that time did not permit him to speak of the still younger group—Oliver Messiaen, Daniel Lesur, Andre Jolivet and Yves Baudries—known as Young France.

The Spanish composers discussed and illustrated were Isaac Albeniz, Joaquin Turina and Enrique Granados. In all three cases he used some pieces not heard here before—Albeniz's "Rumores de la Caleta," four simple descriptive sketches by Turina and two unfamiliar Spanish dances by Granados.

Student Panel Weighs Latin Social Problems

South American social problems were weighed by young representatives of three South American countries and two United States possessions yesterday afternoon in a panel discussion at the National School of Social Service.

Pan-American fellowship students who participated were Nadir Kfouri and Maria Jose Lynch, of Brazil; Fanny Montana, of Colombia; Gladys Gomien Caceres, of Chile; Olga Rosello, of Puerto Rico, and Dorothy Jose, of Hawaii.

'Where's-the-Fire' Brigade Learns About Its Mounts

Richard Clagett of Seventh Precinct learns how to spill a motorcycle at 40 miles an hour and come out of it alive.

By John Singerhoff,
Post Staff Writer

A brand new police school teaching the technique of motorcycle riding, but emphasizing the art of tumbling, is being conducted daily for aspirants to the job of mounted traffic cop.

Out behind the New Center Market at Fifth Street and Florida Avenue Northeast, "where there's plenty of space," Sergt. Anthony Richett, of the Traffic Division, who captains the police motorcycle stunt team, daily conducts courses in riding and falling.

Half a dozen policemen are undergoing instruction to fill vacancies in the motorcycle patrol force. It is the first such training ever made available in the Police Department.

Assisted by Private Lee Hensley, Richett started the school last week, teaching the men the mechanism of the two-wheeled steeds. They were then allowed to ride, "for practice," motorcycles equipped with sidecars.

After mastering the rudiments, the students yesterday rode "solo" on two wheels, alone.

For "straight" riding, Richett said he keeps the men on a cement strip of driveway about 200 feet long.

"But that's too hard to fall on when they're learning how to take a spill, so we use the old circus parking lot—it's dirt and a little softer."

Richett's lessons include the fine art of "getting out from under" the heavy motorcycles when a crash is inevitable and how to handle a bucking sidecar when traveling at high speed.

He has promised his superiors that the new riders will be ready for service within 10 days and that they will be good. In addition he recommended that all motorcycle riders, even the old timers, be taught "how to fall."

The motorcycle training school was approved by the Commissioners recently when Capt. William J. Cunningham of the Traffic Division had difficulty finding men to fill 20 motorcycle vacancies.

Members of the new "Where's the Fire" brigade are Privates L. L. Mason, G. E. Tate, Lewis H. Gierach, Martin Smichula, R. G. Clagett and Nedebiah S. Best, Negro, and according to Richett "they haven't even been bruised—yet."

Cleric Urges Moral and Spiritual Awakening at Home to Back Boys at Front

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post Church Editor

THE Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, noted cleric and Oxford Grouper, yesterday called for Americans to back up the boys at the front with a "great moral and spiritual awakening" at home.

Guest preacher at historic St. John's Episcopal "Church of the Presidents" at Lafayette Square, the rector of Calvary Episcopal Church, New York City, said in part:

"We must all be thinking this morning about the men who are risking and giving their lives for us and America. We want to back them up in every way we can. Do you know what I think is the very best way we can do it?

"It is by living the kind of life, as individuals and as a nation, that is worth giving their lives for. I cannot imagine anything that would give all our soldiers and sailors and airmen everywhere a greater sense of assurance, and of the immense worth of the Nation they are defending, than for them to know that there was a great moral and spiritual awakening taking place here at home.

"Our people are all ready to give their lives that the best in America may live. But are you and I living such lives as are worth anybody dying for? Must we not bring America back to her original faith in God, and to the inner integrity on which all national well-being rests? And may not this start with us, today?

"The things which we value most dearly did not begin with the foundings of this republic; they began with the founding of the Christian religion. Human freedom arises out of a conception of human life that is profoundly Christian. It continues when Christian faith gives men the inner control which makes outer control unnecessary, and it departs when the inner control is lost.

"What is really under attack in the world today is not democracy, which is secondary, but Christianity, which is primary. If you want to enjoy the fruit, strengthen the root. A man's life, a nation's way of life, depend ultimately upon what they believe."

MANY SERMONS urged that there be no post-Easter spiritual letdown in Washington's religious life.

Preaching at Takoma Baptist Church, Piney Branch Road and Aspen Street Northwest, on "After Easter, What?" the Rev. William E. LaRue said, in part:

Canon Raymond Wolven

"Our glorious representatives on the peninsula of Bataan had more than courage to sustain them"

"One of the significant things to be accounted for in the aftermath of the Easter story is the changed attitude of that gallant company of disciples. As the mystery gradually cleared their minds turned from wondering to irresistible conviction, from doubt and unbelief to faith and passionate devotion.

"With all too many in our day, the observance of Easter will rise to the heights of enthusiasm only to fall as quickly into the attitude of forgetfulness. We like to join the Easter parade but we lack the conviction, the reverence, the cooperative interest and the boundless joy possessed by those first disciples.

"To them Easter was not a customary performance but the beginning of a movement destined to transform the world. In that movement they were to participate in every ivtal way. Endued with divine power and with a commission from the risen Lord they went forth bravely to face the hostile world. What a brave fearless lot were they?

"They were like our splendid personnel of today who on land, sea, and in the air, offer their lives in simple and humble devotion for the defense of their country and its ideals.

"What a rebuke these defenders of righteousness and liberty offer to any who have no higher aim than selfish interest. To those first disciples Easter meant that they henceforth were nevermore to live unto themselves with selfish unconcern. They were to live to do the holy will of God and lend their hands, hearts, and minds, in the service of Christ to aid Him in the work of the kingdom of God."

"ALMOST' is one of the most heavily-laden words of our human vocabulary," observed the Rev. Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer in his sermon at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, 1410 Columbia Road Northwest.

"It tells the story of the narrow margin by which both individuals and whole civilizations have missed the high road of possible achievement, and have fallen to the low road of mediocrity and failure," said the pastor.

"The New Testament is filled with stories of men who almost filled the demands of Christian discipleship. The modern phrase —'too little and too late'—reaches far into the past and projects a sinister shadow far into the future.

"Our world has hopes for a far better world which today they see as threatened by hostile forces.

"A further effort of constructive and redemptive Christian intelligence and sacrifice must be added to save our age from having its epitaph written in this single, tragic word, 'almost.'"

"The Scriptural verse of John, 3:16 is the Gospel in a headline"

PREACHING yesterday at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Twelfth and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, Canon Raymond L. Wolven said:

"The end and purpose of Christ's earthly life was the redemption of the world and the salvation of mankind. Because that purpose was constantly in His mind, the sufferings and sorrows of the present were joyfully endured.

"Any person who sacrifices himself for his child's future understands this abiding joy. Any student who denies himself every luxury and comfort that he may discover and give to the world some new truth knows it.

"Our glorious representatives on the peninsula of Bataan had more than courage to sustain them. They, too, were inspired by the joy that was set before them, the joy of the day when freedom and peace shall be restored to a distracted world. Anything in life can be endured if we see a purpose in it."

DR. S. ARTHUR DEVAN, director of the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains, was guest preacher yesterday at the Chevy Chase Baptist Church, Western Avenue near Chevy Chase Circle. Speaking on the theme of "When Ye Pray," he said, in part:

"Certainly the morning is a good time to pray. Each morning there opens before us an untrodden path. The most crucial days of your life will probably begin much as yesterday began. The last day of your life will probably begin with the same commonplace aspect that the day before yesterday had. Who can tell what cases, what dangers, what momentous decision will confront him before another sun rises?

"If life does not bring to you one of those swift dramatic crises, you will still have the day's duties to do, its temptations to meet. You will have contacts with other people and be perpetually influencing them up or down grade. And in this swift moving world of today you want to pray for the soldiers and sailors who are giving their lives for you, and for the statesmen whose dreams will affect the future a thousand years from now. Surely the morning is a good time to pray.

"But noon is also a good time to pray. As the sun rides high in the sky you will be traveling the dusty highways of life. Will you not pause to let into your soul more light, guidance, wisdom and spiritual strength? You may do so in a moment by giving thought to the God who surrounds you.

"But evening is also a good time for prayer. You may review the day's hours and see before God how well or ill they have been spent. You may think of those you love and pray for them. You may plan tomorrow and see if it is to be the Lord's day or yours. Evening suggests the unknown regions which border our lives—unconsciousness, the passing of time, eternity itself. We come close to the elemental mystery of existence. The twilight hour unveils that to which daylight is blind. It is surely good to pray in the evening.

The Rev. Samuel Shoemaker

THE Rev. Charles B. Austin said yesterday that if he had the honor to select a Scriptural verse to be used as a headline in America's hundred largest newspapers, it would be John: 3, 16, "because it suggests a real cure for the ills of the world."

The verse reads:

"For God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

"God's gracious invitation abides and is still a disturbing factor," said the clergyman. "There is a potent fact facing the world at the moment. Outside of Jesus Christ, men nowhere are satisfied. There is no peace. Sin still holds the world in its grip. Men seek a way of escape.

"In the middle ages there were those who sought through monasticism to escape from the world. But they were still faced by realities. The world is still faced with the question, 'What shall I do with Jesus?' (John iii:16.) This is still the most important question for this age and generation to answer."

Mr. Austin addressed services marking the thirty-ninth anniversary of the dedication of the present edifice at Thirty-first and N Streets Northwest.

This Morning

WHO'S GOING TO STOP THE YANKS?

They're off again tomorrow in another race for the big league pennants and the only uncertainty seems to be which National League club will meet the Yankees in the World Series in October. That the Yankees will pound down in front of the American League procession is very close to a foregone conclusion.

POVICH

The Yankees may not be as potent a ball club as they were last season when they ambled home in front by 17 full games, but they don't have to be. They're in cheaper company this year, what with every other team having been smacked around by the Army draft. A club with a Di Maggio, a Gordon, a Keller, a Dickey and the Yankees' pitching figures to wade through present American League company without too much trouble. Manager Joe McCarthy could surround that nucleus with minor leaguers and probably win.

The item that could stop the Yankees is a Japanese or German bomb. When and if any part of the United States coast line is shaken by a bomb attack, it may be the curfew for organized baseball. Night games would be definitely out, and the increased war effort following a bombing might find no place for baseball at any time. The schedule would face a 100 per cent blackout.

Cards Likely to Be Other Team in Series

The Yankees' chief woryr, though, would seem to be the St. Louis Cardinals, the club they will probably meet up with in the World Series. The Cardinals, unlike the Yanks, are no shoo-in, but they appear to have an edge on both the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Cincinnati Reds. The Cards' superiority over the Dodgers can be defined only in general terms of good pitching, all-around dash, and sufficient, if not lusty hitting. The Dodgers have come up with the answer to their third base troubles in Arky Vaughan, whose hitting will also be very useful, but Brooklyn's pitching bogs down after Higbe and Wyatt have had their turns. It is extremely doubtful that the Reds' pitching staff of Walters, Derringer and Riddle can carry Cincinnati's weak-hitting ball club.

In a normal year, the current Yankees would not be a standout. The club is anything but well-rounded. First base, third base and the Yankee pitching seem to be below Yankee standard. At last reports Manager Joe McCarthy was nursing the idea of playing big Ed Levy at first base. That should not terrify the other American League clubs. Levy has been knocking around the minors for four years without much success, but McCarthy's other alternative is to play Buddy Hassett at first base and Hassett this spring has been clotting away at an anemic .129 pace.

At third base, McCarthy has installed Gerry Priddy with some reluctance. The aging Red Rolfe has been a sick man all Spring and his return to the line-up is indefinite. Priddy is the second baseman who didn't measure up to either the hitting or fielding specifications of the Yankees last season. At third base he is out of position, and he is no asset, either to the Yanks' attack. The Yankee pitching, too, is a year older and at its age a year may mean much.

Red Sox Have Same Old Trouble—Pitching

But it is difficult to build up a case for the Yankees' opposition, nevertheless. The Red Sox are still plagued by their old bugaboo, pitching, and at first base Jimmy Foxx is an almost stationary figure, who is no longer a terror at bat. The Red Sox defense has improved with Rookie John Pesky replacing Joe Cronin at shortstop, but Cronin's hitting with men on bases will be missed, especially in Fenway Park where Joe was shooting for the short rightfield fence while the lefthanded Pesky is at a disadvantage. Ted Williams could bat .500 and the Sox would still be no threat to the Yanks.

Boston may even find it difficult to hold the second-place berth it gained last year. It could be a merry scramble in the league for that position. The White Sox, with their pitching, could move in and occasion little surprise. On the strength of their pitching, the Nats, too, could finish in the first division.

The Tigers and Indians are in something of a plight. Detroit has never recovered from the loss of Hank Greenberg to the Army, and Cleveland no longer has Bob Feller to check the losing streaks which used to plague the club before Feller arrived from the sandlots to deliver the Indians from that old plague. Neither the Tigers nor Indians are going to terrify anybody with their hitting.

The Browns are an improved ball club, like the Nats, but definitely no pennant threat. And Connie Mack again is rebuilding. Mention of the A's, suggests the best parlay we can think of. The Yankees to finish first and the A's to finish last.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, April 12.—What interests you?

BASEBALL?—Our two favorite baseball announcements were made yesterday: The annual pre-season messages of Will Harridge and Ford Frick. In previous years they have annually set new records for innocuous sappiness, as they meandered through two sticks of type trying not to hurt any owner's feelings, and promising intelligent fans that every team in the league had improved and that clubs like the Phils, Braves, Browns, A's and Washington would be "up there, or thereabouts."

CONSIDINE

This year the boys get a little serious, which isn't hard for either. Harridge took a deep breath and wrote that week-day attendances might drop off this year, but added quickly, to stay the ire of the owners who frighten him, that week-ends would bring new crowds because a rubber shortage will keep fans in town. Frick, like Harridge, says that baseball has generously yielded to the President's demands for more night games. Frick reminds the clubs that not even they, important as they are in the warp and woof of American life, should tell their players to duck the draft.

Harridge reminds us that big league baseball is going to devote two of its 1234 games this year to the purchase of bats and balls from a company which controls one of the clubs, and that some of the players have agreed to take a portion of their salaries in Victory Bonds.

This might have been a great chance for Harridge or Frick to come out and say, "There should be a Victory Day each week in ball parks all over the land, the entire proceeds of which would go to constructive war work."

RACING?—In contrast to the above, Herbert Bayard Swope has openly threatened to quit as chairman of the newly formed American Turf Committee, unless its member-tracks and members do something concrete toward the war effort.

Racing is going to cough up a lot of money in time, but it is dilly-dallying over just how it will give back what it has taken from the average sucker. Among the ways suggested are that tracks give the mutuel handle on certain "days;" that "breakage," that bald steal from the horse player, be given to service relief societies; that small percentages be taken off winning purses and that breeders chip in $10 for every live foal on his farm.

The program is being held up by men who are reluctant to give back any part of the public's money, and Swope, with his histrionic impatience, will keep his word and quit unless action is soon forthcoming. We wonder, however, if there isn't a trace of Swope's bizarre self-confidence in his ultimatum. Will his resignation impress his elders, peers and inferiors as to the urgency of their doing something more than will the fearful urgency mirrored by our daily front pages? We think it might be better for Swope to remain in his post, and by dint of his mercurial nagging, get what he wants.

And when the shakedown finally comes, and war coffers are enriched by racing, let's not have too much bow-taking by the turf brethren. Let's remember that it is the public's dough.

TENNIS?—We don't mean to wave the flag through all of these items today, but the deportment of several lawn tennis officials of late should not be permitted to pass. A few of the brass hats have adamantly refused to have any truck with charity-minded competition if there is to be the faintest semblance of a bloody professional about the premises.

The fact remains that competitive amateur tennis is no longer worth the price of admission and that the only way in which a crowd can be drawn, until new amateurs come up, is to stage an open tournament. But rather than countenance such a tournament, the U. S. L. T. A. would prefer to forget the whole thing for the duration. Holcombe Ward, the president of the amateur tennis mob, will tell you that his group cannot sanction an open tournament because it is still a member of something called the International Tennis Federation—which hasn't been heard from since the Nazis moved into Paris, where it had its headquarters. Ward apparently is afraid of hurting the feelings of a wholly nonexistent organization. Or, if it is in existence, it is now Nazi controlled.

We think the office of civilian defense ought to take over competitive tennis for the duration.

Yankees Purchase First Baseman

New York, April 12 (AP).—The New York Yankees, who bought Buddy Hassett from the Boston Braves when First Baseman Johnny Strum went to the Army, announced the purchase today of Ed Whitner Levy, another first sacker, from their Kansas City farm of the American Association.

Levy has been with the Yanks all spring and has been getting more attention than Hassett in recent weeks, although Manager Joe McCarthy has not announced which will be at first base for the world champions when they open the season Tuesday.

The Yankees also announced today they were sending Pitcher Allen Gettel and Catcher Ken Sears to Kansas City on option.

Vernon's Home Run, Single Win Game

Nats Twice Come From Behind, Shake Slump
Mexican Rookie Gomez Makes Good at Second

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Skinny Mickey Vernon, who swings the fattest stick in the Washington club's batrack, slugged the Nats out of their slump yesterday.

He wrecked the Phils' notions of winning another game from the Nats by swatting a sixth-inning home run that tied the score and an eighth-inning single that decided the ball game.

The score was 4 to 2, and it was no soft touch for the Nats. They were forced to come from behind twice, but they crowded six of their nine hits and all four of their runs into their last three innings.

The Nats were laboring under a 1-0 deficit in the sixth inning when Vernon set matters aright after two were out. With the bases empty, and Tom Hughes pitching three-hit ball for the Phils, Vernon boomed his home run far over the right-field fence into the alley beyond.

Pearson Chased

Washington packed four hits into the eighth inning with the teams in a 2-2 deadlock. George Case slapped a single to left field, Spence drove Ike Pearson from the box with a single to right, and Vernon greeted Relief Pitcher Rube Melton with a single to right that moved the winning run home. A second run scored a bit later on Al Evan's infield single.

Rookie Hardin Cathey was the winning pitcher, but Dutch Leonard did the bulk of the work for the Nats. Leonard gave his knuckle ball a seven-inning workout, and yielded all of the Phils' seven hits and their two runs.

Cathey took charge in the eighth after Estalella's double to center and Pearson's fumble of Gomez's infield tap enabled the Nats to tie the score at 2-2. The hill billy right-hander threw his fast ball past the Phils, allowing no hits in the two innings he worked, and walking only one.

Early's Arm Deadly

For five innings it was a scoreless affair between Leonard and Hughes with the latter outpitching Washington's knuckle baller. Three times during the ball game, Leonard had the help of Jake Early who threw out Phils attempting to steal second, which is one reason the Phils didn't score in the first inning despite their three hits.

A walk to Murtaugh, a sacrifice and Litwhiler's single put the Phils in a 1-0 lead in the sixth, and after Vernon's homer tied it up, they wrenched another run out of Leonard in the seventh when Bragan led off with a single, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on Pinch Hitter Hodge's single to center. The Nats did all the scoring thereafter.

Washington fans got their first glimpse of Mexican Second Baseman Joe Gomez and he handled nine chances flawlessly in the field.

Chisox Beat Cubs, Finish Series on Top

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 12.—The Chicago White Sox defeated the Chicago Cubs, 3 to 4, this afternoon to conclude the cross-country city series with an edge of six games to five.

The game broke up in the eighth inning when Joe Kuhel and Luke Appling pulled a double steal on Rookie Eddie Hanyzewski of the Cubs, who pitched the last three innings for the National Leaguers. Kuhel stole home with the winning run.

The cubs made but five hits off Bill Dietrich, who pitched the first four innings for the sox, and then went hitless against Eddie Smith.

Yanks Defeat Dodgers, 8-7, Before 20,086

By the Associated Press

New York, April 12.—Long Ed Levy, who just today was added officially to the New York Yankee roster, emphasized his right to the first base job on the world champions by driving in three runs as New York nosed out the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8 to 7, before 20,068 fans.

The outcome gave last year's World Series rivals an even split of three games apiece in their spring series.

Whitlow Wyatt and Ernie Bonham, who faced each other in the final game of the classic last fall, opened on the mound today but soon turned the chore over to teammates. Newt Kimball, who hurled the four middle innings for Brooklyn, was pounded for seven of the Yankee runs and ten hits.

Mickey Harris Hurls No-Hitter In Panama

By the Associated Press

Balboa, Canal Zone, April 12.—Mickey Harris, the Boston Red Sox hurler who at present is a member of the antiaircraft division defending the Panama Canal, pitched the first perfect baseball game in Isthmian history today.

Harris, a southpaw, used only 67 pitches to retire the 27 batters as his Balboa Brewer mates, champions of the league, defeated the Canal Zone All-Stars, 9 to 0, in the opening game of the Isthmus' own "Little World Series."

Pitching only on Wednesdays and Sundays, Haris won 11 games to lead the league hurlers during the season.

Today's All-Sjar team, with one exception, was made up of players with professional experience in the United States. Harris fanned five batters and twice made spectacular plays on slow rollers down the first base line to save his perfect game.

Approximately 2000 spectators, including several hundred soldiers, saw the contest.

Boston Marathon Set for Sunday

Boston, April 12 (AP).—To give workers in war industries a chance to see the race, the Patriot's Day Boston A. A. Marathon will be run for the first time on a Sunday—April 19.

C. Desmond Wadsworth, of the B. A. A., said today that the date was shifted from Monday, April 20, when the holiday will be observed in Massachusetts, at the request of Gov. Saltonstall.

Since inauguration of the classic in 1897, whenever the holiday fell on a Sunday the race was run the following day.

Maple Leafs Beat Detroit In Wild Game

By the United Press

Detroit, April 12.—The Toronto Maple Leafs kept alive their faint hopes for the Stanley Hockey Cup tonight by beating Detroit, 4 to 3, in a wild game that ended with the crowd and several Detroit players trying to mob Referee Mel Harwood.

The Leafs came from behind twice to win their first game in four starts in the playoff finals. Detroit scored two goals in the second period and one in the third, but the Leafs matched them in each period and added one more in the final frame.

With slightly more than a minute to go, Detroit protested a ruling by Harwood and sent more than the regulation number of men on the ice. The fray ended with Eddie Wares, of Detroit, being handed a ten-minute misconduct penalty and Don Grosso given two minutes because of the player violation.

As the closing buzzer sounded, Grosso leaped from the box and went after the referee. Several teammates tried to hold him back, but spectators joined in the fight and made it almost impossible to maintain order.

Wares already had been given a $50 fine for using abusive language in the dying minutes of the game and allegedly starting the argument, and Grosso was fined $25 for hitting Harwood. Officials said it had not been determined what further action would be taken against the players, or what would be done in the case of Manager Jack Adams of Detroit, who also raced across the ice to throw some punches at the referee.

Babe Ruth Shows Improvement

Hollywood, April 12 (AP).—George Herman Ruth, the mighty Babe of baseball fame, just about had pneumonia beaten today.

He spent a restful night and his temperature was normal., attendants at the Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital reported. He isn't permitted visitors yet and attendants wouldn't guess how long he will be forced to stay in bed.

Turpin Pitches Perfect Game

San Diego, Calif., April 12 (AP).—Veteran Hal Turpin turned in a no-hit, no-run pitching masterpiece for Seattle today as the Pacific Coast League champions nipped San Diego, 2 to 0, in the first game of a double-header.

Only one San Diego player reached base. Turpin walked Manager Cedric Durst with two out in the ninth inning, but forced pinch-hitter Bill Salkeld to fly out on the next pitched ball.

Mrs. Conn Presents Boxer With a Son

Pittsburgh, April 12 (AP).—Mrs. Billy Conn, wife of Pittsburgh's heavyweight boxing title contender, gave birth to a son weighing 6 pounds 4½ ounces in Mercy Hospital early today. Hospital attaches reported both mother and child were "doing very nicely."

Conn, who enlisted recently as an Army private, obtained a short furlough to be at his wife's bedside.

Byron Bids For Birdie, Title on 18 But Misses

Hogan Birdies 18th Leaving Nelson With 2 Pars to Tie; Bogey On 17th Is Costly

By Romney Wheeler
Associated Press Sports Writer

Augusta, Ga., April 12.—The mechanical men of golf—towering Byron Nelson and slender Ben Hogan—birdied and bogeyed over 18 dizzy holes of the Augusta National Golf course today, and when 8000 popeyed fans wilted at the finish it was a tie at 280 in the ninth Masters' tourney.

It was a story of Hogan luck and Nelson misfortune, packed into a weird last nine, which brought them home all even at 72 holes, the first tie since Gene Sarazen scored his fabulous double-eagle to deadlock Craig Wood in 1935.

Because Nelson plopped his drive in a trap guarding the seventeenth green—and because Hogan chipped dead to the pin for a final birdie in the eighteenth—they'll play off over 18 holes tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. (Eastern War Time) for the coveted championship which Nlson won in 1937 and which Hogan has tried vainly to capture since that time.

Hogan Pulls Up

Going into the last round, Nelson led by three strokes with a 52-hole score of 207 to Hogan's 210. But where Hogan took 36-34—70 for a two-under-par round today, Nelson boggled to 38-35—73 and the tie. Paul Runyan, meanwhile, fired a subpar 71 to finish third with 283, two strokes ahead of former baseballer Sam Byrd. First money in the masters tourney is $1500, second $800, third $600 and fourth $500. Horton Smith was fifth at 287 for $400, and Jimmy Demaret sixth at 290 for $300.

It was a dramatic finish, and one of the greatest in Masters' history. Going into the last nine with Hogan playing in front by two holes, they looked all even. But Nelson canned a 25-foot putt on the ninth for a birdie and held grimly to a one-stroke lead.

On the 415-yard eleventh he picked up another stroke, taking a birdie three to Hogan's four. But the little challenger whipped his approach square on the green on the dog-leg, 480-yard thirteenth and was down in birdie four while Nelson took regulation five.

Hogan might have won $1500 on the water hole fifteenth—the spot where Sarazen scored his double eagle. He dropped his approach

Bobby Jones Ties With the Amateurs In Masters' Play

By International News Service

National Golf Club, Augusta, Ga., April 12.—Bobby Jones still can shoot even with the amateurs.

With rounds of 72, 75, 79, 78, the former grand slammer today finished tied with two of the three amateurs entered in the 72-hole Masters Golf Championship and beat the third.

Jones' 304 in his own tournament deadlocked him with Bud Ward, National Amateur champion and corporal in the Air Corps, and Charlie Yates, former British Amateur champion and ensign in the Navy. He won by two strokes over Steve Kovacs, of Tarentum, Pa., who took a 306.

Ted Williams Accorded Rousing Reception In Season's Debut Before Boston Fans

By the United Press

Boston, April 12.—Ted Williams, center of the second World War's biggest draft controversy involving a prominent athlete, returned to action in Boston today, and fans, civilian and uniformed alike, applauded him virtually unanimously with the exception of a quartet of "dumbend kids" in the left-field bleachers.

The 23-year-old slugger, reclassified from 1-A to 3-A by order of President Roosevelt as his mother's support, drew hearty rounds of cheers and handclaps on each of his four trips to the plate as the Boston Red Sox dropped a 7-5 decision to the Boston Braves.

A crowd of 8186 fans and 600 members of the armed forces braved unseasonable weather to watch the only game of the intracity series and didn't miss a chance to show Williams they favored the President's order and the young outfielder's decision to play "one more season" before enlisting in the Army.

When Williams trotted to left field for pregame practice, the "dead end" foursome, sitting about 50 feet from him, went to work.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," one hollered. "You ought to be in the Army," another added. "Why aren't you in there fighting?" a third shouted.

TED WILLIAMS

As they derided and booed, other fans in the bleacher section belligerently defended Williams.

A well-dressed elderly man, sitting with his wife, stood up and faced the four boys, who were attired in sweaters and jackets and yelled, "keep still you bums. I'll bet your fathers are on the PWA. I pay $5000 a year in taxes to keep fellows like you going."

The boys and the man exchanged taunts and insults for a couple of minutes, and then a young man joined in the argument, but as he told the boys to "shut up," his girl friend hauled him down into his seat.

Only a few scattered boos came from the grandstand when Williams' name was announced in the line-up. As he took his place in the field, a bleacher fan barked, "never mind the kids, Ted, we're all with you." Williams tipped his cap to the bleachers, a rare gesture for him, as the game started. In the field, he paid strict attention to business, exchanging occasional words with Centerfielder Dom Di Maggio and Bill Daley, score-board keeper in back of him. He glanced only once at the fans in the bleachers.

Alsab Makes 1942 Eastern Debut at Havre de Grace Today

$2,500 Trial Is Sought by Sabath Star

Bright Willie Faces 1942 Juvenile King; Cape Cod Goes in $5000 Harford 'Cap

Mrs. Al Sabath's Alsab, the juvenile king of 1941, starts a spring campaign today at Havre de Grace that his Chicago owner hopes will carry him to victories in turfdom's big three for 3-year-olds—the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont. Alsab failed miserably against horses of his age in Florida last winter but finally came to life to run a fair race in the $50,000 Widener. Since that effort, the son of Good Goods has been given some of the rest he deserved and Trainer Gus Swenke is confident that he will come back with his oldtime punch.

Alsab will make his 1942 Eastern debut in a brand new race called the Chesapeake Trial, a test of six furlongs with $2500 added. The race is exclusively for 3-year-olds and will give a line on those who will compete later in the $15,000 Chesapeake Handicap. The Sabath star gives away from eight to 17 pounds and meets no weaklings in the way of opposition.

Meets Bright Willie

He must tackle, among others, Mrs. Ralph McIlvain's Bright Willie, winner of the Bahamas at Hialeath. Bright Willie failed in the Flamingo Stakes after hurting himself at the gate and getting off poorly but he is shipshape once more and, like Alsab, headed for the Derby. The others in the field have all been in the winners' circle but two, the Foxcatcher Farm's Dumpling and the Lavann Stable's Chuckle, are Derby candidates.

The Chesapeake Trial is not the scheduled feature of the day, however. As usual with Havre de Grace openings, the program is topped by the $5000 added Harford Handicap, given over to veteran sprinters. Ten of them were named overnight for the battle, including Howard Bruce's Jay Jay, winner of two Harfords and in the race for so many springs that he seems to be part of the race track. Jay Jay has been named for another race on the card and may duck the feature for the softer spot.

The probable Harford favorite is Cape Cod, owned by G. C. Greer, jr. He will be seeking his fifth victory in eight starts this year and is fresh from his double stake triumph at Bowie.

Double Bowie Winner

The son of Bostonian was not headed in either the Rowe Memorial or the Bowie Handicap. He shares top weight of 118 pounds with the fleet Madigama, from the Brandywine Stable. Harry C. Richards' Designator, second to Cape Cod and winner over Happy Lark at Bowie, is in the field as is Victor Emanuel's fast Omission, also second to Cape Cod at the other town. Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Dawn Attack, John L. Sullivan's Transfigure and Antonio Chipitoa's Wise Niece are among the other speed horses named.

The 9-day meeting at Bowie went over with a bang. Betting was at an average $475,000 and crowds were correspondingly large. Apprentice Jockey Charlie Wahler carried off riding honors with 16 winners with Joe Datillio second with seven. Hirsch Jacobs was the top trainer with eight winners to six for F. J. Baker and J. P. Smith. Eight claims were made at the session with the top price of $3500 paid by Fred Turner, jr., for Subdue.—HAIGHT.

Pirates Send Gornicki Home in Suspension

Wichita, Kans., April 12 (U.P.).—Pitcher Hank Gornicki was fined, suspended and sent home by Manager Frankie Frisch of the Pittsburgh Pirates today for breaking training rules.

Gornicki, a right-hander, is a former St. Louis Cardinals' farmhand and won 12 games for Rochester in the International League last year.

Boston Host To National A. A. U. Boxers

By the Associated Press

Boston, April 12.—With only one 1941 winner back to defend his title, the National A. A. U. Boxing championships opening Monday night at the Boston Garden shape up as a free-for-all.

The war has had its effect, especially in the absence of the always colorful Hawaiian swingers, but a good cross-section of the Nation's fight-for-fun talent appears assured with more than 100 entries from 18 States and the District of Columbia.

Jimmy Mulligan, the 160-pounder from Keith Academy, Mass., is the only former champion in the field and he leads the hardest-hitting New England aggregation in the tournament in years.

However, tabbed as the boy to watch is Ralph McNeil, of Newark, N. J., the New York Golden Gloves flyweight champion who entered at the last minute.

All the entries are champions in their own backyards, however, and favorite sons of the ring are here from Oregon, Idaho, Washington, Utah, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Arkansas and Virginia.

The Washington champions competing and their weight classes follow: John Corbin, 118; Pete Cilinski, 126; Tommy Larner, 135; Pete Latsios, 147; Charlie Maimone, 160, and Warren Doherty, heavyweight.

Nine-Day Handle At Bowie More Than Last Year

By the Associated Press

Bowie, Md., April 12.—A total of $4,008,846 was wagered at the nine-day spring race meeting which ended here yesterday. This compared with $3,939,952 wagered at last spring's 11-day meeting.

The daily average mutuels handle this year was $450,646, compared with $358,177 a year ago.

Hogan, Nelson Tie With 280; Playoff Today

just over the green, but when he chipped the billiard-table green carried his ball 20 feet past the pin and he holed out in five, yielding Nelson a stroke.

Coming up on the last hole he was two strokes behind, as they stood at the time. He was off the tee well, whipped his second to within 2 feet of the pin for a birdie three. Byron, two holes behind, needed a pair of pars to win.

But coming up on the 17th Nelson's approach caught a trap. He blasted out 12 feet away and missed the putt. It was the 18th, and Nelson needed a birdie three to win, a par four to tie.

A groan went up from Nelson's gallery as he sliced sharply into deep rough but he played out with a brilliant iron shot, 15 feet from the cup. Gently he tapped the ball 6 inches to one side and a foot beyond. He lead-piped the next try to tie.

Putting Off

"You can't win when you can't sink putts," Nelson observed. "I didn't have two good putts all day, and all my chips either were too short or too long."

Nelson and Hogan met in a club championship of caddies in 1926. Nelson winning a double play-off of nine holes, and later they tied in the Texas open, Nelson winning.

DeChard, O'Gatty Seek Nova Bout

Jimmy DeChard, Washington's promising heavyweight contender, and Joe O'Gatty, of Newark, who headline Joe Turner's boxing show in an eight-rounder next Tuesday night, April 21, at Riverside Stadium, would like to fight Lou Nova or any other topnotch scrapper on the Navy Relief Show next month.

Turner, the promoter, who also is making his own matches these days, announced that both Frankie Mann, DeChard's manager, and Willie Gilzenberg (he's Champion Freddy Cochrane's pilot) the manager of O'Gatty, would make their boxers available for the big fistic cavalcade at the ball park.

Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al:

Despite a variety of track conditions and a mixture of horses from California, Florida, Louisiana and Maryland, the favorite players did pretty well at the Bowie meeting. In the 72 races, 31 of the public choices got home. The final program was the worst for favorites, Pictor being the only winner, but last Wednesday there were six good ones. We were discussing riders yesterday and somebody asked why the boys who rode so many winners on the half-milers could do little on the big ovals. Of course, the opposition is much tougher on the milers but, in defense of these small-track boys, it must be said that they can only pick up the crumbs as far as good mounts are concerned. Buddy Root did win with two horses and Danny Scocca failed to get home even once. After all a jockey can't get off his horse and drag him to the wire in front. A check of the charts shows that, although he failed to ride a winner, Scocca was just about the best boy at the gate during the meeting. He had 20 mounts and got 12 of them away from the gate in the first four. Give boys like Scocca, Root and Palumbo some of the horses that were tossed the way of Charlie Wahler and they would have good records for any meeting. I'm not taking anything away from Wahler. He looks like the best riding prospect in years, but I believe I saw signs that he was "smarting up" a bit at Bowie. He has an excellent saddle teacher in Red Baker, who rode Jim Dandy in that famous 100-1 effort. Baker has turned out to be a fine trainer, but he had better keep close watch on Wahler. The kid has everything now but may be keeping bad company. Despite the fact that in New York Wahler must buck up against the country's best riding talent, the youngster should go right on winning. He has the apprentice allowance which just about evens him up with the Nation's top riders. He only made one mistake in the saddle at Bowie, and that was the day that he rushed Zaca Rosa off her hooves. He's a good boy and I hope he stays that way. See you on the rail.—BILL.

First race—Nilon appears well placed in the day's opener. Gets the right route and I see no reason for mistakes. Boston Pal is rounding into shape and will be a keen factor. Kimesha and Bluestring are outside possibilities.

Second race—Colleen M. turned in a fine second last out and is apt to improve enough to whip these. Direction was a winner at Bowie and is a threrat. Aerial Beam is reported to be a good one and belongs close.

Third race—Happy Lark did everything asked in that last outing at the other track. Needs only to get off with the others. Sobriquet promises to been a keen factor. Jay Jay would beat these if ready.

Fourth race—Eternal Peace gets in this with a feather assignment and may take it all. He Rolls was a Bowie winner and deserves consideration. Challomine should take part of the pay.

Fifth race—Bright Willie gets 12 pounds from Alsab and may take the measure of the 2-year-old champion of 1941. Alsab probably will be along in time to take the place, however. Marksman is fit and ready for the best.

Sixth race—Cape Cod won two handicaps at Bowie and I'm forced to string along with a fit horse. Dawn Attack is speedy and will be in the thick of contention. Omission may go well over this oval.

Seventh race—Rodin gets in with 109 pounds and gets weight from the others. May awake with a bang in this field. Dusky Fox was a winner at Bowie and is stepping up some. Ice Water is a threat with this kind.

Eighth race—Bunny Baby jogged in that last and looks like a cinch in this company. Memory Book is as good as his ailing legs. Hazel W. for the minor money.

Best bet—Bunny Baby.

A. U. Opens Busy Program For Colleges

By Jack Munhall

Starting with American University's game with Washington College today at 3 o'clock at A. U., District colleges this week will play ten games in which they hope to improve an exceptionally poor collective record.

Georgetown and George Washington both are undefeated, but each defeated A. U. and those two victories are poor compensation for Maryland which has lost six in a row and American University which is winless in two.

A pitching duel is in prospect at A. U. today with the Eagles' Herman Byer opposing Washington College's Lefty Grove, jr., son of the former great Athletics and Red Sox southpaw. Byer, considered a good prospect, worked A. U.'s opener against G. W., but was touched up for 13 hits in 4 1-3 innings.

A look at up-to-date, unofficial batting records elsewhere on this page go a long way toward explaining why A. U. and Maryland have yet to win. The Terps are hitting a lusty .133 and the Eagles a resounding .100.

Coach Confident

Despite his team's six straight losses, Maryland's Coach Burton Shipley is confident he'll have a winning team soon. Shipley's confidence is not hard to understand inasmuch as the Terrapins, after playing all previous games on foreign diamonds, will return home to meet Michigan Thursday. In this game the Terps should break their losing streak, for while they will have the benefit of six games experience, Michigan at best will have played only one game. The Wolverines are scheduled to meet Navy the day before.

Georgetown takes the road Tuesday to meet Army at West Point but will be home at the Hilltop on Saturday to take on Michigan.

Catholic University's first team in several years will open its season under "Shorty" Hughes, for many years a local umpire, on Wednesday when Washington College will move over to Brookland. Then on Thursday George Washington launches its "home" season when it meets West Virginia on the neutral East Ellipse.

Cateer Takes Jolea Jumper Crown

David Martin Horse Fails To Win Blues

Indian Boy Victor Of Hunter Tri-Color Before 3000 Fans; King Rock Scores

By Anne Hagner

Although he fell short of winning a blue ribbon, David Martin's Cateer captured his second jumper championship in seven days yesterday at the Jolea Farms Horse Show, held for the benefit of the Montgomery County Red Cross at the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Cotter, near Travilah, Md. More than 3000 attended.

Cateer, now more consistent than ever during a long fencing career, took two seconds and two fourth places to pile up eight points and nose out Margaret Cotter's King Rock, with seven. Last Sunday the Martin entry was jumper titlist at the Chevy Chase horse show.

Among the hunters, Billy Patch's reliable Indian Boy took the crown with 12½ points, thus turning back U. S. Randle's Chevy Chase champion, Gee Ray Bee, who had earned 8½ during the day.

Indian Boy's tri-color came after a stiff battle for points with Mrs. Frederick M. Price's Dunstar, which went brilliantly to take the working hunters' event over the outside course and also won the hunters under saddle. However, a committee ruling that Dunstar's working hunter victory could not count for the championship eliminated the steady gelding from the figuring. The decision was made because there was no such stipulation in the program.

Goes Six Feet

Miss Cotter's father, who figured that he had brought daughter Margaret out of the stratosphere when he convinced her to retire her high-flying Rocksie, found himself with another 6-foot leaper on his hands when King Rock survived three jump-offs to win the knockdown-and-out.

King Rock, never before considered as a 6-foot threat, cleared the big fence with almost as much ease as his more famous stablemate did before his retirement to hunter ranks. Meanwhile Rocksie, in his second fling at conformation laurels since his Madison Square Garden jumper title, remained out of the ribbons despite several excellent rounds.

Browns Score Early to Beat Cards, 5 to 4

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, April 12.—It was a case of the early bird with the St. Louis Browns today as they nipped the Cardinals, 5 to 4, in the finale of the annual two-game series. They counted all their runs in the first four innings and then hung on.

Veteran Denny Galehouse yielded four hits, just one of which was damaging—a triple by Rookie Ray Sanders in the fourth. Meantime, the Browns combed Southpaw Max Lanier, the starter, and Lon Warneke for a like amount, one a homer by Harlond Clift, the Brownie third baseman.

But more damaging than Brownie hits was Lanier's wildness. He issued six passes in three innings.

Pirates Down A's

Wichita, Kans., April 12 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates concluded a successful spring training junket by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 5.

Today's victory made it seven out of ten for the Buccos over their American League barnstorming mates and gave the Pirates a 17 won 7 lost record against big league opposition as they wound up training for the National League campaign, opening Tuesday.

Babe Phelps, Pirate catcher obtained from Brooklyn in the winter, hit a two-run homer in the ninth after the Buccos had broken a five-five deadlock with a winning two-run splurge in the seventh.

Reds Blank Tigers

Cincinnati, April 12 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds ended their exhibition game schedule today with a 6-to-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the only one of three scheduled games weather permitted the two clubs to play.

Four walks by Harold White, rookie Tiger righthander, in the first two innings contributed to the Cincinnati score.

Frank McCormick, Redleg first baseman, doubled in two runs in the first after a walk to Gerry Walker forced across a run and in the second, after walks to Hank Sauer and Lonnie Frey and a single by Eddie Joost filled the bases, drove in two more tallies with a single.

The winning run was singled home by Rookie Bert Haas in the fourth. Elmer Riddle, who yielded only two hits in the first two frames, got credit for the victory.

Pesky Makes 4 Errors

Boston, April 12 (AP).—Rookie Johnny Pesky, the youngster Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox brought up to take his place at shortstop, made four errors today as the Braves took the only game in the spring city series, 7 to 5, at Fenway Park.

The Braves got five unearned runs in the fifth when Pesky gave them additional life by booting Ernie Lombardi's easy grounder with two out and the bases filled. Up to this time, the Red Sox led 3 to 2. Eddie Miller's double with the bases loaded accounted for three of the Braves' runs in that frame.

Six hundred servicemen in the crowd of 8700 gave Ted Williams a rousing reception in his first appearance in Boston since his reclassification in the draft. Williams got one hit, leading off the third inning with a sharp single to right-center field.

Miss Winthrop Wins

Pittsburgh, April 12 (AP).—Katharine Winthrop, of Boston, defeated Hope Knowles, of Avon, Conn., 1—6, 6—0, 6—2 today to win the singles of the women's invitation indoor tennis tournament at the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

Thompson's 77 Captures Grosner Cup

Johnston and Ball Tie in Argyle Play; Rittenhouse, Wife Win at Bannockburn

Forrest Thompson bucked a brisk wind over his home Prince Georges Club course to post a five-over par 77, a creditable round considering the conditions, and win the Grosner Cup yesterday, major event of three affairs in the club card for the day.

The veteran shotmaker, former club champion and National Amateur qualifier was the only 80-breaker in the field as he racked up another of his many intraclub tournament victories.

Thompson also won gross honors in the sweepstakes with his same round. Jess Baggett had low net with 81—5. 76, followed by J. C. Johnson, 85—7, 78, and John R. Miller, 80—1, 79.

F. Schwartz and S. C. Sutton were merchandize prize winners in the blind bogey play with respective rounds of 98—25, 73, and 98—24, 74.

ARGYLE

Scores soared in the Argyle Kicker's Handicap play because of the high winds and Linc Johnston and J. Ball tied for first by hitting the first lucky number 79. Johnston had 93-14, 79, and Ball 102-23, 79.

Harry Wilson was next with a 98-18, 80, while other winners were: D. L. Myers, 95-18, 77; J. W. Hutchison, 95-23, 72; Nolan I. Gibson, 83-10, 73, and Ralph Sterling, 94-18, 76.

Golf Committee Chairman Ray Lawrenson is offering either war stamps or merchandise prizes to the club members and in the two opening tournaments a majority of the winners have accepted the savings stamps as prizes.

BANNOCKBURN

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Rittenhouse were low net winners in a mixed Scotch foursome tournament at Bannockburn with a 93-22, 71. Pro Tony Sylvester staged the event in advance of the official opening day.

Grace King and Otis Kephart finished second with 95-21, 74, while gross honors went to Mrs. H. E. Davies and Dave Shuck with a 92.

BRADLEY HILLS

Mrs. Grace Burns and William McNeil were victors as Tommy Doerer, jr., staged the first competitive event of the season at Bradley Hills, a mixed scotch foursome. The winners had 43-46, 89, while second place went to Mrs. McNeil and C. Welte with a 51-44, 95.

WASHINGTON

Dr. W. R. McLister posted what was probably the lowest round of the city for the windy day when he hit 'em low and straight around Washington Golf and Country Club's hilly layout for a two-over par 72, 36 each way. Dr. McLister was playing a skin game with R. T. Harrell and Jimmy Corcoran, from the back of the tournament tees, and did alright.

Harold Hair, medalist and winner in the Washington Club championship last summer, played his first round at the Virginia club in several months and with Alex Alexander as a partner broke even in two 18-hole matches with John Holzberg and Sid Carroll.

WOODMONT

Pro Gene Larkin has engaged Ambrose Sinclair to replace Raymond Willett, Larkin's former assistant pro who left with the Army last week.

EAST POTOMAC

East Potomac's public links setup will be in full operation some time this week with the opening of the driving range.

Diffenbaugh Host To Pro-Amateur Play

Kenwood Profesional George Diffenbaugh expects from 12 to 15 professionals, each with three amateur partners, for the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. pro-amateur tournament at his club this afternoon.

The pros will remain for the first meeting of the year at 8 o'clock. A schedule will be drawn, plus other business.

Navy Officer Coaches Foresee Great Post-War Athletic Era

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, April 12.—The Navy's new officer coaches, sampling the Academy's rigorous mass physical training system at first hand, today predicted the program may revolutionize America's postwar sports.

Commissioned to whip 30,000 naval aviation cadets into tip-top shape each year at four preflight schools, a group of the 200 college coaches and athletes in training at the United States Naval Academy are emphatic in their belief the Nation's athletic habits are in for a change.

Ohio State's Larry Snyder, who groomed Jesse Owens and many another Buckeye track luminary, said, "the changes made in sports by the program may have a lasting effect on our future athletic programs."

Snyder, going through the mill in the 30-day indoctrination course, added that the coaches were getting a dose of their own medicine, but emphasized that the 40 and 50 year olds are thriving under the strenuous physical program.

"It isn't at all unlikely that the entire athletic set will go tough and stay tough for years to come," said Snyder.

"Wrestling and boxing become 'rough and tumble' fighting. Track becomes military track with the best features of speed and endurance events combined with new changes and additions.

"Each event," he emphasized, "contributes to the building of a fighter."

Rutger's Harry J. Harman stoutly maintained the Navy program is the "most intensive, rigorous and comprehensive program of physical and mental training the world has ever known."

He said that undoubtedly physical instructors would continue to employ the Navy's principles in the postwar era.

Fordham's Jim Crowley reported the Navy expects the various coaches to integrate all sports into an overall plan designed to turn out the toughest fliers the world has ever seen.

"The chief task is to build bodies, minds and morale," he said. "Seahawks who can't stomach defeat."

"It's unique when 200 coaches plan one big team of 30,000 men," said Bill Neufeld, Harvard's track coach. "Young men will receive training and experience of depth and scope heretofore unknown in athletics or aviation."

But for all its bigness and toughness, Ben Lee Boynton, Dallas, Tex., football official, and former Williams College All-American, promised the "individual won't be forgotten."

"We don't contemplate taking American lads in masses, pouring them through a hopper and turning out a standard type young man," Boynton declared. "Planes are operated individually and cadets will be regarded as individuals, too."

Freschis Win Pin Tourney, 2d in Another

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Freschi came within seven duckpins of pulling a double yesterday as they rolled in the Clarendon Mixed Doubles in the afternoon and won with a 764 total and then finished second in the annual Arcadia Husband-and-Wife Tournament at night with 1152.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brown won the Arcadia event with a 1159 score. Trophies were awarded the Browns and Freschis.

Jesse Wilson and Bill Borden finished second at Clarendon with 757 and Lillian and Red Miller, third, with 725.

ICE PALACE

Davenport Bowler Rolls 300 Game

Columbus, Ohio, April 12 (AP).—Henry Willenberg, of Davenport, Iowa, came within three pins of a perfect 300 game at the American Bowling Congress tournament tonight.

Rolling with the City Hall Smokehouse team, Wollenberg laid down 11 straight strikes and then got a 1-2-8 split on his last heave. His score of 297 was the highest bowled in the current A. B. C.

The Smokehouse gang had games of 1003, 913 and 1073, good for 2989 and seventh place in the five-man event.

Galento May Referee

Two-Ton Tony Galento is being sought as referee of an all-star wrestling show to be featured by Promoter Goldie Ahearn at Uline's Arena on either Monday or Tuesday night of next week.

2-Man Mat Match On Turner's Card

A two-man match in which Maurice LaChappelle and Ace Freeman, the "local champions," will engage Henri Kulkovich and Jim Austeri, yesterday was added to Thursday night's wrestling show featuring Sandor Szabo, the National Wrestling Association titleholder, and Cowboy Luttrall, of Texas, at Riverside Stadium.

Lieut. Jack Dempsey will referee the Szabo-Luttrall title bout, and Promoter Joe Turner is hopeful of having the Manassa Mauler work the two-man scrap.

The National Debt

By Roger W. Babson

Economist Sees No Cause for Alarm

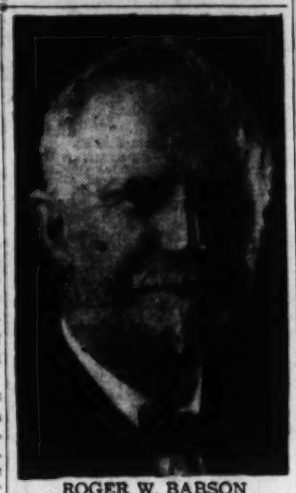
I have been asked how the Government can continue to spend more than it takes in without going into bankruptcy. The first answer is that the Government can issue legal currency. This is not true of individuals or corporations or even of municipalities or States. All these four groups can be "busted;" but this is not necessarily so of a federal government.



ROGER W. BABSON

The above is an example of the confused understanding which exists among many people of the operation of private business as an enterprise, compared with the operation of private business as an enterprise. The average person has much difficulty in understanding how the Government can continue a financial policy which would be ruinous to an individual or to a business. We should also keep in mind that our Government is a separate legal entity and operates on an accounting basis which is quite separate and apart from that of its people.

It is not the Government which is short on merchandise and has a well-filled till but rather our businessmen and investors. The 70 billion dollars in bank deposits in the country belong not to the Government but to the individuals. The businessman is oversold, not the Government. We all know that Washington has been spending far more money than it has gainfully received from taxes, revenue duties, and other sources. It will take considerable time to raise sufficient funds to anywhere near balance expenditures and income. Hence, our Government, but not necessarily our businessmen and investors, will continue operating upon a deficit basis.

Since September, 1939, when World War II got under way, Congress has appropriated 170 billion dollars for armament and other purposes. Of course, not all of this has been spent. Furthermore, receipts have been secured from tax payments and other sources which have paid about 50 per cent of the amounts actually expended so far. In this connection, March income tax receipts permitted the budget to be balanced temporarily. Now, however, greater deficits than heretofore will shortly follow.

Our national debt is crossing the old 65 billion limit. By the end of the calendar year it will probably be 80 billion. The debt will continue to rise and will ultimately reach much higher figures. Many feel that we are headed for financial bankruptcy and ruin. "Why not ultimately write it all off through bankruptcy proceedings and start all over again with a new set of books?"—they ask.

There is a vast difference between the bankruptcy of an individual and that of a government. Many honorable men have been forced into bankruptcy by causes over which they had no control. Faith among individuals in society is not disturbed under such circumstances. It would, however, be very wrong for our people to declare their Government bankrupt and wipe out its debt that way. Regardless of the power of the Government or the weakness of the minorities who are its creditors, this should not be used as a convenient excuse for repudiation. I have no fear that it will be. I continue to be an optimist on the United States and Canada.

The procedure which Washington and Ottawa has been following is taking care of our rising debt. This includes the low interest rate which the debt bears. It is not necessary for a government or an individual to repay a debt when the interest charges are promptly and repeatedly honored. In fact, creditors seldom want repayment when repayment is possible. They prefer it to remain invested in such sound securities. If the interest rate continues to remain low, the debt can easily be met for years to come. Hence, holders of Government securities should not be fearful of the intrinsic worth of their investments.

The present rate at which taxpayers' money is being spent does not mean that the debt cannot be reduced after the war ends. Following the close of the war the budget can be balanced if the party in power truly desires to do so. My reason for this is not alone that armament spending will decline. The point is that we will continue to be taxed somewhat upon a war basis long after actual hostilities are over. This means that a surplus should pile up. In time this could equal and surpass the national debt at the beginning of the war.

The Government will continue during the war to spend much more than it takes in. To shorten the deficit period, Congress is now considering a new tax bill far heavier than anything we or any other country has ever known. Washington is sound in seeking new tax sources, which—unlike the inheritance and high income taxes—are not destroying our "seed corn." I believe that an honest sales tax is the answer.

For a Federal or State Government to depend wholly on a sales tax would be very unfair to people with small incomes. A sales tax—however—superimposed on present income taxpayers is not unfair to those who pay no income taxes. In fact, such a sales tax could be more of a hardship on those who are also paying high income taxes in addition.

Answers to Quiz

1. Lead the nine of spades. "In the event that you hold tenaces in one or both of the suits that haven't been mentioned, it is better to open through the suit that has been denied," says the master. In this case declarer's weakness in spades, the defined suit, is easily inferred. After the two-heart bid, the responding partner would surely show spade support if he had it. Therefore, since South, too, is weak in spades, the balance of strength in that suit must lie in his partner's hand.

2. Lead the six of hearts. The opening of a club or a diamond probably will mark the finess of the suit. The queen of spades may take a trick. If either of the opponents held a five-card heart suit, he probably would have bid the suit originally, or as a take-out.

The possibility of hurting partner's hand is lessened to a great degree by opening a heart, and this off-suit opening permits the leader's hand to retain its strength, besides.

JOE PALOOKA — The Same Guy — BY HAM FISHER

HAW! HAW! HAW--LOOK!
HUH?
IT'S THAT FUNNY GUY IN TH' SKIRTS. HE'S WEARIN' 'EM IN THE RING. OH, WILL THIS BE A PANIC!
THAT'S THE ONE YOU HAD THE ARGUMENT WITH IN THE PUB.
QUEENSBURY RULES --- YOU BOYS KNOW THEM --- SHAKE HANDS AND GO TO YOUR CORNERS --
'ULLO.
IS IT ALL RIGHT TO HIT HER WITH SKIRTS ON?
WHOOPS!
BONG!

WINNIE WINKLE — The Long Shot — BY BRANNER

WINNIE, I THINK MR. MANLEY IS IN LOVE WITH YOU--WOULDN'T IT BE WONDERFUL IF YOU TWO GOT MARRIED?
NOW DON'T YOU START THAT!
BUT I ONLY THOUGHT...
I KNOW-- BUT I'VE FINALLY STOPPED MR. BIBBS AND MY FATHER FROM NAGGING ME ABOUT MARRYING DAN.
WINNIE IS RIGHT-- IF SHE DOESN'T WANT TO MARRY DAN, SHE DOESN'T HAVE TO!
THANKS, AD!
AND, BESIDES, THAT MEANS I'VE STILL GOT A CHANCE!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN — No Salute — BY MONTE BARRETT and RUSSELL ROSS

I'M FRIEDA ARROYEZ -I RESERVED THE THIRD BOOTH-
RIGHT THIS WAY, MRS. ARROYEZ YOUR BOOTH IS READY!
MADE UP TO RESEMBLE FRIEDA ARROYEZ, MESSENGER FOR THE NAZI SPY RING, JANE GOES TO MEET "THE TURK" AT ADLON'S RESTAURANT
YOU ARE THREE DAYS LATE-
WE THOUGHT PERHAPS-I GOT HERE-THAT'S THE MAIN THING
HEIL HITLER!
YOU DON'T SALUTE?
DON'T BE A FOOL-THE F.B.I. IS CATCHING ALL FOOLS-WE MUST BE CAREFUL!

SUPERMAN — Unfinished Business — BY JERRY SIEGEL and JOE SHUSTER

TRACING TO THE LISTING COLOSSUS, SUPERMAN PREVENTS SEVERE LOSS OF LIFE. NOW, AS CLARK KENT, HE RETURNS TO THE DAILY PLANET WITH LOIS LANE..
WELL, WHITE-HOW'D WE DO?
NOT BAD, BUT-
WHAT DO YOU MEAN "BUT"? WE WERE MAGNIFICENT!
IF YOU TWO GRANDSTANDERS HADN'T RUSHED BACK SO QUICKLY IN YOUR EAGERNESS TO BE APPLAUDED, YOU'D HAVE UNCOVERED ANOTHER GREAT DEVELOPMENT. I'VE JUST BEEN INFORMED, BY TELEPHONE, THAT THE COLOSSUS HAS TURNED OVER ON ITS SIDE AND IS FIRMLY IMBEDDED IN THE HARBOR MUD!
SHORTLY AFTER- CLARK CHANGES BACK TO SUPERMAN....
IT SEEMS I'VE STILL SOME WORK TO DO IN CONNECTION WITH THE COLOSSUS!
AND HERE'S WHERE I ATTEND TO THE UNFINISHED BUSINESS!

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

JEEPERS! A FRIED EGG WITH A MESSAGE WRITTEN ON IT?
"STAND BY FOR FURTHER INSTRUCTIONS." I WONDER WHAT IT MEANS?
HOW'D YOU DO IT, JOSEPHINE—AND WHAT DOES THE MESSAGE MEAN?
SHE SEEMS AS PUZZLED AS WE ARE!
LOOKS TO ME LIKE WE'LL HAVE TO WAIT FOR THE NEXT EGG!
THERE'LL PROBABLY BE A MESSAGE ON IT TOO!
GET THE FRYING PAN READY, GWEN—HERE COMES THE NEXT CHAPTER!

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"Honorable spy report American Nation suffer from under-nourishment and starvation is imminent—on everybody's lips is question: 'What's cookin'?'"

Listen! with Glynn

Not that there hasn't been an infinite variety about the radio program, "Vox Pop," up to now!

The two quizzical gentlemen known as Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth have been all over the country in the past few years—have even made three or four trips out of the country, into Mexico and Canada—to put on their show, with all sorts of people, with all sorts of questions and, it must be added, with all sorts of answers.

But, varied as the shows have been, there has been one element that has never varied. And that has been the weekly appearance of Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth. And this is to report, somewhat sadly, that now even that is to be varied.

Wally Butterworth has decided to inaugurate a new radio show of his very own, the plans for which will be announced at an early date. Which means that after many years he will be heard no longer on "Vox Pop." Johnson will carry on by himself—that is, by himself, and a different guest interviewer every week.

The visiting question-firer on the program tonight—over WJSV at 8—will be the nimble-tongued Walter O'Keefe, whom you've heard before this on any number of radio shows as master of ceremonies. He's something of a comedian to boot, and there should be laughs, accordingly, in both questions and answers.

Brooks Faces Ill. Primary Tomorrow

By L. W. Meredith

International News Service Staff Writer

"Politics comes out into the open for a six months' appearance tomorrow when Illinois holds the first primary of the year for nomination of candidates for Congress.

Aspirants for one seat in the Senate and the 26 House places to which the Prairie State will be entitled in the next Congress will be nominated. Illinois has 27 members of the House, but loses one Congressman-at-large under State reapportionment.

Senator C. Wayland (Curley) Brooks seeks the Republican nomination for reelection to the Senate in the first of primaries and State conventions, which will carry through to September 15, for selection of candidates for the general election November 3.

House Battle Main Show

All the 435 members of the House, 34 Senators and 34 Governors will be chosen by the voters in the November election, with the battle for control of the House the chief feature.

G. O. P. leaders are concentrating on trying to gain control of the House, where the Democrats, with 265 members, have a 102 majority.

Brooks' opponent for the Republican nomination for Senator in Illinois is Warren Wright, a veteran party organizer.

Chief Democratic candidates are the present Representative from the Second District of Chicago, Raymond S. McKeough, and City Alderman Paul H. Douglas, University of Chicago economics professor.

McKeough has the backing of the Kelly-Nash city machine, which has dominated city affairs for years, and much of the State Democratic politics.

Only Primary This Month

The Illinois primary is the only one this month, but seven States will hold primaries in May—Alabama, Florida, Indiana and South Dakota on May 5; Oregon, May 15; Pennsylvania, May 19, and North Carolina, May 30. Primaries will roll on then every month, with the last September 15, in Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey and Wisconsin.

Candidates will be nominated in three States by convention—Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island—on dates to be set by party committees.

While the general election in 47 States is not until November 3, Maine will vote September 14.

For St. Olaf

Liberty Ship Is Christened By Princess

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, April 12.—A cold April wind whipped over the stand as the band played the Norwegian national anthem and voices softly intoned:

"Yes! We love this country . . . As our parents fought from disaster to victory . . . As our Lord helped us to final victory . . ."

Then Crown Princess Martha of Norway smashed a bottle of champagne against the prow and the Liberty ship St. Olaf, named in honor of the patron saint of Norse seamen fighting the lonely Battle of the Atlantic, slid into the muddy Patapsco River.

They were there by the hundreds, Americans of Norwegian descent and Norwegians who escaped by underground from Norway.

"I christen thee St. Olaf!" shouted Princess Martha, blue-eyed and gracious wife of the heir to the Norwegian throne, who later said, "It was very impressive, the spirit of those workmen and the cheers they gave. It was the spirit of the United Nations. A gesture of sympathy."

Damrosch Will Aid Symphony

Dr. Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, and John Erskine, noted author and musician, will help the National Symphony Orchestra launch its ten-day sustaining fund drive for $114,000 at a luncheon tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. in the Mayflower.

Erskine will speak at the luncheon. Damrosch, however, who recently observed his eightieth birthday, will remain in New York and broadcast his message.

Presiding at the luncheon will be E. R. Finkenstaedt, general chairman for the orchestra's twelfth annual sustaining fund campaign, and toastmaster will be Roger J. Whiteford, Washington attorney. Another speaker will be Lieut. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Parish, Lafayette Square, who is now serving with the Navy.

Dr. Damrosch was at one time the conductor of another National Symphony Orchestra, a New York symphonic organization which merged with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in 1922.

ADA Buys 155 Acres In Fairfax

A 155-acre tract in Fairfax County, Va., near Alexandria has been purchased by the Alley Dwelling Authority for a wartime housing development, John Ihlder, ADA executive officer, announced yesterday.

Ihlder said he would discuss plans for the development with Fairfax County planning board members at a meeting in his office tomorrow. Hugh Pomeroy, director of the Virginia planning board, also is expected to attend.

Site of the proposed project, Ihlder said, is west of Telegraph Road and south of Cameron Run, a short distance from the Belle Haven subdivision and the Lord Fairfax Country Club. The site is within half a mile of the supply trunk line of the Alexandria Water Co.

Homes in the Fairfax project will be of the demountable type. The ADA has proposed to build 1700 of these homes in nearby Virginia. Exactly how many will be included in the Fairfax development has not been decided, Ihlder said.

Meanwhile, the ADA executive announced he would confer shortly with Montgomery County (Md.) school officials on the expansion of school facilities to serve a proposed 800-home temporary housing project near Kensington. County Supt. Edwin W. Broome estimated yesterday that school facilities for the development would cost between $150,000 and $200,000 with at least $40,000 a year extra for maintenance.

Laucks, Author Of Plan to Speed War Output, Dies

Wrightsville, Pa., April 12 (AP).—S. Forry Laucks, who helped to speed up America's great war production program by creating the "York plan," died last night at his home after a long illness.

The 72-year-old president of the York (Pa.) Safe & Lock Co., obtained the Nation's first private ordnance contract since the World War in 1938 when the demand for safes fell off. He perfected the "York plan," by which skilled workmen and small tool shops cooperated in turning out armament. His firm now produces 18 different articles for the Army and Navy.

Laucks was active in the Democratic Party. He was a delegate to National Conventions in 1912, 1932 and 1936.
